

Speaker 1 [00:00:12] Alright, let's go. How old are you?

Speaker 2 [00:00:16] I am [20-25] years old.

Speaker 1 [00:00:22] How long have you and your partner been together?

Speaker 2 [00:00:27] It's been [1-5] years and [1-5] months, [1-5] years and [1-5] months.

Speaker 1 [00:00:35] Do you have children?

Speaker 2 [00:00:37] No.

Speaker 1 [00:00:42] Who do you live with?

Speaker 2 [00:00:44] I live with my mother, my father, and my brother, [1-5] people in the house.

Speaker 1 [00:00:53] What is your main source of income?

Speaker 2 [00:00:56] I work as an [occupation]. I am not officially employed. I work as an [occupation].

Speaker 1 [00:01:04] And what is your current profession?

Speaker 2 [00:01:08] As an [occupation], a [occupation], my profession is a [occupation].

Speaker 1 [00:01:26] Alright, how would you like me to refer to your partner? What term do you use, girlfriend, partner, companion...?

Speaker 2 [00:01:34] Girlfriend.

Speaker 1 [00:01:38] Alright, can you tell me a little about your love story?

[Portion Redacted]

Speaker 1 [00:03:08] How would you compare the quality of your relationship to the quality of your friends' relationships?

Speaker 2 [00:03:17] My friends? I consider mine very good. I think it's better because if I compare it with my close friends, mine is the longest-lasting. It's also more linear. [Partner's Name] and I don't have the highs and lows like some of my friends who break up and get back together. We are always peaceful in that sense.

Speaker 1 [00:03:51] Do you mind telling me how many romantic partners you have had?

Speaker 2 [00:03:56] [1-5], including dating? [1-5]? [1-5].

Speaker 1 [00:04:06] How do you compare the quality of your current relationship with your previous relationships?

Speaker 2 [00:04:13] This one is much healthier. More mature, right. I was young too. I and my partners were younger. Maturity. I think it's normal to mature after [16-20]. It's a more solid relationship, I think.

Speaker 1 [00:04:48] For you, what makes a relationship high-quality?

Speaker 2 [00:04:52] High-quality? What do you mean, her characteristics, or the relationship's characteristics?

Speaker 1 [00:05:03] Characteristics, adjectives like that.

Speaker 2 [00:05:10] Certainly being a companion, right. If you are talking about love languages. I really like quality time and like to spend it not just romantically, not just with my girlfriend, but with friends too. So, my affection language is usually quality time. It's not just going out with people, not usually for parties or places. I like to be intimate with people, so just going out, even to the market with friends. Anyway, anything. I like to spend time together. I like that, but if you are talking about her characteristics. [Partner's Name] is a very companionable person. I think it's a very good word for her. She is indeed a partner not only in good times but also in difficult times when we need a shoulder, someone to be with you. She is really the ideal companion in that sense. I value that a lot.

Speaker 1 [00:06:10] You mentioned some characteristics of a high-quality relationship. What do you think makes a relationship low-quality?

Speaker 2 [00:06:20] Low-quality? Low-quality. I think disrespect. Those couples who argue in front of everyone. Start making scenes. I am a more introverted person. So even if we have fight, I stay calm, I don't like to attract much attention. So I think that bothers me.

Speaker 1 [00:07:05] Well, you said that you consider a high-quality relationship to have a lot of companionship, intimacy, and quality time. Can you explain better how to know if your relationship has these? Have this intimacy and companionship? How do you know? Do you have more concrete examples?

Speaker 2 [00:07:37] That you have quality time. In general, or mine?

Speaker 1 [00:07:42] In general, like how do you see it?

Speaker 2 [00:07:49] In general, quality time is when someone. Not necessarily is with you all the time every day, but someone who thinks of including you in their routine. For example, [Partner's Name] and I work, alright, but we try to include each other in our routine. So, if I'm going to college, and someone invited me to do something at night, first I say, "wait, I have something with [Partner's Name], and I will see if she wants to spend time with me if she wants to go out with me. I had already planned something." So, it's always including the partner in your events, always molding your routine and understanding that you are not alone. So, it's that, and quality time in that sense too, of liking each other's company. So, for example, not necessarily always doing something together, but just being together, each doing their own things. I think it's liking each other's company and making it enjoyable.

Speaker 1 [00:09:04] Ok, for you, what is most important in a relationship? You've already mentioned this a bit, but I wanted to hear it again.

Speaker 2 [00:09:15] I value security a lot, security, loyalty, companionship, something like that, solid relationships. Companionship is a very important thing.

