

Speaker1: [00:00:02] Hmm. How would you like us to refer to your partner? Do you have a preferred title? Girlfriend, partner, companion, wife? Is there...

Speaker2: [00:00:13] My wife, she's my wife.

Speaker1: [00:00:14] Your wife? Very well. How long have you been with your wife?

Speaker2: [00:00:20] Oh dear, it will be [50-55] years this year.

Speaker1: [00:00:23] [50-55] years. Well, I'd first like you to tell me about your love story, the relationship you currently have with your wife.

Speaker2: [00:00:35] Well, now, with [50-55] years of living together, it's a long story with all that it entails. As someone said, "life is not a long quiet river". In fact, he said life was a long quiet river. I say life is not a long quiet river, huh. Considering situations like work, health, children. Just living together with individuals is never easy. So in that regard, efforts must be made, questions asked, self-reflection done. Nothing is ever guaranteed, even after [50-55] years. You must always be prepared for something unexpected. So you must always question yourself. That's the idea.

Speaker1: [00:01:32] You said "Nothing is ever guaranteed".

Speaker2: [00:01:34] No.

Speaker1: [00:01:37] Hmm, I would like you to maybe tell me the circumstances of your meeting.

Speaker2: [00:01:45] We were very young. I lost my mom very early; she sadly passed away from cancer at the age of [40-45], you see. So, it's really early to lose your mother. My father took it very badly. So, I was in search of contact, affection, etc. We met very young, we got to know each other, and little by little, we bonded. We married young because... After recognizing the common points that made us compatible, we married very early, very young. I even had to get emancipated because I wasn't of legal age at the time. We got married, and everything has been well until now. There you go.

Speaker1: [00:02:53] Hmm. So I'm not quite sure I understood the exact circumstances under which you met.

Speaker2: [00:03:00] We met because at the time, we were in a religious community, and I was very drawn to religious matters. My mother was [Nationality], very [Religion], very practicing, so she instilled in me the values that religion can bring. It might be less true today because of many deviations, but we met in that way. Since we had common interests in spiritual matters, that's how we met.

Speaker1: [00:03:46] So you told me that everything has been well until today. Maybe you could go into detail a bit about how this relationship has developed from the beginning to today.

Speaker2: [00:04:01] We've always done everything together. That's what I often tell many people. With experience, we have always done everything together, discussed things together. When there is a problem, we try to solve it. When we feel that tension is rising because we don't always agree, we try to understand the other, why they react that way. Because there's always something in our individual journeys that has sensitized or blocked us, let's say. So, when faced with a situation, like we have been many times in [50-55] years, we always ask, "why such a reaction", "why does this person react in such a way", etc. That's a question we always ask ourselves, and I think my wife is the same. For our children, it's the same: understanding why they like this, why they don't like that, why they act in such a way, always questioning. Lots of communication. Unfortunately, even though we live in an era of communication, I sometimes worry about how people don't communicate anymore. We see couples who send each other texts to talk. That worries me a bit. Instead of talking to each other. So, dialogue, dialogue. When we notice a problem because the other person doesn't agree or reacts unexpectedly, we need to find out why. I think we must always question everything all the time. As I said earlier, nothing is ever guaranteed. Even if we thought certain things were, at some point, they need to be questioned and discussed. I think dialogue is the basis of life, not only in marriage but in everything: in a company, within a family, with neighbors, with colleagues. We need to talk to understand why someone reacts in a certain way to events. Many things can happen in a day or a night that might completely change our lives. For example, we learned that our neighbor was getting divorced. He came to tell us everything was fine, but suddenly, it's not. You see, everything can change quickly.

Speaker1: [00:06:56] Everything changes, everything can change quickly.

Speaker2: [00:06:59] Absolutely, absolutely. That's why I've always believed that nothing is guaranteed. Never. Even with experience, there are accidents. When people say it was an accident, well, yes, but we know how to do things, set things up, we have habits, we're professionals, but then there's the unexpected. It was an accident, yes, it was an accident. And it's the same in life. Regarding feelings, regarding our reactions, we might suddenly find ourselves in a situation where we or the other react unexpectedly. So we must always be ready for that, always be ready for a change.

Speaker1: [00:07:48] Yes, what you are telling me, you also apply it to couple relationships.

Speaker2: [00:07:53] Oh yes, absolutely. In a couple relationship, there might be... I don't know. You watch a movie, you find yourself in a situation, a friend tells you something that happened to them, etc. It raises questions, and in that case, it might challenge things we thought were settled. By saying, "I hadn't thought about this aspect," and then discussing it. Because sometimes it questions even things we thought were settled. Saying, "maybe it could be different." That's why dialogue is important. If we don't talk, we accumulate, we close off, and at some point, we say, "no, it's not working because this happened, and I didn't talk about it." So yes, we need to express everything we feel. Nowadays, especially since we're retired, we have opportunities to discuss at breakfast. I told you that our neighbor came yesterday to explain his new situation. We discussed it: how could it have happened? What bothers you? We don't know him well, he's a neighbor, but discussing it allows us to adjust ourselves, saying "be careful, things might change." Even after [50-55] years.

Speaker1: [00:09:35] Yes, observing others' situations allows you to adjust yourselves.

Speaker2: [00:09:40] Absolutely, absolutely. That's why I say a conversation, a movie, a situation... Some movies aim to make you think about yourself. When you follow certain series, you see what happens with the events, with the youth. It allows us to ask ourselves, "how would we react compared to our children, even if they are grown up?" Are we doing the right thing? We're always questioning ourselves. If we don't question ourselves and close off, it's not good.

Speaker1: [00:10:21] No, but I'm listening to you.

Speaker2: [00:10:24] No, no, no! Go ahead! Go ahead, I...

Speaker1: [00:10:27] Please. We're here to listen to you.

Speaker2: [00:10:30] If it escapes, it will come back. Very well.

Speaker1: [00:10:35] Hmm. You talked about adjustment just now. And if you had to compare the quality of your couple's relationship to that of your friends, for example, what could you say?

Speaker2: [00:10:52] Compared to our friends... You always pass, let's say, true friends. And ultimately, we have few. We have those who are like us, those who are not. It's very difficult, especially with time and age. We had friends years ago who we no longer have because they didn't follow the same paths as us, didn't have the same reasoning. I'm not saying we all have to think alike, but we need to agree on the main lines. We can have differences; just because I like classical music and my friend likes modern music doesn't mean we can't get along. He likes music, but we need to make an effort to understand, to say, "we'll overlook that, we have to." As the saying goes, we must put water in our wine. Otherwise, if we live selfishly, we wouldn't have any friends because we all have differences. Life shapes us with events; we're now of a certain age. So, we have a couple of friends we go on vacation with. She recently lost her father, so it will shape her differently compared to before when she had her father. That's why I say nothing is guaranteed, and we always need to question ourselves because what she said yesterday, she might not say today. Are we ready for that? Sometimes small concessions, but sometimes significant concessions.

Speaker1: [00:12:50] You're talking about differences or similarities with your friends regarding the quality of couple relationships. What could you say about that?

