

Speaker 1 [00:00:15] So let's start. How old are you?

Speaker 2 [00:00:21] I am [20-25]. I will be [20-25] now in [Month].

Speaker 1 [00:00:27] How long have you and your partner been together?

Speaker 2 [00:00:31] From the time of officially dating, it has been [1-5] years and [1-5] months, but we've been in a relationship for about [1-5] years, almost [1-5] years.

Speaker 1 [00:00:46] Do you have children?

Speaker 2 [00:00:48] No.

Speaker 1 [00:00:54] Who do you live with?

Speaker 2 [00:00:56] I live with my mother, my stepfather, my grandmother, and my [11-15]-year-old younger sister.

Speaker 1 [00:01:05] What is your main source of income?

Speaker 2 [00:01:11] I receive [support] from my father and I have an [occupation].

Speaker 1 [00:01:51] What is your current profession?

Speaker 2 [00:01:53] My profession is, I am a [occupation] and an [occupation], that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:01:58] What is your course?

Speaker 2 [00:01:58] [Program].

Speaker 1 [00:01:58] How would you like me to refer to your partner? For example, boyfriend?

Speaker 2 [00:02:14] He is my boyfriend, yes, boyfriend.

Speaker 1 [00:02:20] Can you tell me a little about your love story?

Speaker 2 [00:02:24] My love story wasn't anything extraordinary. [Partner's Name] and I already knew each other from the same social circles. Then, during the carnival of [Year], I hit on him, and we kissed for the first time. But afterward, I went to [Country] and lived there for about [6-10] months or so. I was studying [program] at [University] and then I returned to [City A] in the second semester of [Year] because I decided to study [program] at [University]. When I returned to [City A], I started going out with my friends again, and since he was part of my social circle, we met again. I was invited to his house with other friends to meet his new puppy, [Name]. Today [Name] is already grown. And then I started hitting on him again. The initiative was always mine. It was about [6-10] months without anything official, and in [Month] [Year], we started dating. We had been seeing each other for a long time. Then I told [Partner's Name], if you don't ask me to be your girlfriend, we will have to end this here. And then we started dating in [Month] [Year] until today.

Speaker 1 [00:03:48] Did you give him an ultimatum?

Speaker 2 [00:03:50] An ultimatum.

Speaker 1 [00:03:55] How would you compare the quality of your relationship to that of your friends?

Speaker 2 [00:04:01] I think my relationship has a much better quality than my friends'. I believe that I am a very picky person with my relationships. This is a sensitive topic because my mother's relationships are very troubled, so I always looked for something totally opposite to that. So I always looked for someone in a relationship who is very stable, respectful. I say this because, in conflict situations, it is always important, even when we are tense or hurt, to maintain respect for the other person. I also have some principles, like the person has to be someone who seeks to develop, work, study. And also in terms of trust. I do not speak ill of my relationship or my partner to others. Everything that really bothers me is something I only discuss with him. I don't air it outside the relationship. This is something I don't see much with my friends around me. Many people talk about their relationship or their partner's flaws to others. I see many people breaking up and getting back together, which is something I don't like. That's why I never broke up my relationship at any moment during these three years. I think when you decide to end it, it's a decision that has been a long time coming, and you really don't want to continue with that relationship anymore. So I never even came close to wanting to end a relationship. There is no need to break up. And I see that many of my friends are in this back and forth, back and forth. And I believe that this is my quality standard for romantic relationships.

Speaker 1 [00:06:13] Do you mind telling me how many romantic partners you've had?

Speaker 2 [00:06:23] Romantic partners? I've had [1-5]... serious relationship? Serious indeed? Only [1-5] before this, but it didn't last that long. It lasted almost [1-5]. In high school, I was [16-20] years old, my first boyfriend too. And I've had [1-5] or [1-5] romantic partners during school time. I think [1-5], [1-5] that I can really consider that marked me. The rest, no. I think before him, about [1-5] that we can consider.

Speaker 1 [00:07:01] How do you compare the quality of your current relationship with your previous relationships?

