

Interviewer: Okay, good day. So thank you again for participating in this research project. And as we mentioned over email, we want to know more about your views on romantic relationships. And also we believe that your experience and perspective would also bring much to the project. So before we begin, would it be okay to record this interview? We'll only be using it for transcription and note taking.

Speaker: Yes.

Interviewer: Okay, thank you. Let's get things started. So we'll start off with a demographic section. So just to set things up. So how old are you, [Participant's Name]?

Speaker: The real age. [26-30].

Interviewer: Okay, so how long have you been together with your partner?

Speaker: [1-5] month, [1-5] month.

Interviewer: Okay, so I assume you do not have children yet.

Speaker: No, yes.

Interviewer: Okay, so who lives in the household or what's your current household setup?

Speaker: Household setup, I currently live in the [location]. I do have one room. She, my partner is living at their house.

Interviewer: Okay, so how about your main source of income? So, what's your main source of income at the moment?

Speaker: My own source of income or also with my partner?

Interviewer: Own source of income.

Speaker: My own source of income is for my job right now. Only my salary.

Interviewer: Okay, so would you mind if I ask about your current job?

Speaker: Sure. No, I won't mind. So currently I'm affiliated as a [occupation] of [Company], the [location]. So my salary comes from being a [occupation] of this [location].

Interviewer: Okay, I see. So how would you like us to address your partner?

Speaker: Address? Just call her by her name, her nickname, I mean [Partner's Name].

Interviewer: [Partner's Name], okay. So we'll call her [Partner's Name] throughout this interview. Okay, so can you tell us or can you tell me about your love story?

Speaker: Actually, we're not that, we just started like around [1-5] month ago. No, after she said yes [Date]. So actually she is still currently a [occupation] of the [Company] here in the [location]. Working together. Not necessarily because they're [occupation]. So at times when we need [occupation], they [occupation] here for [location], for [redacted], but we're not really colleagues at work. So she's still studying college. So I actually met her like [1-5] year ago, but I did not have any feelings about her. I actually didn't care about who the [occupation] were, not including her. I just worked with them during [location] like that. But eventually, when the last duty, [Month] and [Month] duties, the [redacted], we were actually working close during that time on [redacted]. That's when I had like deeper feelings for her. So and I confessed. That's when I confessed. But at first she actually said, initially she said no, she doesn't want any commitments right now. So I said, just think about it. But later on, she actually said yes. So that's it.

Interviewer: Okay, I see. So how would you compare the quality of your relationship compared to that of your friend's relationship? So how would you compare your current romantic relationship to that of your friend's romantic relationship or friend's relationship in general?

Speaker: How would I compare? I'm not sure how would I compare the both, with my friends and with my current girlfriend. But actually, it didn't change because we were actually friends with my girlfriend and her circle already because her circle is also [occupation] of the [Company]. So we were already friends plus the other [occupation] that are also my friends. So and up until now, even if she's already my girlfriend, but it did not as friends. And that's what actually she likes about it because nothing changed between me and the friends that we had.

Interviewer: How about your friend's relationship? How about your friend's relationship? How would you compare your current relationship to that of your friend's relationship?

Speaker: How would I compare it? The first is I really don't like to compare with what I have with others. No, no, but just to answer the question, challenge with us is that she is still studying challenge though and her family actually said but however my family, she already met my mother and we already had dinner. So I think that's in this comparison with my friends who already have their relationships because they're already open to their both families.

Interviewer: Okay, so more open for both sides of the family compared to those of your friends?

Speaker: No, my friends are more open to their families compared to us because for us she's open to my family already. She already met my mother but however she's still looking for a perfect time for me to meet her family.

Interviewer: Okay, that's clear. Can I also ask how many romantic partners you've had in the past?

Speaker: [1-5].

Interviewer: So amongst the [1-5], how would you compare the relationship?

Speaker: I think the biggest comparison is that right now I'm more matured compared to my past relationships. Actually my past relationships were mostly toxic relationships like the puppy love when you're just high school and college, that kind of love. When you're both toxic with each other, you don't want the other person to meet other persons or to mingle with other persons because you just want her to be yours all the time. However, right now what we have is that I want her to grow on her own world and I'm there to support her and she's also doing that with me the same. So I think that's the biggest comparison.

Interviewer: Okay do you mind if I ask what year she is in college now?

Speaker: College [1st-4th] year.

Interviewer: So for you, what makes a relationship high quality?

