

Speaker 1 [00:00:03] In the beginning. Alright, I'm starting this process now. Before we begin the interview itself, I just wanted to show you a quick document with our commitment - form so you can - briefly review and read about the research itself, but the main point is to show you and get your - obtain your authorization for the recording. I know you've already given it to me, but I need it to be registered, so I'll show you. You'll understand, and I'll explain it quickly.

Speaker 2 [00:00:36] Quickly.

Speaker 1 [00:00:43] Can you see it?

Speaker 2 [00:00:46] Always.

Speaker 1 [00:00:48] So - in our document, we explain - briefly. We are conducting an exploratory study - titled A Multicultural Investigation into the Conceptualization and Measurement of Relationship Quality, which seeks to understand what [Nationality] couples consider a good relationship. So, - below, if you agree to participate, the interview should last around 40 minutes and is entirely voluntary. You can - interrupt the interview at any time if you no longer wish to participate. And down here we have noted. I give my consent for the audio to be recorded. So you give me or do not give me consent as - for this. And the second part says I agree with how the data will be shared. So you have the option here to tell me how you prefer the data to be shared. The first option is the complete transcription except for sensitive information, which you will see during the interview. What information this is, and that can be shared. In the second option, all transcribed excerpts can be shared, provided that you cannot be identified. Note that in both the first and second options, if it's not clearly written, you remain anonymous to us. The only difference is that the first option will be fully transcribed except for the sensitive information, which you'll see throughout the interview. - In the second option the complete transcription. You can tell me which option you prefer.

Speaker 1 [00:02:20] Complete?

Speaker 2 [00:02:20] Complete?

Speaker 1 [00:02:22] That's more correct? No problem there.

Speaker 1 [00:02:25] You can - revise this at the end of the interview, and - you will have access to the questions. Great. Since [Partner's Name] has already sent me your email, I will send you the meeting link there. I will send you this consent form after the interview. And I need you to send it back to me here, indicating yes, as you gave me the recording authorization and with your signature. Okay?

Speaker 2 [00:02:52] Uh-huh.

Speaker 1 [00:02:53] Great.

Speaker 2 [00:02:54] So.

Speaker 1 [00:02:57] I'll stop sharing this screen here and start with the questions.

Speaker 2 [00:03:02] What are you studying? Hi? This and this research? Within what field?

Speaker 2 [00:03:08] What?

Speaker 1 [00:03:10] Which course?

Speaker 1 [00:03:12] Oh, well, I'm a [program] student, not - [program], but I am within the same institute.

Speaker 2 [00:03:17] From [program] there.

Speaker 2 [00:03:20] Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:03:24] So I'll start with some basic questions. How old are you?

Speaker 2 [00:03:28] [31-35].

Speaker 1 [00:03:29] [31-35]. How long have you and your partner been together?

Speaker 2 [00:03:36] Dating for [1-5] years and living together for a little over [1-5] years.

Speaker 1 [00:03:41] Do you have any children? - Who do you currently live with?

Speaker 2 [00:03:47] With my partner [Partner's Name].

Speaker 1 [00:03:51] What is your main source of income, and what is your current profession?

Speaker 2 [00:03:55] My income is from...

Speaker 1 [00:03:57] Your current profession?

Speaker 2 [00:03:59] I am a [occupation], and my main source of income is the [company] where I currently work.

Speaker 1 [00:04:08] Well, before starting with the questions about the relationship itself, how would you like me to refer to your partner? Partner, girlfriend, partner itself, or by name? - Could you share the story of your relationship with her?

Speaker 2 [00:04:30] Sure.

Speaker 2 [00:04:31] She was my [occupation] in [Year], and at that time, I was dating another person who was also a woman. Nothing ever happened. I was always very playful with everyone.

Speaker 2 [00:04:45] Always in.