Speaker 2 [00:07:07] Wow, ten times better! No comparison, no comparison. It's because of age, because of contexts as well. I think what makes it is. But I won't take away the credit. I believe that the criteria I look for, that I seek in a relationship; to perpetuate in my relationship, they only exist because of the good and bad experiences I had before. I don't take away the credit, but today my relationship I think is ideal for me. I like it a lot.

Speaker 1 [00:07:47] You mentioned that there is a lot of respect, a lot of respect, a lot of partnership. What adjectives would you say make your relationship high-quality? What are the essential characteristics?

Speaker 2 [00:08:29] The essential characteristics? First, reciprocity. Support. Trust. And admiration and respect. I believe these are things that are very, I think, clichéd that people say, but I take them very seriously, very literally.

Speaker 1 [00:09:05] How do you understand that a relationship has these characteristics, has these adjectives? Like, how does it have to be, how does it have to be to have these adjectives that you consider essential in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:09:33] How does the relationship have to be to have these words? When you fall in love with a person, you are interested in a person, we have the sentimental part, we have the loving part, we have the passion part, we have the chemistry part, we have the sex part. These are very important things, but they have to be aligned with our life and our routine. Throughout our life, we have a lot of responsibility for study and work, and the relationship, to have these things that I consider essential, you have to... How can I explain? Your partner, besides the feeling and the emotional, has to be your friend. He has to be your supporter because in our life, we have the part of love, passion, and sex. But there are always incidents, there are always difficulties, there are always tribulations. And you have to be sure that the person you chose to be with you and who also chose you to be with her will be with you and for you in bad times. So they have to be this way because there is friendship before love, I believe. Before love, you have to have friendship and admiration.

Speaker 1 [00:11:30] When would you say your relationship had the most of these characteristics and alignment, friendship, and support? And when did it have the least of these characteristics? Examples.

Speaker 2 [00:11:50] When it had the least, it is a bit difficult to pinpoint an example, but I will consider it was the beginning of the relationship because we were in that test drive of how it is now to count on someone most of the time. And when I had the most, it was certainly from last year onwards, after my two years of dating, we went through the pandemic with less contact than before because of the lockdown. And I think I saw more of these characteristics because my greatest moments of vulnerability, panic attacks, anxiety, and hopelessness [Partner's Name] was the first person I turned to, and he was the best person to deal with me and never left my side. I think last year, for example, I gave up a big part of my social life to study for a very important exam, a public contest. And shortly before the exam, there was a car accident in my family that shook everyone a lot. And then, when I arrived to take the exam, I was very, very, very nervous, very anxious. It was my first panic attack after that exam. And then [Partner's Name] did something for me that I am very grateful for. He supported me, he welcomed me, and I think it was then that I had an insight that when tribulations come, that is when love really manifests. So I believe that this is the moment when all the premises I talked about relationships are the least and the most, respectively.

Speaker 1 [00:14:05] Well. You already commented on some of these aspects, but I wanted to ask you again in case you missed any that you didn't mention. What is most important in a relationship? Well, you've already said, but now more systematically.

Speaker 2 [00:14:26] Should I choose just one thing?

Speaker 1 [00:14:28] No. Not just one thing. What do you consider most important in general? Not necessarily just one thing.

Speaker 2 [00:14:39] There are many things. I think you have to have your feet on the ground. Like, even with a lot of sentimental involvement. Your relationship has to be something that adds to you, that helps you progress, evolve. It doesn't have to be something, it doesn't have to be a worrying thing, it doesn't have to be something that afflicts you, it doesn't have to be something you regret, and it doesn't have to be something that impedes you. It has to be something that is really there to complement you. So, this is both in the emotional sense and in the practical sense of life, you know. I can have the certainty that if in our relationship we need to set aside some of our time together to be able to study and work, this will be something that is possible to do because we know how to be down to earth. That even though we have a relationship and need to have dedicated time to each other, real life makes us sacrifice some things. And I think that's it. Your relationship has to complement you and be down to earth. That's what I think is most important. I think the most important thing is a peaceful love. It's very good. It's very good to have. This freedom, for sure. Wow, I don't know how people can stand it. Like, my God, I broke up this month, got back together next week, will break up again next week. Then they fight. Jealousy crises. Oh my God.