Speaker: How do I answer that? First is that you acknowledge that a relationship becomes high quality. First, you need to acknowledge that you have both different behaviors, attitudes, links. And second is after you acknowledge that, second is that you need to also acknowledge that sooner or later you will fight over those differences. However, you need to talk about that because those differences will actually be the strength of your relationship. When you talk about that I don't want this, that I don't want this, then you need to both meet halfway. She's not always right and I'm not always right. Second is that you acknowledge that you don't make that person your world because you personally need to grow at your own your own world and that person, your partner, should also grow at her own world. You just need to be there to support her. Next is that you need to say no to your partner because most of the time, as per experience you just always say, yes, yes we can do that, and yes, no because you want your partner to be happy all the time. But when you think that there is something wrong or there is a risk that could happen then you need to say no and explain that it will happen. You need to acknowledge that you're not the only person in her life, in his or her life, in your partner's and so again, she already has friends even before you met her, and I have friends even before I met her so what you just need to do is just you let that person meet your circle of friends and I actually met some in her circle already. So, I think that's all on my part and also you need to acknowledge the love language of your partner because you do have different love languages with your partner, you know, so if what her love language is you need to acknowledge that and you need to just encourage her to do that. How she shows her love for you or her attention for you and same with me so she needs to acknowledge that my language is this and I should let she should let me do show her the love on how on the ways how I want to show it to her.

Interviewer: Okay so how about on the other hand low quality so what makes a relationship low quality?

Speaker: Now first low quality first when you when you want that person to be yours all the time like you need to acknowledge again that we have different worlds even your partner's but you have different worlds that you can grow on now. If you don't grow as individuals then how can you let her your relationship grow? So that's first. Second is you don't support even you don't support your partner on his or her own hobbies activities. Now like for us, I play [Game Name], you know that ready I play [Game Name] so what she did is that I don't want to stop playing [Game Name]. She doesn't want me to stop also but she just wants that when I when I when I play [Game Name] she also sees. So what I do is that I I do stream in [Social Media] and she is the only audience so we meet halfway so we meet that way.

Interviewer: Based on what you mentioned, would you say that a high quality relationship is somehow meeting halfway?

Speaker: Yes yes it should be that of course it should be meeting halfway. Because again you do have different traits behaviors that it should and you you don't want to change your partner. You don't want to change your partner just because she she has that attitude you need to meet halfway.

Interviewer: So with that for you what is love?

Speaker: Uh, I actually told her this. Love is not just about feelings or emotions. Uh not just about uh right having strong emotions so that someone love is actually one thing that someone to succeed on her own field that's what I want her to to realize with our relationship that's that's for me. Anyway, so I already told her told her now um I want a future with her but that future includes not just having a family in the future but it includes her includes me seeing her uh graduate in her studies uh seeing uh having her work and she she really wants to help her family so that's me supporting her throughout all of that so I think that's what love is for me.

Interviewer: Okay so um with that, for you what are the most important things in a relationship?

Speaker: Understanding, uh understanding, because again you do have both different attitudes traits behaviors and even if you trust that someone if you cannot understand uh that that your partner will will do something that you don't want uh what we call this, oh you don't understand that your partner will actually make a mistake so if you want your partner to be perfect then important things in a relationship the most important thing is understanding. So you need to understand that your partner will make a mistake and you need to understand why she did or he did that mistake and you need to meet halfway again. Yeah so understanding, so actually love trust that's that's very minimum for our relationship so you cannot love that person if you don't trust her you cannot trust her if uh if you cannot trust her if uh you don't understand why she do the things that she do noh. So understanding really for me is the biggest relationship.

Interviewer: Okay thank you for that um so going back to your conceptualization of love so it's one of the most important things for you or to make a successful relationship but how important is love in a relationship?

Speaker: How important is love, it's it's very very important. Because why stay in a relationship if you don't love that person? If you don't love that person then go out of that relationship already. Yeah so if you fall if you fall out of love there might be reasons as to why you fall out of love it might be temporary it might be uh for that meantime no. But if you really love that person you would want that person you would really want to to work that relationship with that person no. So if you don't really if if love fails if love fails and if if that means that you should go out of that relationship already because there's no sense in staying.

Interviewer: So with that how do you know that a person loves you?

Speaker: How would I know? I just feel it. Actually, I think for me for me as I'm, I don't really have a specific that this this person, or [Partner's Name] loves me, no, I just feel it. The way, she she she cares for me, the way uh she reminds me of everything that I need to do. That's that's uh, bare minimum na ginagawa niya. She she cares for me, she she everything that she do actually. I don't have a specific ano that would tell me that that that person loves me. But in our case right now everything that she do tells me that she loves me. 'Yun lang.