Speaker 2 [00:04:48] The sense of calling them beautiful, teasing them playfully. And with her, it was no different. At the end of that year, when we worked together in the same room, I broke up with my girlfriend in [Month], and it wasn't because of her. I felt nothing for her besides friendship. At the end of the year, we traveled together, me, her, and the other [occupation]. I had [1-5] [occupation] at that time. We traveled the [1-5] of us, and nothing happened. It was all normal. The following year, during [Event], we all went out for a party, my [family member], my [family member], and her [family member]. And in the - midst of the fun, I was already drunk, and she was too. I ended up kissing her. The next day, we met up, and it started. Since we already knew each other and had a lot of intimacy, knowing a lot about each other's profiles, there wasn't much choice. And that was it. We started dating in [Month].

Speaker 1 [00:05:56] I understand. - How would you compare the quality of your relationship - with that of your friends?

Speaker 2 [00:06:04] Of my friends?

Speaker 1 [00:06:05] Yes, the relationships of your friends based on what you observe.

Speaker 2 [00:06:10] I think comparison.

Speaker 2 [00:06:13] Um.

Speaker 2 [00:06:13] It's bit naive because everyone has their own experiences and - - burdens - to a relationship. From what I know, from what I expect of a good relationship, from my experience, etc., I think it is a very good relationship compared to others.

Speaker 2 [00:06:26] For me.

Speaker 2 [00:06:27] I can say- compared to others, but for me.

Speaker 2 [00:06:35] It is ideal.

Speaker 1 [00:06:39] And do you mind telling me how many romantic partners you have had?

Speaker 2 [00:06:45] Romantic relationships or just sexual relationships?

Speaker 1 [00:06:49] It's up to you. However you understand romantic. You choose, basically.

Speaker 2 [00:07:00] I've had [1-5] relationships.

Speaker 2 [00:07:01] Romantic.

Speaker 2 [00:07:03] [1-5] with men and [1-5] with women.

Speaker 1 [00:07:08] And how would you compare the quality of your current relationship to your previous ones?

Speaker 2 [00:07:18] My first relationship with a man, I started dating when I was an adult. No, that's not true. My first relationship was when I was [16-20], [16-20] or [16-20] years old. It wasn't very good. First relationship, older guy, so different expectations. My second relationship lasted only [1-5] months. The first and second.

Speaker 2 [00:07:42] Because.

Speaker 2 [00:07:43] The second relationship was very good. He was a very nice guy. He understood and was already understanding my preference. So, he ended it very peacefully, saying, "I think you should go after what you really like, face it, you have to face it," and so on. So it was very nice of him. My third relationship, the first with a woman, lasted [1-5] years. It was good because it was my first relationship with a woman, and I finally saw that I liked it. But when the euphoria of finally coming out as gay passed, my parents were okay, society was okay. It took about [1-5] years for my father to - become more comfortable with our relationship, and I could - more attention to our relationship itself. It- - was challenging to navigate everything happening at once. So, when I could focus solely on my relationship with her, it didn't last much longer.

Speaker 2 [00:08:57] Because.

Speaker 2 [00:08:59] It was based on a lot of jealousy and inexperience from both sides. I had never dated a woman, and neither had she.

Speaker 2 [00:09:06] So it was good while it lasted.

Speaker 2 [00:09:09] But when it ended, it wasn't good anymore. My current relationship is what I've always idealized - and what I have now.

Speaker 2 [00:09:26] Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:09:27] I understand. So, for you, what makes a relationship have high quality and low quality?

Speaker 2 [00:09:34] High quality, for sure, is respect.

Speaker 2 [00:09:38] Mutual respect and.

Speaker 2 [00:09:40] - Understanding each other's limits. When both reach their limits, knowing how to step back, breathe, and - reassess.. This is what makes a relationship better. And what makes it worse is disrespect, which has a wide range from betrayals to humiliations. I think the key word is respect.

Speaker 1 [00:10:23] When would you say your relationship is respectful, making it concrete?

Speaker 2 [00:10:34] In my relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:10:34] In your relationship.

Speaker 2 [00:10:37] By continuing to be the same person I was when she met me. I keep joking with people as I did before, in front of her, and she doesn't mind, understanding it doesn't reflect anything. It's just my way of joking.