Speaker 1 [00:16:28] Yes, it's true, some relationships are always troubled.

Speaker 2 [00:16:32] Terrible. I have no patience for that. I don't like it, I don't want it, and I won't let my relationship have that because I have to study, I have to work, and these things shake our emotions too much. And I don't have time to be thinking about these things. I like to do everything knowing that we are studying here. Friday will come, and we will spend our time together, and everything will be fine. It's great to have a peaceful place.

Speaker 1 [00:17:00] Yes, true. And as you mentioned love in this talk, I wanted to ask you: what is love?

Speaker 2 [00:17:08] What is love? Oh, that's a complicated question. There are many types of love. I think romantic love, which is the love I feel for my boyfriend, besides involving attraction, involves making plans with this person in the long term. It involves being sure that you would sacrifice, sacrifice if necessary for them. Love is being able to be vulnerable with that person. I think the ideal romantic love is being able to be vulnerable with that person. To admit what afflicts you and even admit what makes you happy. I think romantic love is this, romantic love is being vulnerable and being willing to sacrifice for that person. That's it. I think that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:18:31] How important is love in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:18:34] How important is love in a relationship? Do I have to put it in numbers?

Speaker 1 [00:18:43] How important do you think love is in a relationship, not in numbers, but. How important do you consider it to be?

Speaker 2 [00:18:54] It's very important. It's almost everything, almost everything, because I think it's almost everything. Because love alone, love by itself, you feel and you are vulnerable and you admire is not enough. Because love also requires effort. It really requires action. It requires. How can I explain? These subjects are very abstract, it's very difficult to put into words but. It's not enough just to feel passion and emotion for that person; you have to really make an effort and want to build the relationship with them. And this is valid not only for romantic love. I think it is valid for other types of love as well. Maternal love, for example. Love for a friend, for example. It's not enough just to like your friend and be close to them. No. You have to take action to be there for them when they need you. You have to take action to help when help is needed. You have to take action to alert and give a scolding when necessary. So love is almost everything, like 99.9%, and the other 0.1%. They are very important too. But it's very important.

Speaker 1 [00:20:43] You've kind of already said this too, but I'll ask again: how do you know if your partner loves you?

Speaker 2 [00:20:52] How do I know that my partner loves me? First, because I learned that the way people show and receive love is different. I show my love in a way that my boyfriend does not show, and that doesn't mean he doesn't love me, it just reveals that he loves me in a different way. I think I know that [Partner's Name] loves me because he is a very, very, very shy person. He is a very introverted person. I have a great facility to talk about what I feel, he doesn't. So I know that when he talks, it's because he really wants to talk. I like to compare the way we show love because what is a whisper to me is a shout to him. So I think that's how I know he loves me because. It's very difficult for him to talk a lot, to show in a certain way. So I know that if he said it, it's because he really feels it.

Speaker 1 [00:22:06] What would be the challenges you face in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:22:11] Challenges. [Partner's Name] and I don't have many difficulties. I think a little thing that is somewhat divergent is that our personalities are very different. It's not a bad thing, but it's very different. I am very, very extroverted, and he is very, very introverted. And sometimes I really want to go out, unwind and dance somewhere, and he doesn't want to. His social battery is very low. He is. He finds all of that a nightmare. But he's there just because he loves me, just because he likes me, and so he goes. So I think the biggest difficulty we have sometimes is because. One has to submit to something they don't want. You don't want to go out or you don't want to meet a certain person. But we go because we like each other, not a very big difficulty. We have already talked about it, align it a lot, but still, it is a little bit annoying from time to time. But it's okay. Like, most of our life isn't partying and going out. So when we go out and party, we always balance. One time he went to a place I wanted to go, and he didn't. So next time I will go to the place he wants, and I don't want to so much. And that's fine. That's how it works.

Speaker 1 [00:23:41] Negotiating, right?

Speaker 2 [00:23:42] Negotiating.

Speaker 1 [00:23:46] Do you and your boyfriend have disagreements in the relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:23:50] Disagreements. Like what?