Speaker2: [00:13:00] The quality of a couple relationship is about adjusting. We always have to adjust our relationships, saying, "until now, I could say this, I could react this way in a given situation." Given what has happened or what I've understood through reading, discussion, or conversation, I should no longer act that way because it might hurt the other person, maybe not seriously, but it could cause some harm. I always told my granddaughter, who always asked for hugs since she was little, "even a feather touch can hurt." Look at someone with a burn; even a light touch can irritate. So it's about finding the right balance. Life is about balance, saying, "I used to say this often, but now I shouldn't say it anymore because things have changed." We adjust, and that's why communication is crucial. All these adjustments can only happen if we observe and say, "now things aren't like before." Illness can also change a person. We've seen around us that treatments can change people, make them react differently because it affects their nerves. Facing illness, people might react more excessively than they should. Without observation, we miss that, or worse, we get angry, and that's unfortunate.

Speaker1: [00:15:08] You're talking about adjustment. Are there characteristics you see in your relationship that you don't see in those of your friends or vice versa?

Speaker2: [00:15:20] We have friends who tell us, "you always find the right words." We hear that often. When friends visit, even young ones, they say being with us is like a yoga session; it helps them relax. There's a saying, "as much as it depends on you, promote peace." Sometimes, in families or groups, conversations can escalate because we don't share the same views on politics, on what our president does, on what some man said. If we leave things to escalate, it could end in arguments. Promoting peace, we try to change the subject gently, ask different questions. As long as we manage that, it's great. Unfortunately, it's not always the case because some friends or family members can be excessive. I have a son who is very eco-friendly, to the extreme. It's sometimes complicated because even if he's right, we can't always apply his methods. We can't change everything abruptly. It's complex. If we want to maintain the relationship while discussing certain topics, we must acknowledge he's right but also express our limitations and maybe change the subject because otherwise, we won't agree.

Speaker1: [00:17:27] What you describe, this adjustment in relationships, you apply it to couple relationships as well.

Speaker2: [00:17:32] Absolutely, absolutely. Situations arise unexpectedly, and we must adjust our views because it's no longer possible to do things the old way. It's a constant adjustment. When we're young, we plan a lot and accomplish it. With age, we realize it's ambitious and adjust, saying, "we'll see about that later." I hope to live long and still have a lot to do. With age and fatigue, we think slower and adjust our plans.

Speaker1: [00:18:26] If I understand correctly, you believe that your couple's ability to discuss and communicate is what makes your relationship special compared to your friends.

Speaker2: [00:18:46] Yes, because we've been like this for [50-55] years. Among our friends, few have been married for over [50-55] years. Nowadays, young couples often say they have nothing to talk about and separate after [1-5] years. It's surprising. I've seen people marry and separate quickly. At work, when I mentioned I had been married for [20-25] years with [1-5] children and the same wife, people were surprised. Among [50-55] colleagues, only [1-5] were still married; the rest had divorced once or twice. It was surprising even then.

Speaker2: [00:20:08] When we're young, we're more reactive, but with time, we learn to adjust. Unfortunately, young people today don't seem to do that, and they don't build lasting relationships. It's sad because it affects children. Managing blended families is complicated, and relationships don't last. Marriage and human relationships lose meaning.

Speaker1: [00:21:39] Yes. You also mentioned your ability to avoid conflict by seeking peace and moving past certain interactions.

Speaker2: [00:21:53] Yes, because otherwise, we'd always be angry. We have friends who are always angry, always in revolt. That's not good physically either. I try to stay peaceful, following Chinese medicine principles. Some people are always on edge, always in revolution against everything. It affects their relationships, even with their partners. When they visit us, they say they feel good with us because we calm them down. We try not to be constantly angry or reactive.

Speaker1: [00:23:49] You've talked a bit about what you observe in your friends' relationships compared to yours. If you had to compare your current relationship to previous ones, what would you say?

Speaker2: [00:24:07] We have worked hard to maintain our relationship. We've lost touch with friends who didn't share our views on life, money, and human values. Some friends have naturally drifted away because we didn't follow the same paths. We've never had major conflicts, but people have distanced themselves because of differences. Sometimes we reconnect via social media, but we can't rebuild the same relationship because we were not aligned initially.

Speaker1: [00:25:52] I would like you to tell me what a high-quality relationship is for you.

Speaker2: [00:25:58] A high-quality relationship is one where you can discuss everything without necessarily agreeing on everything but explaining, listening to each other's viewpoints. I always tell my children that we can say anything to each other in life, even unpleasant things, as long as it's said respectfully. This allows conversations to flow. Sometimes, with certain people, we avoid specific topics. At work, I never discussed politics or religion to avoid conflicts. We can discuss other things instead. This keeps the relationship pleasant and avoids unnecessary conflicts.

Speaker2: [00:27:41] This way, you don't have conflicts and maintain the relationship. Even with close friends or children, we sometimes avoid certain topics because we know they will lead to disagreements. It's about being smart and choosing different paths for conversation. There are many positive things to discuss instead.

Speaker1: [00:28:57] You mentioned work relationships. Do you see similarities with your romantic relationships?

Speaker2: [00:29:06] Yes, because I've always been open to everyone, greeting everyone at work, even if some thought it was a waste of time. But it helped establish relationships. Saying hello, you can tell if someone is okay or not. It allows for follow-up conversations, even helping them with personal issues if needed. It's about being observant and approachable. We applied the same principle in our personal lives.

Speaker2: [00:30:40] I had a principle of always greeting everyone, establishing relationships, and addressing issues as they arise. This openness helped in both professional and personal relationships. I never transferred personal problems to work. Even with difficult situations, we always kept a positive attitude at work. It was about maintaining a positive environment.

Speaker1: [00:32:58] You mentioned the importance of communication. How can we know if we're in a communicative relationship?

Speaker2: [00:33:10] By asking questions. If someone responds with yes or no, it's hard to have a conversation. Being [Nationality], I'm naturally reserved, but I make an effort to communicate. It's about asking open-ended questions and engaging in discussions. Communication today is often lacking, with people relying on texts instead of talking. True communication involves expressing and sharing thoughts and feelings openly.

Speaker1: [00:35:10] Excuse me, I'll let you finish.

Speaker2: [00:35:11] True communication is about saying everything. Texting has replaced real conversations, and it's not the same. Writing letters used to be a way to communicate deeply. Now, people send emojis, but it's not real communication. We need to express our feelings and have real conversations to maintain a deep connection.

Speaker1: [00:37:20] You mentioned communication. When do you think your relationship was most communicative?

Speaker2: [00:37:30] When facing challenges, like illness or work problems, we either close off or express ourselves. Discussing and asking for opinions helps. Life is not always easy, and communication is crucial in difficult times. It's about sharing thoughts and finding solutions together.

Speaker2: [00:39:26] An anecdote: my daughter once exchanged a cheap pen for a [Brand Name] pen with a friend. Discussing and communicating helped resolve the situation with the friend's parents. Observation and communication are key. At work, greeting everyone and observing their reactions helped address issues. It's about maintaining relationships through open communication.

Speaker1: [00:40:55] You've described what a high-quality relationship is for you. What is a low-quality relationship in romantic terms?

Speaker2: [00:41:07] Not talking is the first sign. Saying "I love you" often is important. Some think it's unnecessary, but expressing love is crucial. Complimenting and expressing joy in small moments is important. It's like adding the finishing touch to a dish; it makes the relationship special. Without these efforts, the relationship becomes dull and lifeless.