Speaker 1 [00:09:43] Could you tell me why you think that? Why do you consider it?

Speaker 2 [00:09:47] Why do I think that? Because I think without it, the relationship doesn't prosper. If you don't have love, even if there's intensity, passion, but if people don't, don't understand that each one has to give 100%, each one complementing the other, the relationship won't work or if it does, it will be on-and-off, not something good. In the long run, breaking up and getting back together is not good for the relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:10:31] For you, what is love?

Speaker 2 [00:10:34] What is love? I think love has many meanings, many meanings of love. Romantic love. Fraternal love. Passion. Love of friends, it has many meanings. In the romantic sense, I think it's a combination of everything. I can't define it in one thing, but it's a combination of everything. It's you... It's you bleeding for the person; it's you thinking about the person, it's a very. Very strong feeling. Very calm too. Romantically, right. For fraternal love, friends too.

Speaker 1 [00:11:35] How important do you think love is in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:11:40] Very important, very important, if it's a romantic relationship, it's very important. Also, I think there are also couples who are together for convenience and sometimes it's not what it was at the beginning, but it's still a couple. It's a type of relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:12:04] How do you know if your partner loves you?

Speaker 2 [00:12:09] How do I know she loves me? In my specific case. I know, I believe she loves me. She affirms it a lot, words of affirmation, right, she affirms it a lot, and she shows it, she in fact shows it. In a way that makes me feel secure with her, makes me feel secure and loved. She makes me feel secure. How does she show it? With words. Words. She really talks a lot about what she feels, the feelings, emotions, so the way she speaks, I believe her. I don't believe it's dishonest. So she tells me and also in her actions. Quality time. The little things.

Speaker 1 [00:13:15] What are the challenges you face in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:13:21] Let me think... Most of our problems are not. Our problems don't come from the relationship, they don't come from us, they usually come from external factors. So, they don't come. It's not an internal relationship problem, but external problems. So, her family or my family sometimes. I don't know... financially... external problems, not internal relationship problems, but that shake the relationship, shake it, right, they matter because somehow we will have to overcome them together, we will have to make it work together. There's no way to influence her mother. Arguing with her. Anyway, stepfather, then they cause repercussions in the relationship that I then have to try to calm and pacify. So it shakes.

Speaker 1 [00:14:32] Do you and your girlfriend have disagreements in the relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:14:39] Disagreements. Yes, we don't, we are not very similar, very similar, but no disagreement that is. No disagreement that is definitive, you know, no disagreement that is significant. Just personality differences.

Speaker 1 [00:15:06] And difficulties, do you have any relationship difficulties, besides these disagreements, is there anything else?

Speaker 2 [00:15:23] I really can't think of any relationship difficulty. I can't think of any. Disagreements, not the problems we have. I think they come precisely because we are different. So it's a relationship thing. For example, she likes to go out, I like to stay at home. These are trivial things. I don't know if that's what you're talking about.

Speaker 1 [00:15:57] Yes, that's valid.

Speaker 2 [00:15:58] I don't know if that includes it. These disagreements are not definitive to the point of being the breaking point of the relationship, no, at least not for me.

Speaker 1 [00:16:10] How do you resolve, even if small, how do you resolve when there is a bigger clash because of these disagreements?

Speaker 2 [00:16:20] Someone give in. Sometimes I do, sometimes she does. So, for example, it depends. My partner. And this is something I have already talked to her about precisely because we understand. I think we are different, divergent, that I have opinions, I behave differently from her. Not in relation to me and her, but me with other people and her with other people. For example. I am an introverted person. But if someone personally, family or friends, comes to debate something serious. I argue. I try. I'm more combative in that sense. She is not. Even though she is an extroverted person, she talks a lot. If her mother says something, she will, even if she is right, she will be the peacemaker. She will be the one to apologize. She will. She will always give in. And this is something I have already talked to her about. So I say, Hi, [Partner's Name]. Sometimes you have to stand up for yourself too. You are [20-25] years old, you are no longer a child, you can argue, you can say things. And she always prefers to say, "No, no," even when she is right, "sorry" or stop, sometimes she has to do that with me. When we have something like that, to apologize, and I say: no, let's talk, we need to resolve it. And I think that in disagreements. Usually, because they are very, very trivial things, I give in. And when it's about going out, I go out, when it's something she doesn't like. Things she doesn't like, we don't do, like movies, things she doesn't like, we don't do.