Speaker 1 [00:23:56] Well. I don't know, some difficulties you face.

Speaker 2 [00:24:07] I don't know. Sometimes debating with him irritates me a lot. Like we don't have. We have a disagreement like. Wow, something very worrying, but sometimes debating with him irritates me because. I can't explain. He is very annoying to debate with, but it's not a big flaw of his, it's just the way each of us talks.

Speaker 1 [00:24:43] Does it happen very often?

Speaker 2 [00:24:45] What?

Speaker 1 [00:24:46] Does it happen very often? These. These disagreements?

Speaker 2 [00:24:52] Not very often. And like, these disagreements are so mediocre that they don't even matter much because the topics of debate are the most random things possible. You know that Twitter topic that people turn into the most important subject in the world, even though in real life it doesn't matter that much?

Speaker 1 [00:25:11] Yes.

Speaker 2 [00:25:13] Then it turns into a heated debate and I lose patience. But it doesn't happen often, not so much. He is a person who loves debate. But it's not like that. Oh, my God!

Speaker 1 [00:25:30] I understand. How do you resolve it when it happens?

Speaker 2 [00:25:34] How do we resolve it? Like, okay, we've had a time when we debated about regional music prejudice. I don't know, like [Genre] from [Location] and [Genre] from [Location] And then, after the heated debate, I always tell him, oh [Partner's Name], the way you talk like this is disrespectful. And when you talk like this, you interrupt. When you talk like this, I feel like you are underestimating my knowledge. And then it gets better and rarely repeats. It's like that, it's communication. I think many people in relationships get very upset with something, even if it's something considered minor, and keep it to themselves. Then it turns into a snowball. Then you start to create antipathy towards the person for something you could have discussed and resolved before. So, even if it's a debate on a minor topic, if it bothered me, when it's over and it's just him and me, I won't say it in front of others, there's no need. I'll say, look, the way you talk like this, I didn't like it. And then we align it and it's fine.

Speaker 1 [00:26:54] Besides communication, what other ways do you use to maintain your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:27:01] Besides communication, spending time alone together. You have to spend time alone. Whether it's doing anything, cooking and eating together, listening to music, drinking wine. Actually, we can't even drink now because he started a bet saying that whoever drinks alcohol first will have to pay [Amount]. And I am an [occupation]; [Amount] is a lot of money for me. But we always take time to watch movies. Or I don't know, just swim in the pool, just the two of us, without having to invite anyone, cooking together. And it's good. I like to say that I think that love language thing is pseudoscience, but if it exists, his love language is quality time. So it's always good to spend time together, alone. I think it's essential because living with the person you are in a relationship with is very important; it carries a lot of weight, especially after living together, I think. I haven't reached that stage yet. Hopefully, I will, but it's important to live together.

Speaker 1 [00:28:12] Yes, for sure. Would you say your relationship is good for you?

Speaker 2 [00:28:21] I think so, right. It's very good, very good, very good indeed. It's great to be in love. I say. I also tell him that. It's a lot of luck. There are a lot of people who are in relationships in such different ways, my God, in such troubled ways, and I think it's a lot of luck for me. We are in a phase, a somewhat complicated phase of adult life, these [20-25] years are very much about work, employment, finishing college, and we are in the same sync, living the same things. And we are very lucky to have each other because we really strive for the relationship to work. I say strive not because, my God, it's very difficult, I need to strive, but because you have to be dedicated, you have to be devoted, and these things, when the person you like is in sync and really wants the same thing, it is a very easy and peaceful thing, and not everyone will have that luck. I'm very happy, my relationship makes me very happy.

Speaker 1 [00:29:40] You mentioned synchronicity, like moments in life, goals, and so on. Can you cite concrete examples of how your relationship is good for you, how these characteristics help you daily and so on?