Interviewer: Okay so you mentioned that the relationship is more on allowing each other to grow in their own world so with that would you say that the relationship is good for you?

Speaker: The relationship is good for me? In our relationship right now? Uh actually yes. Because uh we do have different uh priorities right now. I already told her you will not be my number one priority. I already told her, I told her don't make me your priority because your priority is your studies, you need to graduate, that's your priority right now. So my priority right now is my work noh. So we both support each other, I support her on her studies, she supports me on my work. And so I think we're I'm growing as a person in my own world and she's growing and a person as a person, as a student in her own world and she's slowly achieving success as a [occupation], and I'm slowly uh achieving success also in my field as already a [occupation] or a [occupation], noh, an [occupation]. And we both support each other so I think that relationship is very important to me. As I've already mentioned it to you, I've already practiced what we call that the last uh, quiet quitting.

Interviewer: Ah, quiet quitting.

Speaker: Yes I've already experienced quiet quitting, but right now uh I'm more I'm more I'm more uh what do you call this I'm more inspired sa work because there's someone besides my family that supports me.

Interviewer: Okay so you also mentioned that you have each you have you have your own priorities but how do you support or how do you show your support to each other given that priority?

Speaker: So she needs to make assignments, she needs to do like school activities no. Yeah I'll just ask her how can I help. If she doesn't want my help because she can do it, then well and good. If she's if she says can I borrow your laptop because we need to search for, we need to do our research, then I let her borrow my laptop. Uh when she does activities and I know, so I bring food to her that's how I support her and she supports me the same way actually in my work. Sometimes when I do have uh [documents], I need to print certificates, IDs, the same time I do the [documents]. Uh she volunteers now I'll print the certificate to do the training. So, actually if you look at it, it's a very small help it's very small support, but it's actually very uh it's actually has a very big impact only as her boyfriend. And I know that she, I bring her food or I help her with her activities that it inspires her to do better And, and sometimes when she fails in her exam in her, I'm there to support her same with me when I had my interview on other other organizations because I applied to other organizations, I did not know if, if I did well so I interviewed but she was there to support me and yeah.

Interviewer: Okay so with that it really shows how supportive you are to each other in your own environment but what can you say are the challenges in your relationship?

Speaker: As of the moment, one of the, one of our biggest challenge is uh I'll be honest one of our biggest challenge is money. First though I am working but I also gave a part of my salary. Also I also gave to her house. The good thing is that she doesn't want me to pay everything so when she has money but of course, when you are in a relationship, you need logistics, yeah. First you want to go you want to go outside you want to eat outside, I don't have a car, she doesn't have a car. I don't have motorcycles so we both don't have a motorcycle. So we commute, you're gonna need money when you eat outside. You're gonna need money when you buy food. One of the second challenge is that her family said that she doesn't want, she's not permitted yet to have a boyfriend. So I think that's one of the challenge, but uh I think she's looking for a way to tell her family to tell it. But I don't force, I'm not forcing her to tell her so it's up to her. I always don't tell her this it's up to you if you're going to tell her family or not but if you think if they're going to tell it and they want to talk to me, then I'm happy to go there sa house and I think that's the two biggest challenge, kasi sa family side ko, wala namang challenge.

Interviewer: Oay so two challenges money and then the family side... Hve you already fought about it or nag-away na ba kayo about sa mga challenge na 'to?

Speaker: Um, no. Money, no. But not really fight. I buy things for her, hindi naman mahal, is and she doesn't want that, she doesn't want someone... Hello?

Interviewer: Yes?

Speaker: Brownout, nagdata na lang ako. Data na lang ginamit ko.

Interviewer: Kaya naman?

Speaker: I'm not sure pero kung hindi man, kung hindi siya clear baka bumalik din naman yung wifi. Sorry, ano ulit yung question?

Interviewer: Um, fight.

Speaker: Fight, yes. Fight not really. When it comes to money, I buy things for her, but she doesn't, she doesn't want because she's not used to someone buying things for her. Oh she's not really used to that so uh sometimes she just tells me, gastador na kay ka, yes she's just going to tell me that. But really when fight na fight uh no, no we don't have uh big fights naman regarding those challenges.

Interviewer: Okay so are there other issues that you fight about?

Speaker: So far, no. No, I don't wala naman, because uh as I've said we're all we're just one month yet so maybe in the coming months. But right now, wala pa naman.

Interviewer: Okay okay um so if ever there comes a time na you fight about something how would you resolve these fights?