Speaker 1 [00:11:01] I see. And for you, what is most important in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:11:07] Besides respect.

Speaker 1 [00:11:09] And without respect.

Speaker 2 [00:11:12] There is.

Speaker 2 [00:11:15] Respect, as I said, is very broad. It covers everything, from waking up and noticing if the partner had a bad night or day and preparing breakfast, to understanding when they are not in the mood for sex and opting for not having it, and no one gets upset. In heterosexual relationships, this - can be more complicated. From my experience and hearing others, it feels like an obligation. In this case-with [Partner's Name], it's different. So, I wouldn't know - which other word - to use besides respect.

Speaker 1 [00:12:08] I see. So for you, you would say that respect is really the most important thing?

Speaker 2 [00:12:13] For sure.

Speaker 2 [00:12:15] And patience, because to understand limits, you need patience.

Speaker 1 [00:12:20] Yes. And for you, what is love? It's a complex question.

Speaker 2 [00:12:26] It's - a very complex - issue because - the etymology of the word love, there is a vast literature. I love my cat. I love my parents, [Partner's Name], my siblings. So, it's a big word. I think love is a summary of several words that make relationships, not just romantic ones.

Speaker 2 [00:12:52] Good.

Speaker 2 [00:12:54] So respect, patience, companionship, the feeling of freedom.

Speaker 2 [00:13:03] Because I think.

Speaker 2 [00:13:05] Love goes beyond - merely being with someone. It's about two people together, not one person owning the other.

Speaker 2 [00:13:19] You are excellent.

Speaker 1 [00:13:21] Yes, you are. So, thinking about all these aspects, how important would you say love is in a relationship for you?

Speaker 2 [00:13:34] 100%, because, as I said, love -encompasses all of this. I think you reach a point where you always have this discussion about love and passion, which are two different things. They really are. You can maintain a relationship without passion, but not without love. Passion is something that comes and goes. Some days you are passionate, eager to show it, and other days you just love, wanting to play a video game, eat pizza together. I think love is more important but also more constant than passion. - It's essential because it -encompasses everything necessary to accept the relationship, to accept the other person within the relationship.

Speaker 2 [00:14:26] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:14:27] And how do you know that [Partner's Name] loves you?

Speaker 2 [00:14:33] She tells me. In our relationship, we are very honest, so I believe her.

Speaker 2 [00:14:42] She doesn't love me.

Speaker 2 [00:14:46] But it's not untrue. It's about the - everyday things, understanding limits- and respecting each other's limits. I wouldn't say it's adapting because it sounds harsh to say someone changed for another, but it's not like that. It's adapting to a routine that works well for both.

Speaker 2 [00:15:11] So.

Speaker 2 [00:15:14] For me, it's that. It's hard to pinpoint one thing, but it's in the day-to-day interactions.

Speaker 2 [00:15:21] Knowing if.

Speaker 1 [00:15:24] I see. And regarding conflict, what challenges do you face in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:15:35] Our individual experiences, like her having trouble expressing herself when upset, and I explode when I get nervous. But we've never been aggressive towards each other, neither with words nor physically. It's more about not knowing how to express ourselves in a way the other understands. -This is common in any human communication. Love and the desire to be understood in the best way come into play here. So our conflicts, when we have calm eyes, are different from many others I know. Of course, we don't always think clearly, and something may be said, but we've never been aggressive, never used swear words at each other, even in anger. Our conflicts are peaceful, if that makes sense.

Speaker 1 [00:16:51] How often do they happen, do you think?

Speaker 2 [00:16:56] Very rarely, very rarely. It's -uncommon for us to have a conflict.

Speaker 2 [00:17:01] Uh.

Speaker 2 [00:17:03] Because I understand conflict as thinking differently and trying to argue.

Speaker 2 [00:17:11] That's conflict.

Speaker 2 [00:17:13] Now, fights because someone did something the other didn't like or vice versa, I think - that's different.

Speaker 2 [00:17:22] Yeah.