Speaker1: [00:44:12] If I understand correctly, it's not just about communication but also expressing feelings and making an effort to appreciate and uplift the other person.

Speaker2: [00:44:36] Exactly. Making an effort is crucial. I naturally tend to be reserved, but I push myself to engage and communicate. It becomes natural over time. Sometimes, when dealing with challenges, we might withdraw, but we need to make an effort to stay connected. We recently lost [1-5] friends, which was hard, but discussing and sharing our feelings helps.

Speaker2: [00:46:00] It's important to balance negative events with positive actions. After receiving bad news, we might do something enjoyable to lift our spirits. It's about constantly adjusting and finding ways to stay positive.

Speaker1: [00:49:06] You've described high-quality and low-quality relationships. What other important aspects are there in a romantic relationship?

Speaker2: [00:49:21] Making the other person smile is important. Bringing joy and laughter into the relationship is crucial. Laughter is part of happiness. Acting silly, making jokes, and having fun together are essential. Even small acts can bring joy and strengthen the bond.

Speaker1: [00:50:48] The importance of laughter in a relationship.

Speaker2: [00:50:51] Yes, laughter is important. It's about keeping a positive and happy attitude. I observe people's reactions and expressions. Even with a bad memory, I remember faces and expressions. It's about staying positive and observant.

Speaker1: [00:51:56] Based on your experiences, what is love for you?

Speaker2: [00:52:06] Love is feeling understood and being able to share everything. It's about mutual pleasure and making each other happy. Love is an exchange of positive energy, constantly giving and receiving. It's what my partner brought to me, introducing me to music and creating joyful moments together. Love is the foundation of a strong relationship.

Speaker1: [00:55:10] How important is love in a relationship?

Speaker2: [00:55:17] Love is the basis. Without love, relationships are shallow and short-lived. Love helps overcome difficulties and makes sacrifices worthwhile. It's the glue that holds everything together, allowing forgiveness and understanding. Love is essential for a lasting and fulfilling relationship.

*Speaker 2: [00:56:52] Because if there is no love, why do people divorce today? Because there is no love, there is no. There is no bond together, there is no bond. Why are there couples who last so long? Because they are still in love? Me at [50-55] years old, I am at [50-55] years of marriage, [50-55] years now, I give little kisses to my wife as if we met a quarter of an hour ago and that we are in love because it is the little kiss. It is the bond that makes even our children sometimes say look at our parents, they are still in love. Well yes, we are still in love because that is what makes it go well. When you have people, they start after a certain time. Oh well no, we don't sleep together now. There is one who sleeps in their room. Oh really? And then one day we say oh well no! Oh no, they finally separated. Well we had nothing more to say. Well yes, there is no bond, there is no love. Is it possible? Well, it is possible because it happens, but well. If you must have love, it is a bond, it is something we all feel, each one, both.

*Speaker 1: [00:58:04] Um. I know that there are different forms and ways of loving. I would like you to tell me how you know that your partner loves you.

*Speaker 2: [00:58:16] Well I know it because when we saw each other yesterday, I was tinkering in the basement, I was tidying up because we need to make space. Because you can imagine in [50-55] years, everything we can keep. And after a certain time. So I went to tidy up because I needed to make space. Then suddenly, my wife not seeing me, she is going to miss me, she came down and then we tidied up together, it brought up memories. And then actually, I wanted to kiss you. We kissed in the basement. Yeah, it is good. Well it is that, that revives, that brings back a lot of things. Then we are happy, we continue when we don't see each other. Sometimes life or work makes it so that we haven't seen each other for a day because I don't know when I was tinkering with something or we haven't seen each other at all during the day in the evening she tells me you miss me even though we saw each other in the morning, we got up, we ate together at [Time] but the fact of not sending to talk, discuss well. I miss you, we miss each other. It is the same for me when my wife goes somewhere for an obligation, I find it long you see.

*Speaker 2: [00:59:41] We don't say oh well no! Come on, we try as much as possible to favor activities where we will be together. She does choir. Well that doesn't appeal to me, but I had so many appointments at such a time, appointment after such an appointment, etc. That today the fact of knowing that I have to go to the choir on such a day at such a time, yes. But if we can, we do activities together, there we go, we do, we do [practice]. [1-5] and a half every [Day] together. We made the decision, we do it, but we do it together. We are not going to do an activity each on our own when we have couples of relationships where each does their own thing. There he does [sport] alone and then [sport] and then the other oh well she goes to do I don't know what there, pottery and it is. It is a shame. I think it is a shame, even if each one blossoms. Well, I understand that. But we have always tried to favor to do things together, maybe that's why it lasts too, I don't know.

*Speaker 1: [01:00:54] Uh can you talk to me about one of the latest positive interactions you had with your partner?

*Speaker 2: [01:01:04] Lately positive. We always have positive so it is complicated. But uh. It is difficult to say because it is made up of so many little things, you see. The fact of being interested, as we said in the other in a given situation. Well right away I ask her questions, we discuss, but my wife kept a lot of contacts with childhood relationships, etc. The positive things that I find it is me. I don't know them at all. Hum well agreed with me, but when she tells me about them, I question her to know what did you do? What happened? Tell me. Well these are reactions for me that are. Because myself who doesn't know, that I am interested. So reactions, there are all the time. I don't have significant events because. Lately. No because you say only positive there. One of the friends we lost was a childhood friend of my wife. It is a person, well a couple we saw every year once a year. When we go to the south, we go, we have lunch with them and we had seen them last year at the end of the year and [6-10] days later, that man died.

*Speaker 2: [01:02:37] Today remains. They stayed in touch even more because no more husband, etc. I constantly question my wife to know how she is, how she reacts, what she does, etc. To know if her friend is doing well. Yes, I think my wife appreciates. I could say I don't know her. No, but the fact of discussing what you see, it is reactions, actions that I do that make my wife say to herself well he is interested in my friends even though I don't know her more than that, I know her, I see her once, once a year, a lunch, you see, and an afternoon. But I know a lot more about her because I question my wife about it to know. For me it is actions, it is we come back to what we said, huh, we must always question, be interested in others, ask questions to know. Oh well then. And it allows to know who they are. Hum.

*Speaker 1: [01:03:42] I would like you to tell me the opposite of one of the latest negative interactions you had with your partner.

*Speaker 2: [01:03:50] Negative. Looking for the negative. I have trouble. It is not good, huh? Negative. Uh. But negative we will say. Often, I have reactions because I am a bit. I am still lively, you see? Then. And the negative reactions are that. My wife likes things to be squared away. Everything and well, I am not. Sometimes, I mean in terms of tidying up, things like that, you see, I am not going to be as she expects. And there I have negative reactions, that is to say I will send her for a walk in quotes saying Ah, you annoy me with that. You see, we came back, there is the shoe box, I don't put the shoes in it right away. My wife Yes. And your shoes, you are going to leave them in the middle and there I can leave, you see? And there it is very negative because I send her for a walk. And my wife to say well since it is that, I will not tell you anything anymore. Then I say it is not normal that we say nothing anymore. So you see, I catch up saying but wait, I will put them away, you know how I am and then there you go, the negative things are little things like that because I am lively. So there you go, I can have reactions compared to what she would expect me to do which is not done as she would like, what. Because it is the same, I will pass, there is something to take down to the basement, I put it down, I go down to the basement. If I have to do something in the basement, I will not take it. So sometimes she tells me yeah, you passed ten times in front and you don't put it away, you can't take it down. So I am a bit lively sometimes, so sometimes I take it, then I say there you go, I took it down for you. But it is only little things like that. There is no we don't have big conflicts, huh? Yeah.