Speaker: Uh, actually I we already talked about that. If we ever have a big fight, we just need to talk about it, you know. So we just need to talk about it. We actually had one fight that's not about the challenges actually. So, it's it was actually not a big fight also. Mga luod-luod lang. But uh I went home, she went home, but we talk about it even in the chat. If we're going to have fights, if we're going to have arguments, we need to talk about it after we had our argument no, uh because we need to because ah, wait. Clear ba yung voice ko? Um, uh because we need to work things out, if so we can meet halfway. Uh, what what did you want, what you didn't like uh about what I did or what I didn't like about what she did, so, so that uh we can meet halfway. 'Yun lang. So communication talaga, [Name].

Interviewer: Okay so aside from your communication what other ways or what are other ways that you maintain the relationship?

Speaker: Maintain, um, constant ba 'yung term niyan?

Interviewer: Um, being consistent?

Speaker: Being consistent. Because she loves what I do right now. I'm consistent with her from the um the first day right now so you need to be consistent with everything that you do noh. So because uh, ano, that is something that girls actually uh ano, that's something na napapansin niya. Ehen your energy is low, when your energy is low, so that is something na napapansin niya. So you need to be you need to be consistent with everything that you do from day one up to the last day, 'yun lang talaga. And that's how relationship works for me, for me.

Interviewer: Okay um did the relationship change you?

Speaker: Yes.

Interviewer: In what way?

Speaker: Actually, actually, uh this is not from my own words and this is not my, from from my own words, it's the words of the closest person between our circle. Our circle, um the uh, dati, they always call me, the [occupation] call me grumpy. Because I don't smile, I don't smile to them. I don't smile to them noh. They just, when they say good morning, I'll just, just tell them (nods). And they never see me smile, so and also, sige lang kog kasuko, I always get angry like that. But when I, when she became my girlfriend so it unknowingly at myself, unknowingly, unknowingly, so the grumpiness uh faded. Faded so I don't easily get angry anymore and when I get angry, she she's there to, to comfort me uh, which is all that uh not just me but all my the closest. So even my boss asked me, nabago lagi ka, and all of my colleagues, sige na kag katawa, those are from their words, it's not mine so I really I can really say that this relationship really changed me.

Interviewer: Okay so how about [Partner's Name] or did you see that they change during the relationship?

Speaker: She changed actually actually I, I cannot really say for sure I cannot really say for sure because I the [Partner's Name] I met on the first day, it's the same [Partner's Name] I that is my girlfriend right now. For me she really did not change, every day I just discovered something about her that I did not know yesterday. So we're still also actually we're both still uh discovering each other kumabaga because we're still early so... it's the same sabaan na [Partner's Name] I met before until now.

Interviewer: Okay so too early to tell pa, for you.

Speaker: Yes for me, yes.

Interviewer: But on your end, you can see that there's a change?

Speaker: Uh yes yes I can see not just because we say the words of my colleagues here, sila jud ang nakapansin.

Interviewer: So with that do you feel safe in the relationship?

Speaker: Yes actually yes. I actually just told her that earlier uh you make me feel safe no, you make me feel safe. Um why, because she has constant though I don't need constant assurance because actually for me for me right now uh if she's going to, if she's going to cheat there'll be some, if she's going to cheat on me, I'm not saying that she's going to cheat, but if she's going to cheat on me, then she might, she she better cheat na early pa kami, like that. I'm not saying that she's going to cheat, I know that she won't. I know that she won't. But she needs, she gives me constant reassurance no, she gives me constant reassurance with her words the way with her words with her, with what she, you know so uh it makes me feel safe sa relationship lang.

Interviewer: So how about opening up um or do you feel safe when you open up your experiences, your problems?

Speaker: Yes actually yes I'm more I I open I sorry I feel better na nag-ooepn ako sa kanya, rather than I open up to my family. Because hindi ako talaga ma-open sa family ko, like my my my work regarding my work or regarding my my personal life, sorry, regarding my personal life.

Interviewer: So, going back, you mentioned that you're not open with sharing your work or personal life sa family.

Speaker: I know that because I know that she will not judge whatever it is that I open up her and you know so yeah.

Interviewer: Okay so proceeding to the next section, I'll be showing you a visual scale. So wait lang. Yes, okay, so we'll have the first scale. Ayan, on a scale of one to nine, nine how would you rate this?

Speaker: My partner usually really listens to me. Nine she really listens to me.

Interviewer: Okay so how about before that, um so you rated nine so why did you answer nine for that and for that scale?