Speaker 2 [00:30:18] How these characteristics help me daily? I think that. My relationship being good helps me to be an untroubled person. And I know that at the end of the day, I have someone for me, and I am also there for that person. This, this makes it much easier because. Amidst the heavy routine, you know that everything will be fine and that that person is welcoming you, and they know what you are going through because they are in the same, in the same routine. So this untroubledness helps me a lot. It helps me a lot. It's good to be sure, you know, something in your life. Like, I'm in college, but I don't know if I will get a job. I am planning this, but I don't know if it will work out, and. My relationship, no. I know everything is fine and will continue to be fine. It's peaceful, it's good. Having security.

Speaker 1 [00:31:41] Do you believe that this relationship changed anything in you?

Speaker 2 [00:31:47] It changed a lot.

Speaker 1 [00:31:49] In what way?

Speaker 2 [00:31:51] I think that. I used to care a lot, and I think I still do, but I used to care a lot about other people's perspectives about me, you know? And I also. I am a person who likes to attract a lot of attention. And now I think that today I don't have that need. Like, I just like it, I don't have the need to attract attention. In my relationship, it also changed. I am a more private person. I don't need to talk about everything in my life to other people. There is no need to be very exposed because there are certain things we have to keep to ourselves for it to work. Let me see what else. My relationship taught me to talk. Talk a lot about things, about problems, and about good feelings too. To speak more softly too, because I used to speak very loudly. I still do, but he helped me speak a little more softly too. He. He helped me to have more autonomy, much more autonomy. I used to like, and I still have a bit of a tendency, to want to please people. And today, I learned a lot about having a bit more autonomy in that. You don't need to please everyone, but it's good to do what is good for yourself, right? I think that's it.

Speaker 1 [00:33:30] Do you believe your partner has changed? Has your boyfriend changed during the relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:33:40] [Partner's Name] has changed, [Partner's Name] has changed. He talks more, while I speak more softly, he talks not louder, but he talks more. I believe he has more social skills, as he has to deal with being an introvert in more extroverted environments. He is a bit more open. He is not very open, I think like. I. He knows more about me than I do about him. Before I thought it was a problem. Today I don't think so because it's just the way people are. What else has [Partner's Name] changed? He dresses better, he dresses better and. He is more understanding. More communicative. I believe that's it, that's what he changed.

Speaker 1 [00:34:46] Do you feel safe in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:34:51] I do. As I said earlier, one good thing about it is having security.

Speaker 1 [00:35:00] You already mentioned it, but could you mention it again: What makes you feel safe in the relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:35:14] I think it is more a negative assumption. [Partner's Name] does not give me reasons to feel unsafe. He doesn't give me any. And I know that he is not doing anything secretly. He is not breaking my trust, but we are just living our lives, each one, and living our lives together. So he doesn't give me room. He doesn't give room for me to have distrust, you know? So. I believe it is a negative assumption. What gives me security is the absence of reasons to make me feel insecure.

Speaker 1 [00:35:59] I understand. Now I will share the screen, open the scale here for you to answer. Are you able to see?

Speaker 2 [00:36:43] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:36:47] On a scale of 1 to 9, how would you rate this statement? "My partner really listens to me."

Speaker 2 [00:37:23] Nine. I think he listens to me even more than I listen to him. I talk a lot.

Speaker 1 [00:37:37] And what about this one? "My partner cares about my needs."

Speaker 2 [00:37:44] Nine.

Speaker 1 Why did you give a nine for the first statement? Could you provide concrete examples of why?

Speaker 2 [00:38:10] Why my partner really listens to me?

Speaker 1 [00:38:13] Yes.

Speaker 2 [00:38:17] Because I have a lot of ease in talking about my feelings, and as we have been in a relationship for a long time, I have a lot of trust in him. Really, everything I want to vent about, you know? Like, when you are very down and want to vent to a friend, I can vent to [Partner's Name]. He really listens to everything. Everything. From me complaining about college to, I don't know, a family problem, he listens to everything.

Speaker 1 [00:38:52] Okay. And what about this one (my partner cares about my needs)?