*Speaker 1: [01:05:55] Ah, I see that you were telling me according to you, the challenges to be met in your relationship.

*Speaker 2: [01:06:01] Challenges, challenges. The challenges. What could be met as challenges? Well. Challenges, challenges. Well I have to be careful because I tend, when we are in a group, to take care of others and less of my wife. So I have in a corner of my brain to say you must you must meet this challenge of not being like that. I will I will take care of. We have people. I will take care of what is normal. To take care for example of our friend, his wife. Talk. And there, I who helps, who contributes to everything going well, I tend to leave my wife alone. So when we have people, you help me more. Yes, and it is a challenge I would like to meet because it is true that I tend not to move anymore while usually, well, there is great cooperation and collaboration together. And that is a challenge that I have in mind to say I must not be like that because it is not normal, even if it is because I have too much attention. Maybe for my guests, I forget the essential, what I should do to help my wife. It is part of a challenge that I have to put in place. I should manage. But well, it is true that I have to take care of it.

*Speaker 1: [01:07:51] Uh, we were talking about challenges to be met. Maybe there are also challenges that you have already managed to meet in your relationship?

*Speaker 2: [01:07:59] Yes, because I. I try to discipline myself. I see. When we found ourselves, my wife may have talked about it when we found ourselves retired. Well, my wife not working, I had taken the habit of letting her do. Everything that is household, etc. And when we we retired. My wife tells me well now you will take care of making the bed, the room, etc. Well, I said to myself yeah, but it cost me. When I could avoid doing it, I had to do it quickly, I didn't do it. Well, I said to myself and I disciplined myself by saying why don't you want to make the bed? And actually, I asked myself the question why it cost me so much? Because it is true, it was physical, it cost me what? It was hard for me. And actually, by analyzing, I realized that. Making a bed. It reminded me when my mother, I told you, had cancer. One day she said I can't make the bed anymore, etc. You will have to do it. And it was me who at home, made her bed, made my bed, etc. While it was my mom who did that. It was it was something, you see? You have no questions. And when I thought that, I said to myself but it is for that that it costs you. Because I had this somewhere engraved in in my memory, this memory there.

*Speaker 2: [01:09:33] And from the moment I said to myself it is because of that. I never forget, I do it without difficulty. I could. You see, it is so when there are situations, then there were. There were others like that, where saying but why does it cost me? Why does it cost me? Because there are reasons. We never do anything without anything actually in our life. But we must know. So that is something I also learned because I am a little interested in with friends, in everything that is psychology, etc. I think we must analyze why we react like that? Why do we have. We have reactions like that that are so brutal. So I did it because I had. I had to take care of [department] teams. [Occupation], it is not always easy and I got interested with [occupation], etc. in everything that was abscesses, psychological reactions, why do people react like that? And often it is a little thing that makes me always have the example that comes to mind of a man who lived happily with his wife. He had [1-5] children, [1-5] daughters. Everything was going well. And then one day, his wife tells him You are really good for nothing. Because she had asked him to do something he didn't do. That man left the house and left his wife. And analysis made, it was simply because. Throughout his childhood, his father had told him he was good for nothing even though he had managed to start a family.

*Speaker 2: [01:11:14] He had gotten over it. But hearing his wife say You are good for nothing, it attacks. It triggered him to leave. And I think. Well, it is an anecdote, but there are plenty like that. And sometimes, you have been hurt for that, you must discuss and realize.

There, I said something that hurt because you don't realize, but there are individuals, especially our spouse. To say my wife had a difficult childhood with divorced parents, etc. And there are things that hurt her and can still hurt her. So you must try to, you see, see the reactions well, to say oh, I am saying something. Sometimes, even in discussions with friends, you see the reaction, you say oh la la, I am doing I am making a mistake. It is not always easy to catch up after the situation, but I think. Everything, everything is done by always analyzing and looking at the behavior. For me, it is very important, you see. And because, as I told you, I had a nature, the [Nationality] is an observer. We say doesn't say anything, but it is because he observes. And I think observation teaches us a lot of things.

*Speaker 2: [01:12:38] You see? I observe you. I don't know what you are looking at on the side, but I often see you glancing on the side. And you see, I have seen that you do that all the time. From time to time, I see you glance on the side, but I observed that, you see. So. But well, it is difficult because here we are not in real life. But observation is neat, I think it must. When someone does that, for example say well look at his watch, he is looking at the time, what is happening? Why is he in a hurry? We might shorten our meeting because he might not dare tell me he has to leave, you see? So if you observe that when you are with friends, to say he is looking at his watch, I don't think he is bored, but he might have an appointment, he doesn't dare tell us, you see? So I think observation and I am very observant because my memory is in observation more than in what I hear. And sometimes actually I don't hear, you see, when I say I don't hear, I have trouble formulating everything I heard well because I am more in observation. So, what are you looking at on the side? Honestly, if it is wanting to glance like that. You are looking at the time passing maybe? No, I don't know.

*Speaker 1: [01:13:57] Absolutely not. No, not at all. I have on the side part of the themes that seem important to address.

*Speaker 2: [01:14:04] There you go, you see? You see, I was right.

*Speaker 1: [01:14:08] It is a way for me to keep the structure in mind.

*Speaker 2: [01:14:12] Yes, completely of the interview. Okay.

*Speaker 1: [01:14:19] You mentioned earlier. In any case, you mentioned conflicts in the couple and we know that sometimes in a relationship, everything is not rosy. And I would like you to talk to me about these conflicts, these disputes you may have with your partner.

*Speaker 2: [01:14:35] Well, it was often and that is why today we have. It is much better. It was often because she had a difficult childhood, a dad who really did everything so that it was not balanced, that it didn't go well, etc. So we often argued because of that, because it is true that it still remains her father, but he did so many things that hurt her that we often. We had conflicts because of that because I couldn't stand his reactions. For me, they were not normal reactions when you put your daughter as I said earlier, now he put her out. For me, it is not a father's reaction, for me, it could happen, it is what I say to my children, anything could happen. My children could do. Anything, they will remain my children, even if it is me. Who must take the first step. And sometimes my daughter, my wife tells me my daughter doesn't call me well because my daughter doesn't like to call. But she remains your daughter. Call her instead of saying she doesn't call me, my children. There it is the same, we are. They are all busy, so what do I do? Well, this morning, I could have answered by a text saying yeah, it is okay.

*Speaker 2: [01:15:54] Especially since we had an appointment together. I preferred to call her. It lasted three minutes because it was just before we had our appointment. But I called her because right away, by calling her, I know if she is okay by the sound of her voice, what she is doing, etc. And I think. Uh. To return to the conflicts we had, it was because I didn't agree with the ways of her father. I didn't agree. Imagine putting what? That he put his child out. So we often argued because of, let's say because of her father and her stepmother because her dad was remarried. It is a very manipulative person, very. And that I can't stand. So we argued a lot because of that. But otherwise, generally no. Because how we always do things together? We don't have, we didn't really have conflicts or. Yes, I try to go back in time. There were no real conflicts. Of conflicting relationships. No, no, no because each time, we discuss and we discuss right away. Even when there was, there was certainly even not in mind.