Speaker 2 [00:17:24] Conflict is when we disagree. It's rare for us to disagree. When she does something that bothers me or vice versa, she's learning to express it, and I'm learning to read when she does, as it's new for her. We're - getting better at this.. So our frequency of conflicts or fights is very low.

Speaker 2 [00:17:29] And when.

Speaker 2 [00:17:30] She does something that.

Speaker 2 [00:17:31] Bothers me.

Speaker 2 [00:17:32] Or I do something that bothers her. She is learning to express it, and I am learning to read when she expresses it as she is currently doing, something she wasn't used to doing. We are improving on that as well, and vice versa. I also have my own issues - - with feeling contradicted. So, I think our frequency of conflicts and arguments is very low.

Speaker 1 [00:18:05] Besides the issue you mentioned about her having difficulty expressing herself and you using the term exploding in relation to yourself. Could you tell me more about these? No, sorry, about what else these disagreements are about, what are the reasons for these disagreements often?

Speaker 2 [00:18:29] I think there are two very common subjects for disagreements: [redacted].

Speaker 2 [00:18:52] She loves it.

Speaker 2 [00:18:53] - s-She spends all day with children, gets in the car, finally with an adult, and wants to talk about her day. - I spend all day working, get in the car, and the last thing I want to hear about is work. - Since we work in the same place. So for me, it's annoying, but for her, it's great. - -A major point of our disagreements, our arguments, is [Name], I don't want to talk about work or hear about work. - She, in turn, gets anxious about not hearing anything from me. You know how a mother, that child at school talks about school all the time, and the mother gets pissed off. It's something like that with our work.

Speaker 2 [00:19:37] And she gets.

Speaker 2 [00:19:38] It's impossible- because in our work with children, it's like, how was your class today? Because so-and-so did this or that, and I have to deal with it all and then still hear how she dealt with the drama. But it's okay- because -we've learned to communicate. When she sees I have a grumpy face, she knows to stop. We've learned that I have to say today, I'm at my limit, I don't want to hear it.

Speaker 2 [00:20:05] And she stops.

Speaker 2 [00:20:11] On days I don't want to hear it- but I see she's very stressed. For me, that's an example of love when she's very anxious and wants to talk, and even if I don't want to listen, I don't say anything and let her talk. So, there are days like that, and we each give in a little, and we get back home in peace, because from [Location] to [Location], it's a long drive, so we have a lot of time to de-stress.

Speaker 2 [00:20:40] It's far.

Speaker 1 [00:20:43] And you've already talked about how you resolve these disagreements. But would you say there are other strategies you use to maintain the relationship and resolve these conflicts?

Speaker 2 [00:20:56] Besides talking, I don't see another strategy. I think words are very important. In our life experiences before we met, words are important to me, they are important to her. So, this is the best way we resolve our issues, literally talking about what needs to be said.

Speaker 2 [00:21:21] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:21:22] -w-Would you say your relationship is good for you? -Why?

Speaker 2 [00:21:28] It's good, it's good because we are very close partners. You know when you reach a point in the relationship where you can sit on the couch next to each other and it's not an awkward silence? Our silence is not awkward. So, I would say my relationship is good because it has reached this point of not having awkward silences. There is no obligation to entertain each other all the time. There are things I like to do and things she likes to do. Usually, they are the same things that we have developed over the course of the relationship, similar tastes.

Speaker 2 [00:22:12] And.

Speaker 2 [00:22:13] I don't like to go out, and she also doesn't like to go - either.. I like to go out more than her.

Speaker 2 [00:22:18] And.

Speaker 2 [00:22:19] There is no problem when I want to go out and she doesn't, for me to go out and she stays home. To give an example, I actually go out more than her. But the opposite is also no problem if she goes out and I stay home.

Speaker 2 [00:22:34] So, I don't see.

Speaker 2 [00:22:39] Anything beyond that that we can do to make our relationship better than it is. Understanding- and patience make everything is very peaceful.

Speaker 2 [00:22:49] Very peaceful. Got it.