Speaker 2 [00:38:59] Because he really dedicates himself to meeting what I need. So, like, I need. I need. I don't know, to rest from something, [Partner's Name]: okay, let's go to my house, you stay in my room, we'll do something, or I want to go out, I need to go out, I want to unwind. He: Okay, I'm picking you up with the car. I want to eat something sweet; he goes and buys sweets for me. And like, that's it. He cares about my, my needs. And it's not just with me; he is like this with everyone, even with friends. It's because we had a friend who broke up, and he was at college, and the girl called totally desperate, he went there, and she said she needed him. He left the class immediately. No matter the absence and everything. When you need it, he goes straight to you. He is a great friend; [Partner's Name] is very loyal. He is a great friend. Like, if you, [Name], tell him a secret and say "oh [Partner's Name] don't tell anyone," he won't even tell me as his girlfriend. He is that loyal. I even get indignant that I find out things only later, and he already knew, you know?

Speaker 1 [00:40:42] There aren't many people like that.

Speaker 2 [00:40:44] No, there aren't. But he keeps all kinds of secrets. Then I find out only later, when the person themselves went and told everyone, and he already knew.

Speaker 1 [00:40:56] Okay. Well, the next question. Anyway, if you feel comfortable answering. If it's not a sensitive topic. Otherwise, you can cut it off and so on. It's about your physical intimacy. Have you been having sexual relations lately?

Speaker 2 [00:41:17] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:41:20] How satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker 2 [00:41:25] Very. It's a bit embarrassing, but I'm fine. I'm fine. But because of communication as well. I think from the beginning to today, today is much better than in the beginning. But I think we adjust, we get to know each other. Intimacy is very important. And with intimacy, it's better too. Wow, I don't know how some people, I don't know, go out today, meet today, and do it on the same day. I think differently. I like that intimacy makes things better. I feel more comfortable. And since we've been in a relationship for many years, we can talk about what we like, what we don't like. Things improve, we get in sync. So I am very satisfied.

Speaker 1 [00:42:08] I was going to ask why you think this, about satisfaction. And you already started to answer, so if you want to continue.

Speaker 2 [00:42:17] I already did. I told you, I talk a lot.

Speaker 1 [00:42:22] So, like, is there anything else you would like to add about why you think this? Why do you consider yourself satisfied with your sex life?

Speaker 2 [00:42:33] I will praise my partner because. Relationships with men are a very, very complicated thing, and there is a thing in society. Now I will use geography. The orgasm gap, right, we know that I think the most sexually satisfied person in society is the heterosexual man. And then. And the least is the heterosexual woman. Homosexual women even surpass in this. So. The satisfaction is precisely because the sexual act is not just focused on him, on what he wants and what he needs. It's really a moment for both of us to feel good. For both of us to be satisfied and enjoy ourselves. And I know this is good because [Partner's Name] doesn't do it just because he wants to, just because he likes it, because he wants to get there and that's it. But it's not for both of us to know each other and satisfy each other. So this is also very difficult to find in heterosexual men. Unfortunately.

Speaker 1 [00:43:52] I will share the screen here again. Now this one, "how satisfied are you with this relationship?"

Speaker 2 [00:44:14] I am completely satisfied. I don't have much to complain about, no.

Speaker 1 [00:44:38] So you said you were completely satisfied. Again, on this other scale, if zero is not satisfied at all and ten, completely satisfied, where, which would you choose?

Speaker 2 [00:44:55] Ten.

Speaker 1 [00:44:57] Ten, right?

Speaker 2 [00:44:58] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:45:07] Why do you choose ten? Like, not nine.

Speaker 2 [00:45:13] I choose ten because I have no reservation that I have it's not because of our relationship. Let's say, my sex life could be better if we didn't live with our parents. This is not something about my relationship, it's something about our context, it's an external thing. So there's no reason for me to have a reservation about something that is not directly related to my relationship. These are external things that I think do not interfere in the relationship, in the context that it is, it is good. It satisfies me.

Speaker 1 [00:46:15] I would like to give a summary here and ask for your help on what we have gone through so far and if there is anything you would like to add or remove, anyway. You have been together for about [1-5] years, right?

Speaker 2 [00:46:35] Yes, it will be about [1-5] years in [Month] next year.