*Speaker 2: [01:17:23] But we burst the abscess right away because we say well, we are not going to, we are not going to sulk, huh, so we are not going to go. We also started from a principle of saying we don't go to bed sulking because. Unfortunately, we had friends who. They went to bed sulking and there, the husband died during the night. I said to myself no, it is not possible, it is not possible. It is what I say to my children. I have my children. Sometimes I even say to my grandchildren, I tell them but yeah, I am angry at mom, I say don't be angry at mom, your mom is on the road, Imagine there was an accident. You don't see her again? I always tell them you see to not be stupid, not to, not to stay long angry. At some point, you can be angry to say no, I don't agree with you, really. You made me angry, you did that, but it must not last, huh, because it is too too dangerous, it is that? I always see the outcome, what does it bring? What does it bring to be in conflict? Unless it is voluntary. But well, what does it bring?

*Speaker 1: [01:18:42] You talk to me about conflicts, it can also be small hiccups of daily life, these things. You would say that over a month or [11-15] days, how often does it happen?

*Speaker 2: [01:18:57] The hiccups? Yes. I am clumsy for example, so I can be able to spill coffee on the armchair and then that generates. We just washed it but. It can happen [1-5] times in the week or not at all in the month, what. And then it is always you say it is always minor things and even when they are important. Well, it happened to me to I don't know, break dishes so it is true that it is important, but I say but it is only dishes, we will buy another one, Yes. I know my tendency, but as my wife sometimes rightly says, with you, nothing is serious. Well no, nothing is serious, nothing is serious. Even if it is true that when you break the nice plate from a set that was given to my wife's mom, she says well yes, but I only have three plates left, we broke three. Well I say yes, but well, it was only a plate, what. You see? So I tend to minimize. Well, I have it this way. In my professional life, it was often the case too because otherwise it can take proportions in When you do business, you lose a big market and the boss on your back who tells you we lost 25% of our turnover, so if you let it go, he will be on your back, etc.

*Speaker 2: [01:20:29] And say Well, we will take measures, yes, to lower the pressure, to minimize to say it is true, it is 25%, but we will find something else, we will take measures, we will do this, I will gather the team with the team, we will look at their biggest files, we will see if, on these biggest files, we can work on prices to take them faster, etc. To catch up. And finally it works out. And if you let it rise, rise the mayonnaise in it is very serious, we will not get out of it. It is true that pollution for example, it is serious. But if we listen. We must do nothing more than drive, we must take our car, we must not go out, we must not walk, we must not. We can do nothing. Let's take reasonable measures so that. Well, it is my point of view, huh, always. But I think it is my way of doing too to always go. We will lower the handles so as not to have all the handles up and say that's it, there will be a general short circuit, what.

*Speaker 1: [01:21:32] You talk to me about these conflicts or these small hiccups that happen to you, how do you resolve uh these interactions, how do you resolve these conflicts?

*Speaker 2: [01:21:43] Already, when there is a conflict, it is to even if it is not quite your fault to say well listen, ask for forgiveness and then say well let's find a solution, well it will work out. And there already, you have, you have already solved the problem to say well let's go, And sometimes you can in your deep say she exaggerates, it is not, it is not, it is not my fault, it is we did everything for it to happen, but it is not really my fault. But well, by admitting, by saying well let's go, because it will change nothing, because if you want, each one remains saying yeah but there are, it is 50 50. Well yes, 50, 50, 50, your fault, it is my fault, But what does it change? Nothing. The problem remains the same that to say well let's go, it is my fault, what do we do to solve it? Let's go hop! And take measures to say what I told you a moment ago to say. Well let's go, there is this problem. Let's go, we will solve it, we will do this, this, this, then it will. And then by doing that, I can tell you that ten minutes later, everything is fine, what. Because there you go.

*Speaker 1: [01:22:53] Take it upon yourself.

*Speaker 2: [01:22:54] You must take it upon yourself, you must take it upon yourself, it can cost, I can tell you, it can cost in. Well, I don't have an example at the family level, but at the professional level it can cost to say well let's go, it is my fault, it is my fault if it happened. Everyone is happy because it is him always a culprit anyway, you didn't notice before today, there is an accident. Oh yeah but it is. It is the tree's fault. Well yes, the tree fell. Oh yes, but who will pay? Oh well it is the owner of the tree. We must always find the responsible who will pay. Well. Life is made like that.

*Speaker 1: [01:23:38] Outside of this capacity that you tell me important to take it upon yourself, what are the other means by which you maintain your relationship?

*Speaker 2: [01:23:52] Well taking it upon yourself. But there is the fact of when we have good communication, you can pass, you can pass messages, you can pass points of view, you can do a lot of things, which makes everything go well. From the moment we talk, everything is fine because you take it upon yourself by no. It is not your fault, the other doesn't admit. Well, you say it is my fault, but after, by talking, since the relationship is established again, you can pass messages saying you see, what I am telling you there, look when that happened. Well Ah yeah, you are right. You can make things change, we can't say to your advantage, but by saying you understand now. It is always more. But for that, you must talk. We always come back to communication.

*Speaker 1: [01:24:42] But communication.

*Speaker 2: [01:24:43] Yes.

*Speaker 1: [01:24:46] Uh. I would like to know what could make you leave your partner.

*Speaker 2: [01:24:55] Leave my partner, well. I think it would have to come from her saying well I am leaving you, but I would be very unhappy because for me there is nothing that could make me leave my partner. There can be accidents on the way, everyone has had or has them, etc. There can be. But.

*Speaker 1: [01:25:26] Or that could have.

*Speaker 2: [01:25:27] Or that could have. But no, we don't have. It is the same. We can. It is what I sometimes say we have friends who left because well, their partner, it didn't work anymore, etc. But. Did they really talk about what was happening in their couple? We must talk about it. You, for example, you find yourself, I don't know, among your friends or your relationships, your relationships, I find a woman that I find great, etc. But if I don't talk about it. You don't talk to my wife, etc. It is sure that a relationship can be born maybe of encounters saying well, I will try to see her. Oh, it is sure that you go straight into the wall. But on the other hand, if you say I saw a woman, so and so, do you know her? What do I find her beautiful? Is she nice? She is really. I talked to her, it is great. We had a good time, but we must talk about it. We always come back to communication. But if you keep that in a small intimate place and you don't talk about it, it is sure that it is like that that you will have problems. We must talk about it. We always come back to the same thing. What were we talking about?

*Speaker 1: [01:26:58] The importance of communication.

*Speaker 2: [01:27:00] Ah yes, but I think it is the basis. To exchange. And when we don't exchange, we are. We are already half a foot in what is not going well.

*Speaker 1: [01:27:15] I would like to know if you would say that this relationship is good for you?