Speaker 1 [00:22:53] And you mentioned a while ago that you think no one changes because of another person in a relationship. This brings a question that involves this: Do you believe your relationship has changed anything in you, and how?

Speaker 2 [00:23:09] I don't think people change for a relationship. That was my point. Saying someone needs to change for another person is too strong. But I think people change together and understand each other, coming to a consensus about what is best for both. So, what changed in me- is that.

Speaker 2 [00:23:38] Is.

Speaker 2 [00:23:39] That I didn't have a relationship. I've always been a very calm person because - I trust myself.. So, I start from the principle of trust in any other person. In my last relationship, there was infidelity on the part of my girlfriend, and she tried to hide it, but I found out. It was very obvious. I saw conversations, etc., and that turned the rest of our relationship into mistrust. So, when she went out alone, I said no way. She already felt guilty and let me know, you know? So, it wasn't very good. I changed.

Speaker 2 [00:24:20] With her.

Speaker 2 [00:24:21] I became a jealous person, something I am not, a trait I don't have. And now I'm back to being that calm person without jealousy.

Speaker 1 [00:24:36] So would you say that [Partner's Name] also changed in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:24:43] Compared to her previous relationships, I can't say - as I didn't know her then. But within our relationship, yes. We changed some attitudes.

Speaker 1 [00:24:55] And this is more in relation to your relationship itself.

Speaker 2 [00:25:00] Even because when we have conflicts or disagreements, we talk about what hurts or makes the other person insecure. We try not to repeat it.

Speaker 2 [00:25:12] And.

Speaker 2 [00:25:14] Let me - provide a more concrete example. A concrete example is [redacted]. But nowadays, she just takes a deep breath and doesn't get upset. It's a change.

Speaker 2 [00:25:30] A change.

Speaker 2 [00:25:32] And I, on the other hand, try to talk more about myself and my work a bit. I try to talk more, but I am not a person who likes to go into details. I get lazy. What I've experienced is my experience, and that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:25:49] So, regarding security in the relationship, do you feel secure in your relationship? What makes you feel secure or not?

Speaker 2 [00:26:01] I feel completely secure. What makes me feel secure is the calmness and transparency we always have.

Speaker 2 [00:26:10] With each other.

Speaker 2 [00:26:12] When there is a joke from my side or hers, which we both tend to do.

Speaker 2 [00:26:21] And.

Speaker 2 [00:26:22] If I think, oh, that was a bit too much, I ask her if it bothered her, and she honestly tells me if it did. So, I think the calmness in our relationship makes me feel very secure.

Speaker 1 [00:26:35] Would you say that this joking situation, for example, would be an example of this security, transparency, and care you mentioned?

Speaker 2 [00:26:44] Absolutely.

Speaker 2 [00:26:46] So much so that when we joke around, people look at her to see her reaction, and they get embarrassed until they realize we are joking. Then she turns and says, "I am also single," or something like that. The people around us feel more embarrassed than we do, which only makes the joke even funnier.

Speaker 1 [00:27:09] I understand. I get it. Now, let me share the screen again to show you an image with some questions. You will understand when you see it.

Speaker 2 [00:27:27] Can you see it?

Speaker 1 [00:27:28] Can you see it?

Speaker 2 [00:27:30] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:27:32] -Here we have the statement "My partner really listens to me." I would like you to tell me on this scale from 1 being not at all true to 9 being completely true how much you agree with this statement.

Speaker 2 [00:27:45] Nine.

Speaker 1 [00:27:47] Nine. The same with this statement below. "My partner is concerned about my needs." - How would you rate this?"

Speaker 2 [00:27:56] Nine as well.

Speaker 1 [00:27:59] And can you explain why you chose nine for the first statement, "My partner really listens to me?"

Speaker 2 [00:28:08] Because she really listens to everything I say, what bothers me, what I would like to do or experience. She lives it with me. She tries to explain her side of things so that what bothers me doesn't bother me anymore.

Speaker 2 [00:28:28] No.

Speaker 1 [00:28:30] The same with the second statement, "My partner is concerned about my needs." Could you explain why you gave it a nine?