Speaker 1 [00:46:40] A relationship with characteristics that you mentioned are very important to consider, support, trust, and good communication. An alignment. You mentioned that he is very, very reliable, like an excellent partner for whatever you need. These are very important characteristics, you mentioned being down to earth. This complementarity helps and brings self-help, helping each other to evolve. And with what challenges? A bit of different personalities, but it doesn't reach the level of a challenge. You can deal with him being more introverted and you more extroverted. Also disagreements, you mentioned the debate. Ways to deal with the challenges, being able to reconcile things, balance a little, giving up on one thing, on another, submitting a little to what the other wants.

Speaker 2 [00:48:14] But it can't be completely. There are many people who completely give up their individuality, which each one brings in themselves, it doesn't work. I see it in relationships of my friends and family members that the person gives up so much of themselves that they end up thinking, My God, who was I that I stopped being? You can't give up everything, but you have to give up a little.

Speaker 1 [00:48:45] You said that the relationship changed you, making you want to appear less. As you said, in these words, speak a little more softly, that you increased your autonomy. It made you more private, as you said. As for him, he became more open, dresses better, more understanding.

Speaker 2 [00:49:12] You won't tell him this, right, otherwise he will keep annoying me.

Speaker 1 [00:49:16] No, no.

Speaker 2 [00:49:17] If you tell him, I will tell him in his face that he dresses better because of me.

Speaker 1 [00:49:23] Okay, you said you feel safe because there are no reasons not to feel. Well, that's it. Is there anything else you would like to add?

Speaker 2 [00:49:37] No. Like, what is the theme of the research again, is it perspectives on romantic relationships in general?

Speaker 1 [00:49:48] Yes, that's it, about the quality of relationships, romantic relationships.

Speaker 2 [00:49:54] So, I think quality in romantic relationships. And you, besides love, being a rational person. Maintaining synchronicity and good communication and not giving up your individuality but knowing how to sacrifice. I think this perspective of a relationship is very good. And I think another thing. Dating, you always have to think long term. I see many people dating and "oh, I'm dating here just to date. I have no intention of staying with this person for a long time," etc. Then I think, why? Why are you with this person? But yes, [Name], I think I will marry him, to be honest, we will end up getting married. I really want to. The end of college is coming, and it is dawning on me that I am becoming an adult, you know? Because at the beginning of the relationship I had to say let's dating. But yes, that's my perspective on relationship quality.

Speaker 1 [00:51:03] Okay, very good. So, thank you for your participation. Before we end, I would like to inform you how we will handle the data, with information. Well. I wanted you to choose one of these ways of sharing the information. First, it will be shared only among us and the research team. It is totally ethical. So the option. The first option is that excerpts from the transcription can be shared as long as they are not identifiable. The non-identifiable transcription can be read by other researchers, like we will remove parts that can identify you, you know, someone will read it, but they won't know it's you. This one is more, let's say, conservative, yes. Then the second option is that the transcription will be reviewed so that sensitive and possibly identifiable excerpts can be anonymized.

Speaker 2 [00:52:17] Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:52:18] Despite this option, there is a minimal chance that someone who knows you well can associate the information with you. And again, no identifiable information will be shared. But this one is a bit less rigid. Which one do you prefer? You choose.

Speaker 2 [00:52:39] Like, the options you gave me, I already forgot some of them, but is it similar to the consent form?

Speaker 1 [00:52:46] Yes, let me take a look at the form.

Speaker 2 [00:52:50] The one on the consent form I think I chose the second option that everything I said can be shared as long as anonymity is maintained. Understood? No problem.

Speaker 2 [00:53:14] Uhuh, right. So that's it. Thank you very much again. This research is also being conducted in the Philippines, Netherlands, France, and the United States, and to continue with it to be successful I would like to ask if you have more people to indicate, close people you think could answer.

Speaker 2 [00:53:38] I think not for now, but I can analyze it and then ask, and I can send you their contact, is that okay?

Speaker 1 [00:53:46] Okay, yes. So that's it. Thank you very much. And later, I will send you another message with some other data and so on. There will be a link where you can have access to the research results in the future.

Speaker 2 [00:54:05] When the research product comes out, send it over. I like an academic product too.

Speaker 1 [00:54:14] Wow, I think it will be a very interesting product.