*Speaker 2: [01:27:21] With my with my partner, it is not good, It is excellent. Excellent because it allows to see everything that goes, everything that doesn't go well the fact of having. Because I am not perfect huh, I have big, big gaps certainly, but the fact of conversing, it allows me to say what do you want me to change, what do you want me to do, how do you want me to be? How do you want me to dress how? Because sometimes, before. I will. We go to friends. I put on pants, a shirt. She tells me No, you didn't put that on. How do you want me to dress? Yes, there is the exchange. Hum. I could very well say Oh well no, I am dressed like that, I stay like that. But well, it will not make things progress. Well, you want so take off the shirt. But this shirt, because she prefers, because she imagined seeing me like that. So you see, it is always, we always come back to dialogue to not create difficulties so. There are no difficulties. Difficulties are what we want to create.

*Speaker 1: [01:28:25] A good relationship. It can for example have a daily functioning that is regulated thanks to the partners or to the relationship. Is it something?

*Speaker 2: [01:28:38] Well yes, because we each have, I mean needs, a part of responsibility, things to do. So it must, must all be well oiled, huh. There, I see. Well, we have a mode of functioning. My wife knows very well, I am bad in the kitchen, making food, don't ask me that, I don't know, I don't know how to do it. Sometimes I see when she was sick or it had to cook for how long? The pasta must cook, she knows so well. So well. So the kitchen it is her. On the other hand, she knows very well that if we have people, side decorate a dish. You see what I was saying earlier, that is my thing. You see the little touch to prepare the dessert, put ice cream scoops with a small slice of mandarin, with a strawberry leaf, a little piece of strawberry. That is a request. So I know that when we have people, I will prepare the dessert. You see this. There are things we do in common. Breakfast, in the morning, it is me, you see? I make the coffee, I prepare the toast, I prepare the table. She just has to put her feet under the table, have breakfast, etc. We clean together after the meal at noon. It is her on the other hand.

*Speaker 2: [01:29:57] Well, if there is something complex in the meal, that she needs a hand, I give a hand. Otherwise we live in the countryside so we bought green beans. So it is sure that it is the stupid thing, but we will make sure to cut the green beans, but we do it together because well, that is within my capabilities, I know, it is not complicated, it is not cooking, you see. So each one must do a little bit to not make one do 80 and the other 20, it will be a against one. My wife doesn't know how to tinker but I taught her certain things. I tell her well, you will do a little painting, I know what she is capable of doing and not doing, so I give her what she is capable. The garden, we garden a lot, we have a big garden. I call her Mrs. [Name]. You see, it is her who does. Then she asks me Well, can you, can you do like I said, can I make you a small barrier, a small thing, we share the watering because there we are careful, we have water tanks, so we do it together. There are things we do together, things she does herself. You see, we share. It is a sharing, life.

*Speaker 1: [01:31:07] Having a good relationship. It can also be the fact that the relationship or the partner helps us achieve our goals.

*Speaker 2: [01:31:17] Absolutely, absolutely. Me you had my wife greatly helped me in. I say in. I stopped school unfortunately very earlier than necessary. I entered the professional world, so I didn't have, you see, an intellectual background out of the ordinary although I could have but well life made it so that the problem of my sick mother, etc. I found myself head of the family practically very young. But everything that was. The turn to write, etc. My wife greatly helped me. You should read that. Look, she taught me a little all the basics that I didn't have. It is she who gave me this training. My musical training, it is my wife and me. I had a training from my father, post-war child. On tinkering, I touch almost all trades. I know how to do plumbing, I know how to do carpentry, I know how to do masonry, I know how to do. It is dad who taught me that and then I taught all. Today, all my children know how to tinker and my son who just bought a house, he is redoing everything in his house. It is dad who taught him.

*Speaker 2: [01:32:32] My other son who also bought, who is more in [field] now, he calls me earlier my son. When he called me, it was for a water drainage problem. You see? He said is the siphon bothering me? Can I remove it? Well no, it must have a siphon, otherwise you will get bad smells. Oh well yes, I hadn't thought of that. And so. We always come back to cooperation, to discussion, etc. What I don't know how to do, me, sometimes when I write well, I try to have. We set up a [Name] and I try to do consulting things like I wrote a big epilogue on the computer, if you look if I didn't make mistakes, if I have good sentence structures, it is my wife who does the complement. You see, I am not ashamed to say well I can't formulate that. I want to say that and that. Well, my wife, she turns, I correct. We do things mutually like that. We are complementary to each other. Chut. There you go, I don't know if it answers your question, but there you go.

*Speaker 1: [01:33:47] What you describe to me, if I understand correctly, is indeed once again this complementarity that helps you develop or take strengths and weaknesses in one or the other, and stay.

*Speaker 2: [01:33:58] United because in the meantime, I know I need her. She knows she needs me. She lacked confidence. I tried to do everything to make her confident. She knows it is thanks to me. Me, I had certain things that I didn't know. It is she who comforted me, who helped me, etc. So we are complementary and it lasts because of that. Because when you hear young people who say we have nothing more to say, we better separate, it is catastrophic.

*Speaker 1: [01:34:32] You talk about this complementarity and I would like to know if you think this relationship has changed you.

*Speaker 2: [01:34:43] Well yes, it changed me in the sense that I told you I was. By nature and by everything that happened to me in my youth, the fact of losing my mom very early. There was also a history. My parents had lost a child. So. So you tend to close in on your problems, on yourself. And I think that. The fact of this of this meeting with my wife, having exchanged, having all of a sudden this changed me, transformed me, gave me. She goes to direct a [team] of x people. The eloquence that I would never have had if I hadn't had a wife like that. Never. Man to express himself. Knowing. I wrote texts to direct, you were talking earlier about the structure of your interview. When you direct training or you direct a team of [30-35] people and you have to reach a goal, you must have a guiding framework. You must have built information, found anecdotes to make the whole team progress a little. Well, I did it with my wife, I did it saying well, I will say that, what do you think? It is better not to say that because that, it is not very motivating. You see, we did what made it grow, it made me grow and it still makes us grow today. Because. We tend to analyze a lot of things when you communicate.

*Speaker 2: [01:36:31] At some point, you must analyze and say but why do we say that, etc. There you go. Her choir teacher to my wife divorced. He is a bit of a burnout and depressed, etc. We tried to analyze what he said, etc. to help him. And so my wife, when she writes to him, she says well, I told him that, what do you think dad? And he thanked her for the help he could. We become, if you want, the zen side of our family. They say when we come to your place, it is zenitude. Well there you go. But well, it is, it is, it is mutually that we do. We can. I think that alone we have unless there are maybe people hyper hyper super alone, but when you are with someone, it is still good to be able to exchange, to say well, I wrote that, what do you think? I will say that to him. Well, I wouldn't do it like that, I would do it like that. Well, that, it makes things progress. I can tell you. And we also become aware because well, I will say that, but wait, why are you going to say that? Do you realize what you are about to say to him? Oh yeah, I hadn't thought of that Yes. So it makes us question ourselves to say oh yeah, you are right, I won't say that. Yeah.

*Speaker 1: [01:37:52] Uh. And compared to your partner, do you think she has changed during the relationship?