Speaker 2 [00:28:41] It's cute, but every day she asks if I slept well.

Speaker 2 [00:28:46] I don't know.

Speaker 2 [00:28:48] Even though we always have lunch together, she still asks if I ate well. These are examples from daily life that are part of my needs.

Speaker 2 [00:29:02] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:29:05] - I'll stop sharing this screen for now, but - I'll come back to it shortly with more questions. There are two questions here. If you feel comfortable, you can answer. They are about your physical intimacy. Is that okay?

Speaker 2 [00:29:22] Physical?

Speaker 1 [00:29:23] Physical intimacy.

Speaker 2 [00:29:25] Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:29:27] - First, have you had sexual relations - recently?

Speaker 2 [00:29:31] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:29:33] How satisfied are you with your sex life, - and why?

Speaker 2 [00:29:39] It's not 100%, because whenever we feel like it, we do it. When she feels like it, we do it. I don't feel obligated, and she doesn't feel obligated either.

Speaker 2 [00:29:51] So, for me.

Speaker 2 [00:29:54] Not always when I feel like it because then it would become an obligation.

Speaker 1 [00:29:59] You mentioned.

Speaker 2 [00:30:00] I don't feel extremely frustrated when I want to, and she doesn't. There is no frustration - in this regard.. I understand and leave it for another day. And that's okay. I think in a sex life, not having frustration is good.

Speaker 2 [00:30:16] Uh-huh.

Speaker 2 [00:30:18] It means having a good frequency.

Speaker 1 [00:30:20] I see. Those were the only two questions about that, and I will return to the scale screen quickly. Oops, I shared the wrong - screen. Let me change it here.

Speaker 2 [00:30:35] It's funny that you were careful talking about sex. It's my favorite topic.

Speaker 1 [00:30:40] Because it's important to note that some people might not respond to it.

Speaker 2 [00:30:45] Right?

Speaker 2 [00:30:45] - However, it is a part of a relationship. How can you talk about a romantic relationship without talking about sex?

Speaker 2 [00:30:52] Uh-huh.

Speaker 1 [00:30:58] Can you see it now?

Speaker 2 [00:30:58] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:31:01] Alright. Regarding - your satisfaction with the relationship, can you indicate one of these phrases as your response?

Speaker 2 [00:31:10] Completely. - The only reason I'm not more satisfied is because she isn't wealthy, which could have made it even better.

Speaker 1 [00:31:13] So, completely satisfied?

Speaker 2 [00:31:16] Completely.

Speaker 1 [00:31:19] And within completely satisfied, how would you rate your relationship satisfaction on this scale, from zero being not at all satisfied to ten being completely satisfied?

Speaker 2 [00:31:35] Like the same question?

Speaker 1 [00:31:39] No, not really. Because people sometimes, when presented with a scale, might respond differently. Someone could say they are completely satisfied but then rate it as a nine, for instance. Do you understand?

Speaker 2 [00:32:19] I think when you reach this level of tranquility, of not feeling frustration or obligation in a relationship, when obligations are natural, like respect is an obligation within us, patience is an obligation within the relationship. When we don't stop to think of these as obligations, but as natural things that make the relationship smooth, I think it falls into this scale. Ten. Saying to look at a relationship as a whole, there are days that aren't good and days that are. It's like a roller coaster, but we are talking about the relationship as a whole, not day by day. Obviously, there are stressful days and conflict days. But generally speaking, we manage to resolve conflicts, and they don't haunt our future conflicts.

Speaker 2 [00:33:27] Conflicts.

Speaker 2 [00:33:28] Don't bring things up again. We don't bring up past conflicts. So, I think it's very satisfactory to move forward and not have to touch on these issues later. Once you have moved past it, the relationship is very satisfactory to me, completely.

Speaker 1 [00:34:05] Alright. We are finishing the interview, and I wanted to summarize what you said. I noted some terms here. You talked a lot about the importance of respect, patience, transparency, care, and partnership. You mentioned love, the feeling of freedom. I wanted to ask if there is anything else you'd like to add, anything I didn't ask, any detail I missed?