Speaker 1 [00:18:12] Besides given in, what other ways do you use to maintain your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:18:21] Talk. Try to have a dialogue. Try to be as honest and open as possible.

Speaker 1 [00:18:41] Would you say your relationship is good for you?

Speaker 2 [00:18:45] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:18:49] Why yes, could you give examples of why yes?

Speaker 2 [00:18:55] Why yes? Because it's a relationship where we build things, right? So [Partner's Name] and I, we have built something nice, we have a nice foundation. And I trust her and she trusts me, because I believe I am a better person with her than I am without her. So, over the time we've been dating, I also think the opposite is true. I also think she is a better person today with me than before. Because each one pulls the other up and tries to really conquer a little space in the world together, it's good and it's not something destructive, it's something constructive. At least I see it that way. I think it's good.

Speaker 1 [00:19:53] Do you have any concrete examples of these reasons that make your relationship good?

Speaker 2 [00:20:16] Studying. I think most things are related to studies, like study barriers, I've lifted her a lot, and she has tried to lift me too. Financial problems. So, for example, when she needed a book, I bought the doctrine book for her, competition registration, pushing in that sense, you know, constructive, financially, always trying to put in her mind that it's important to always save money for the future. Emergency fund. A life perspective. So, if we are dating today, we are in college. We are thinking, we are dating, one day we will want to live together, so. We are thinking professionally, trying to adjust financially, although it's a bit long-term, right, because we are still [occupation], but I find it interesting to think about it. So, I think this kind of thing is constructive in the long term. That's why I consider the relationship to be good.

Speaker 1 [00:21:29] You have already mentioned that yes, but let's go. Do you believe your relationship has changed anything in you? In what way?

Speaker 2 [00:21:39] Yes, I believe I am a more mature person today. And I think I am also a better version than I was without her.

Speaker 1 [00:22:03] And what about her, do you believe she has changed during the relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:22:08] Yes, she has also changed. A more responsible person, a more... I can think of it in the same way that I changed, thinking more about the future. A bit more, building a bit more. Not that she didn't think about it before, but now in a more concrete, more mature way.

Speaker 1 [00:22:41] You have already mentioned that your relationship with her makes you feel secure, right, that you feel secure in your relationship. What makes you feel this way?

Speaker 2 [00:22:54] Her, her actions and words, I believe what she says, and because there is no problem. I think if there was any reason for a breakup, it wouldn't be something from her. It would be something that would come out of nowhere. I don't see it as a problem that drags on, there are relationships that drag on and reach a point where it doesn't work anymore. I don't see that in our case. If something ever happened, it would be because of something explosive out of nowhere. I don't think. That's why I feel secure, because I don't see any problem being swept under the rug. I really don't see it.

Speaker 1 [00:23:46] Now I will share the screen with you, there's a scale that I need you to respond to. Well, in relation to this statement, how would you rate it from 1 to 9?

Speaker 2 [00:24:18] So, as sincerely as possible. She really listens to me, she listens to me. Sometimes she doesn't understand me, but she listens to me. I will give it an eight, eight.

Speaker 1 [00:24:40] Now, in relation to this other statement, "my partner cares about my needs" from 1 to 9.

Speaker 2 [00:24:49] Nine.

Speaker 1 Well, why did you rate eight for the first statement, "my partner really listens to me," could you give concrete examples of why?

Speaker 2 [00:25:29] I think eight is high, she really listens to me. I said eight because sometimes listening is not understanding, right? So that's it. But [Partner's Name] listens to me, but she doesn't completely understand what I mean. But I don't think it's because of. How can I say? Lack of willingness or negligence. No, sometimes she just doesn't understand.

Speaker 1 [00:26:07] And regarding the other one, can you give examples of why you chose nine?

Speaker 2 [00:26:16] My partner cares about my needs. Because [Partner's Name] respects my space. If I have something to do, she understands. So the reciprocity is true. And if she has something to do, I understand too. I think that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:26:51] Well, the next question, if you feel comfortable and if not, you can interrupt. But I would like to ask about your physical intimacy. Have you been having sexual relations lately?

Speaker 2 [00:27:09] Yes. It froze here. But yes, did you hear?

Speaker 1 [00:27:19] Okay, you answered yes. How satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker 2 [00:27:30] I am quite satisfied. It's calm.

Speaker 1 [00:27:38] Why do you think that? Why are you satisfied?