*Speaker 2: [01:37:58] Well yes, well yes, because it is when I found her. Well, she had a lot. We were attracted because we had common discussion topics, but she was. She had the impression she would never make it to. But passing the driving license because her father had told her No, you will never be able to drive. So she didn't take the license. I was always on the road and sometimes we had the possibility, I went on a trip, I left my car, she had the car in front of the door and then she couldn't drive. But why do you. I will not make it. I said well listen. And there was nothing to do. Then one day, she found herself. It was raining, the child sick, the car in the parking lot, having to take the bus and she said let's go, she went to the driving school. She went to say I sign up! She got her license the first time. And I think, she may have told you, but I made her grow by trying to make her understand that she had abilities, but it is she who who by the fact of you know, you hurt someone by always saying the boy. The example I gave earlier by saying You will never succeed, you are useless, it is sure. If they tell you that all your life, they tell you anyway, I am useless then yes no but if you don't try, I tried, huh, I. You know, I found myself faced with professional activities where I found myself unemployed, etc.

*Speaker 2: [01:39:34] I found a job by being bold. It is one of my former colleagues who told me there is a guy who wants to do a [occupation] at his place, do you know how to do that? I said well yes, of course, I accepted the mission, I didn't even know what to do. Hum. Well, I called a friend, I inquired with one who had done that and then I said to myself well, it is not that complicated. I asked, I made questionnaires with my wife, we made. And then I did his audit in his company and then he thanked me for the good audit I had done. You see? So, we must not doubt ourselves. Our first enemy is still us, huh? You say I won't make it. How come you won't make it? It is you who say that? But it is you the enemy, our first enemy. It is what I always told my children. Our first enemy is our negative way of thinking. While if we are positive, we will make it. If you say to yourself yes, I will make it, well forced, you are up against the wall. Anyway, it is true that we can fall sometimes, we can stumble, but if we are well made and then positive, we can bounce back too huh. Yeah.

*Speaker 1: [01:40:46] Uh. Do you feel safe in this relationship?

*Speaker 2: [01:40:51] Oh well yes, of course. I spent [1-5] years now [1-5] and a half months in the hospital. I can tell you that everything goes through your head, that it is impossible. Will you come back if you can walk again, if you will. But I felt safe because every day we called each other. With my wife, we had a relationship that made her bring me what I needed. Because you are alone in a hospital in full covid and you see no one. Woken up at [Time] in the morning until [Time] where you have to fall asleep, you are a bit alone? Yeah. And if I didn't have this relationship with my wife that I still have, she would have gone crazy and gone crazy? Because. And especially, you don't know what you have. Because at one point, I said but what do I have? Well we don't know, you don't fit into the boxes sir. Well yes, what does that mean? Well we will look. And then they don't find because there are things that medicine has well advanced, but everything is in boxes. When you are not in the right box, well, we don't know what you have look for. Find the error.

*Speaker 1: [01:42:08] Yes, what you describe to me is actually feeling safe. It is for example being able to have indeed support, comfort, attention from your partner in case of distress or danger or problems.

*Speaker 2: [01:42:21] You know where to go? You are not alone. So well, there is the partner and then there are all your good relationships around too huh, But the first is your partner. I don't feel well, I am not well, we comfort, we complete, we and if we recall the good times and then and then you bounce back, you bounce back.

*Speaker 1: [01:42:44] Yeah, Feeling safe is also the capacity, the possibility to open up to your partner about your thoughts, your experiences, your identity. It is that, without fear of judgment or.

*Speaker 2: [01:42:58] That's it.

*Speaker 1: [01:42:59] To.

*Speaker 2: [01:42:59] Say I have, it happens to me that, there, I feel that I will not make it. I realize that I may not walk again. I. Ah! And your partner to say But no! And then who reassures you to say now we will find, we will. It makes you bounce back what? Yeah.

*Speaker 1: [01:43:16] Uh You would have examples? You give me one with your stay in the hospital, but maybe another where you could indeed open up about your thoughts, your identity to your partner.

*Speaker 2: [01:43:34] Well yes, because when you see, I lost my job twice. I always had important positions and when I found myself. All of a sudden, no more job. You go to the [Agency Name] who tells you oh but you will never find a job like that again, paid like that. I mean, you come home. You know who you are? A man? Because you have no more consideration from anyone since you have no one in your professional environment? You are erased. They let you know that you will never find it again, but we will give you training. Unfortunately Well, I have nothing against certain regions, but I was at the [Agency Name] of [City], in the [City] where there they give you training, they tell you well, we will teach you to fill your CV. You recruited people. You were in pairs with the [department], they tell you. So you will write in block letters, in capital letters. Do you know what a capital letter is? I will show you. You say but where did I arrive? There, you see, you are completely in the depths of uh And I spare you the rest to fill a CV or. A [1-5]-year-old child like you feel like a [1-5]-year-old child being taught to write.

*Speaker 2: [01:45:05] When you come out of all that, you say to yourself. How will I do? How will I do? How will I see with my wife? How can she? She can help me what? Yeah, because you feel like you have lost everything. Hum. And when you call relationships. You have relationships, everything is fine. You call relationships to say So, how are you? Oh no, I lost my job. Oh really? And then the conversation is over. Uh. Don't you have a lead for me all that? Oh well no, you know, at the moment at our place, it is more firing than hiring. You feel it is a barrier and then it is over. So that, it is when you live that. I can tell you, you must already have good mental health to resist, to not find yourself depressed, to not fall into depression as unfortunately some do, some who don't get back from that. I got back because well strong nature, but also because my wife helped me. Well let's go, I will look with you the posts, we will write, we will we will try to be creative to find something else.

*Speaker 1: [01:46:22] What you describe to me is the character and the importance of the supportive nature of the couple's relationship that you have?

*Speaker 2: [01:46:31] Absolutely, absolutely. You help for, at some point to say well, uh, everything as it didn't happen to us personally, but in relation to our children, when there is illness etc. You must at some point support both the child and the partner at some point you when you don't know what will become of your child because well, you don't find a transplant. He was [10-15] years on dialysis our son. There are ups and very strong downs. You have the [occupation] at your place that nothing is going right, that you see that your child is weakening, that you have your partner who completely loses morale. You must react. And that is only done because there you bring out everything, everything you have stored as positive to say no, it is not possible, it will not stop now. And then it starts again not always easily, but it starts again. Yeah.

*Speaker 1: [01:47:35] I hear what you say. Uh. Well, I would like us to briefly address another constitutive dimension of couple relationships, it is sexuality. So we know it can be or not be a more or less important dimension in relationships. What about you?

*Speaker 2: [01:47:55] Well, we got along. Neither of us was, let's say, an abusive demander. So the relationship for us, the relationship at the level of sexuality, it is a need, it was the fact of starting a family, it was therefore. We were more than that and it went well. It still goes well because when one needs, the other must understand. So it is the same, we stay attentive. We must.

*Speaker 1: [01:48:33] You would say that it has what importance in a couple relationship? Sexuality.