Speaker 2 [00:34:41] - I don't think so. One thing I have experienced, I mentioned it to my first girlfriend and [Partner's Name], is that within our families, one shouldn't meddle.

Speaker 2 [00:34:55] And.

Speaker 2 [00:34:57] - Offer opinions.

Speaker 2 [00:34:58] For example.

Speaker 2 [00:34:59] When we think something doesn't fit in a relationship or homoaffective relationship. So, when I came out as gay, only I knew how to deal with my parents, to wait for them, etc., to wait for their time. The same goes for [Partner's Name]. I don't have to give any opinion on whether her parents should accept or not, how long she should wait.

Speaker 2 [00:35:28] To act.

Speaker 2 [00:35:30] To act? Obviously, some things make me more anxious because I have already – achieved a level of acceptance with my family.

Speaker 2 [00:35:37] - That's very nice.

Speaker 2 [00:35:39] - I've been in a relationship for [1-5] years, and we - also seek acceptance from our partner's family too. But I think when dealing with the partner's family, it's very important to respect the partner's history, the family's history. So, the respect within the relationship, I think, extends to everything, to the partner's history, the family's history, and experiences. So, that's an important detail. We - discussed a lot about us, but – those relationship is also built on other relationships, including our relationships with our families, which - should also be respected.

Speaker 2 [00:36:25] Understood.

Speaker 1 [00:36:27] Great. - I - want to thank you for participating and ask you two more things. First, I want to ask you again, at the beginning of the interview, I asked about collecting the data, the information you wanted to keep your choice of being able to transcribe everything. If you want to change.

Speaker 2 [00:36:49] You can transcribe.

Speaker 2 [00:36:49] Everything.

Speaker 1 [00:36:50] Great. - I also need one more thing: a referral.. If you could refer me to one or two people you know who could refer me to an LGBT couple or a non-monogamous couple.

Speaker 2 [00:37:07] If you know both.

Speaker 2 [00:37:09] So, two people who know one of these? I know a non-monogamous couple and another homoaffective couple.

Speaker 1 [00:37:17] If you could refer me to someone who knows a couple, it could even be a common person who knows the couple you mentioned because we were advised to ask for the contact of someone who knows a couple, not to ask directly to interview a couple. Did that make sense?

Speaker 2 [00:37:44] It doesn't make much sense because - if I know the couple, I can refer the non-monogamous couple directly.

Speaker 1 [00:37:50] Yes, but it was advised for us to do it differently, to keep some distance. If you know someone who knows the couple and could tell them about participating in an interview, that would be better.

Speaker 2 [00:38:05] The person I refer to.

Speaker 1 [00:38:10] You can refer me to someone or two people who you think know an LGBT couple or a non-monogamous couple who would want to be interviewed. Does that make sense?

Speaker 2 [00:38:24] Yes?

Speaker 1 [00:38:25] If you know someone who can refer me to a couple and you can let them know about participating in an interview, I can indicate your contact so you can refer me to a couple. Let me explain why we do it this way.

Speaker 2 [00:38:38] This is weird because I am.

Speaker 2 [00:38:41] - Homosexual.

Speaker 2 [00:38:42] Homosexual, and I know only same-sex couples. The person I refer to will probably refer.

Speaker 1 [00:38:51] Yes, it can happen. You can send me more than one contact for sure, but you can also talk to the person to ensure it's someone who knows another couple.

Speaker 2 [00:39:04] I need both.

Speaker 1 [00:39:09] You can send me their contact via email. I will send you the consent form document for you to sign, and you can send it back with the contact information. Or you can communicate with [Partner's Name] via [Social Media] since I have her [Social Media] number as well.

Speaker 2 [00:39:40] Sounds good.

Speaker 1 [00:39:42] Alright. [Name], thank you for participating.

Speaker 2 [00:39:49] Thank you. Good luck with your study.

Speaker 1 [00:39:53] Thank you. Goodbye.

Speaker 2 [00:39:54] Bye.