Speaker 2 [00:27:43] Why am I satisfied? I believe we have an active and good sex life, calm and always, practically every week. Practically. And that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:28:09] I will share here again. Now, this other statement, "how satisfied are you with your relationship," from completely dissatisfied to completely satisfied, which would you rate?

Speaker 2 [00:28:36] Completely satisfied. The last one.

Speaker 1 [00:28:41] You said completely satisfied, how would you rate it on a scale from 0 to 10? 0, not satisfied at all, 10, completely.

Speaker 2 [00:29:00] 10, completely satisfied.

Speaker 1 [00:29:17] Could you say why ten, not nine?

Speaker 2 [00:29:27] I am very satisfied with everything I said, so there's no reason not to be. I don't see any hindrance. I could say nine because it can always improve, but I feel satisfied.

Speaker 1 [00:30:03] Okay, we are almost at the end. I wanted to summarize what was said and count on your help. Well, you met, you've been together for about [1-5] years, [1-5] years and [1-5] months. You've been dating for [1-5] years, [1-5] months. You were hooking up for about [6-10] months before.

Speaker 2 [00:30:31] About [6-10], around there. [6-10]. [6-10]. Yes, around there.

Speaker 1 [00:30:38] Okay, you met through circles. You had the same circle of friends, mutual friends. You didn't study together, but the circle of friends brought you closer. You said your current relationship is healthier compared to your friends and also better compared to your previous relationships?

Speaker 2 [00:31:09] For sure.

Speaker 1 [00:31:18] You mentioned that you consider it important, you consider the relationship as quality relationships, that have companionship, quality time, intimacy, and low quality would be disrespect.

Speaker 2 [00:31:34] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:31:35] Also if someone important includes me in the routine. Loyalty. Among disagreements. You said the way to resolve is given in. And you also talked a lot about communication as relationship maintenance, talking, dialogue. You said that you have become a better person with the relationship and that you also consider this about her. You help each other in studies, lift each other, help with financial problems. You said you have become more mature, and she has become more responsible. Well, that's it. Is there anything else you would like to add?

Speaker 2 [00:32:47] I think that was complete.

Speaker 1 [00:32:50] Good! Did she send it to you?

Speaker 2 [00:32:56] She sent the document, I signed it and I'm sending it back to her.

Speaker 1 [00:32:59] Okay, yes.

Speaker 2 [00:33:01] But send it to me.

Speaker 1 [00:33:02] Sure, send it. Something that I.

Speaker 2 [00:33:05] I did it through the blog, alright.

Speaker 1 [00:33:10] There's that. There it talks a bit about the ways of sharing the interview data, but here I would like to confirm with you. We have two options for data sharing.

Speaker 2 [00:33:30] But what would it be?

Speaker 1 [00:33:34] But it will also be totally ethical. It will only be among researchers, it will only be for discussion or for the research itself. The first option is that excerpts from the transcription can be shared as long as they are not identifiable. The non-identifiable transcription can be read by other researchers. This is a more conservative way of dealing with it.

Speaker 2 [00:34:03] The first one, the complete transcription.

Speaker 1 [00:34:06] Yes. The second will also, will leave the entire transcription to be reviewed so that sensitive, possibly identifiable excerpts can be anonymized. Despite this option, there is a minimal chance that someone who knows you well can associate the information with you. And again, no identifiable information will be shared. Did you choose this one or the other one?

Speaker 2 [00:34:35] I chose the first one, the complete one. I already signed it, she said she sent it to you.

Speaker 1 [00:34:55] Well, that's it. Thank you very much for participating. I would also like to inform you that this research is being conducted in the Philippines, Netherlands, France, and the United States.

Speaker 2 [00:35:04] How does this research work? What will be the result? A study?

Speaker 1 [00:35:12] Yes. Afterward, I will send her a message with the data, where it can be seen too. And when it is released, I can contact you for when it's published so you can look at it.

Speaker 2 [00:35:40] Alright.

Speaker 1 [00:35:41] I would also like to ask if you have any couple friends you could indicate, who you think could participate.

Speaker 2 [00:35:51] Did she already indicate someone, do you know?

Speaker 1 [00:35:54] She said she would see about it.

Speaker 2 [00:35:56] Right, I don't know. I really don't know. I can see with a friend, but it will depend on whether they accept. But because I didn't talk before. But I can talk to them and if anything, I can ask my girlfriend to give you their contact.

Speaker 1 [00:36:13] Thanks a lot! So that's it. Thank you very much.

Speaker 2 [00:36:18] You're welcome. Bye, bye! Good night.

Speaker 1 [00:36:20] Good night!