*Speaker 2: [01:48:38] It is important, but I say it is not what makes the. It is not the most important. It is important because it is part of our life. We are, we were, I think created with this need, but it is. It is not, it is not the most important, it is not important. The most important is We always come back to understanding each other, to say are you happy with me, are you happy? It is that the most important? Hum. You need that? We will take care of it. But it is not. It is also perhaps for that. What does not go very well today in the relationships of our young people, it is that we give too high importance to that. And then when we say when the flame has decreased, when the desire has a little passed, what remains? There is only that. What remains? Nothing. Because well no, we don't know anything about the other, we don't know, we don't know what is in his head, we don't know what is in his life, so it cannot work. And why also? Well it is because of that. Because. Oh well yes, as long as it was. Because it is sure, when we say there are degrees in the desire of sexuality, there are degrees between youth. And then when you are [70-75] years old, you are not on the same degree of importance, but when you are very young and you put only that in front. But it is not only that. If it is only that, well it is sure that when that, that has faded. What remains?

*Speaker 1: [01:50:11] For you. If I understand correctly, sexuality is a need.

*Speaker 2: [01:50:14] It is a need, it is a physical need, it is a need that nature that. And then once this need is fulfilled. All the rest remains and all the rest. It is what is the most important.

*Speaker 1: [01:50:31] You mentioned the fact that you still had a sexual life currently. Roughly, what would be the frequency of your sexual relations?

*Speaker 2: [01:50:41] Well it is the same, sometimes it will be more often. Then my wife tells me Oh, it is spring. Well sometimes it can be a long time without there being a need, but. If you want, it has transformed. I mean the more we are older, it has transformed into cuddles, tenderness, the fact of. You see as I was telling you yesterday, my wife who comes down, who tells me I want to kiss you. It is that. That has taken more importance that, than the real sexual relationship, you see? Man Because, at some point, well, it is it is even more important to show because it is it is immediate. I want to kiss you. It is it is a desire, it is not oh well, come on, huh, let's go, no? It is as important, even more important when we are. Usaged to say.

*Speaker 1: [01:51:41] Yes, you talk about desire and not need.

*Speaker 2: [01:51:44] There you go. There you go, we have, we have, we have less needs when we are older, but we need other things. To say affection, cuddles. My wife is very cuddly because she suffered from that, from her childhood. We like that in the evening we watch TV, that I caress her neck, you see. It is it is as important as a sexual relationship and it is even more.

*Speaker 1: [01:52:19] Are you satisfied with your sexual life or with what you describe to me?

*Speaker 2: [01:52:22] No problem. No problem.

Speaker 1: [01:52:26] Uh. I will share my screen, I will show you a scale, I will ask you to answer 1 to 2 items from this scale. So I share my screen right away. So you tell me when you see it.

Speaker 2: [01:52:42] There you go, I see, there you go, I see. Generally, my partner really listens to me.

Speaker 1: [01:52:47] There you go. So generally, my partner really listens to me on a scale from one not at all true to nine, completely true. Where would you place yourself?

Speaker 2: [01:52:57] It is very true.

Speaker 1: [01:52:58] Very true. So why? Very true?

Speaker 2: [01:53:02] Well completely, we can't say completely. Because when you, when you talk to your partner depending on the moment. And the way you say it, it can. It is not always completely true because you want to say something and your partner is not listening because she is in a preoccupation, in a thing to solve that. So, it is very true, but it is not completely true because I love her, she didn't listen to me completely. We must come back at another time saying well let's go, I let her solve her preoccupation and I will come back so that is why I say it is very true.

Speaker 1: [01:53:44] So why not eight? Or why not six?

Speaker 2: [01:53:47] If eight? Oh no, eight. Why eight? Me, it is eight and eight.

Speaker 1: [01:53:51] Very well.

Speaker 2: [01:53:52] Eight. Eight.

Speaker 1: [01:53:52] It is very true. It is at seven.

Speaker 2: [01:53:54] Oh yes, because I was looking. I told you very true. But it is eight, it is eight, It is eight.

Speaker 1: [01:53:59] It is eight for you. Okay? So why not seven?

Speaker 2: [01:54:04] Well because I estimate that overall. She is well listening she and listens to me. I don't say 100% because she can have a preoccupation that I ignore, that I didn't grasp or that There you go, so.

Speaker 1: [01:54:31] My partner is generally listening to my needs on this same scale. Where would you place yourself?

Speaker 2: [01:54:40] My partner is generally listening to my needs.

Speaker 2: [01:54:46] Yeah, it is.

Speaker 2: [01:54:48] Considering our good relationships, there. Nine. It is true, the couples, she is listening. If I have if I need to talk to her and then that I explain well the situation, she is listening.

Speaker 1: [01:54:59] It is completely true. So why not eight?

Speaker 2: [01:55:09] Well because she wants to bring me satisfaction, you see? So she is completely listening. If if I tell her well, I have an Ah well, explain to me so, she will be really very listening because she, she wants it to continue going well, that I can solve if it is a problem that I can solve, you see? It is part of the good relationship we talked about throughout this interview.

Speaker 1: [01:55:35] Uh. There you go. How satisfied are you with your relationship? So it goes from completely dissatisfied, very dissatisfied, rather dissatisfied, somewhat neutral, rather satisfied, very satisfied and completely satisfied.

Speaker 2: [01:55:54] How satisfied are you with your relationship? I am completely satisfied. Otherwise we would have stayed [50-55] years together.

Speaker 1: [01:56:06] I listen to you, I listen to you.

Speaker 2: [01:56:07] I am. I look, very satisfied. No, rather satisfied. Somewhat neutral. I am completely satisfied. Because we always come back to what we said earlier. If it happened that tomorrow I feel that I am not satisfied anymore. We talk about it. Hum. Why is it not going well anymore? What did I do? What did you do? What is happening? You see so today I am completely satisfied. And if it happened. And everything is possible, since an event can happen, to say it is not going well anymore, well we talk about it to find again. It is to be completely satisfied.

Speaker 1: [01:56:46] Uh you answered me in a language form if we put all that in a numerical form? Zero being not at all satisfied and ten being completely satisfied. Where would you place yourself? Ten ten?

Speaker 2: [01:56:58] Well yes.

Speaker 1: [01:57:00] Very well.

Speaker 2: [01:57:01] Not coherent by telling you I will put this. No, no, I am completely satisfied.

Speaker 1: [01:57:06] So why not?

Speaker 2: [01:57:08] Because if I tell you if the nine happened. Yes, maybe if this morning there had been a problem, etc. I would have said but if this morning there had been a problem, I would have tried to solve it before having you in visual. Well, I will do something now, we must have solved the problem. We must not let things fester.

*Speaker 1: [01:57:34] Very well. Uh.

*Speaker 1: [01:57:37] Listen, we are reaching the end of the interview.

*Speaker 1: [01:57:41] Hum.

*Speaker 1: [01:57:42] Is there something you would like to add, clarify, correct a dimension that seems important to you or.

*Speaker 2: [01:57:52] No, because we mentioned the basis when we have real communication. Everything is there. We can say everything, as I said earlier, as I always tell my children we can say everything. Because sometimes it is less easy with a child, etc. I say we can say everything, it is the way of saying it and the moment to say it, because there are moments we wait, we wait, but we can. So if we communicate this way, what more do you want? We communicate, we observe each other, we see the reactions, we say well you don't seem to. So communication, No, no, we really went around. Well, for my part, went around. If, if, it is going well. And there is no reason for there to be any problem, there will be, there will be problems because they will be born from our life which is unfortunately full of obstacles and problems, but it will not be insurmountable.

*Speaker 1: [01:58:58] That is very well, but I thank you and I stop the recording.