Speaker: Uh because so far, from the, the first time that I opened up something to her no she already uh listened to me. Though, though she she already knew that I don't need that advice, I don't need advice on what I'm going to do but she just, she's just there to listen to me and so from the first time she already listened to me up to right now. So whatever it is that I'm going to share I'm going to share it through chat or through calls so but she's there to listen to.

Interviewer: Okay so um, can you give us concrete examples on when this happened. So you also, you already mentioned that you're sharing your work experiences, your personal life. So are there other things you also freely open or share to her?

Speaker: Actually, mostly my uh, my work experience. She was 100 percent so very very supportive even if it means me living [Company] if ever no so that's one thing uh she's very supportive so work.

Interviewer: Um would it be okay to repeat that because you're a bit choppy on my end.

Speaker: Um, yes I share work experience. Someone sent a link to me about job vacancy and other organizations and that I applied for it, she and when I shared it to her, she was very supportive in it, even if it means me leaving [Company]. And she's a [occupation] of the [Company] so if I leave, then no one will handle the [occupation] including her. So when it comes to uh, [Company] activities and so but she was still very very supportive.

Interviewer: Okay so thank you for that um so, you rated nine why not uh no why not seven or eight?

Speaker: Well not seven or eight, because again from the first time that I shared something regarding uh so work and also my experience when my father died, you know so she was already there listening to me up until now. So far that, I said is that uh she listened to me without prejudice without judgment.

Interviewer: Okay so proceeding to the next item, okay,so next item my partner usually is responsive to my needs so same scale on a scale of one to nine so how would you rate?

Speaker: Responsive to my needs, seven, seven. Yes, seven.

Interviewer: Why seven?

Speaker: Why seven because most of my needs sorry what needs?

Interviewer: Um. It depends on how you perceive the needs.

Speaker: Most of my needs is sometimes because since I'm already working and I'm most of the time busy okay no, so I feel angry and I forget to eat. I forget to eat no uh breakfast and, and lunch sometimes. So I know so there was one time when, when I got sick. Actually, last last week, last last week no, I got sick but I still needed to work. So I can I have a sore throat no, 'pag lumulunok ako, masakit talaga sa lalamunan. So uh, she actually bought some lugaw for me. So that's something that I really need. So she just asked, but I, uh but sometimes uh when I asked her with uh dali kog food be, I also uh I also acknowledge it that she doesn't have that much uh because she's still studying. So I also acknowledge that sometimes she cannot give me in that in that case no in that situation.

Interviewer: So seven okay so why not why not six or eight?

Speaker: Well six or eight why about, because so far she's been ano man, she's been uh responsive regarding my needs. Actually uh uh sometimes she just uh bring food because she knows.

Interviewer: Now okay so seven because consistent. So let's proceed to the next section and I hope you don't mind if I ask and just feel free to say if it's too sensitive for you but I also want to know of course your intimacy physical intimacy as a couple. So these days how often do you have sex or physical intimacy?

Speaker: When sex, we never had sex yet. Okay yes we never had sex yet but uh close to it okay. Uh close to it, foreplay we go, if that's the term. Because uh I promised her that there will be no sex until she graduates because first, she's she's afraid that she might get pregnant, even though we use uh window. I said that we can use uh like condoms. But uh as of now, I I sorry, I already promised her that there will be no sex until she graduates no. So if that's what she wants so I'm just I'm here to support it throughout no so but close to it yes.

Interviewer: And so with that how satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker: Siguro seven because as I say because uh even if we do have that promise no, no there will be no sex until she graduates but I know there's time that when we do that close to sex thing, she wants to do it and I want to do it but dili lang namo buhaton, because of that promise that we need. So I think I'm at seven.

Interviewer: So thank you for sharing that. So okay so we'll proceed with another scale. In general with these things in mind how satisfied are you with your relationship?

Speaker: Um for right now. I'm completely satisfied.

Interviewer: Completely.

Speaker: Yes completely satisfied. Uh though I've already mentioned earlier, now like when it comes to sex that we already have a promise that there will be no sex until she graduates but uh when it comes to physical intimacy it's not really my love language. It happens lang, kasi open kami sa gan'on. Pero, so far on other aspects of our relationship, it's actually very satisfied or completely satisfied.

Interviewer: Okay so with that how would you rate the satisfaction or your satisfaction in numerical terms with your relationship zero to ten so how satisfied?

Speaker: Completely ten, yes because uh I already told her this. My life right now is actually on the right track because of her coming in no uh, though there are things that we cannot do because we have a promise but it's a price for later no. So what what's what's what's, it's a price for later so right now what what uh matters most that uh we support each other on our field and that uh we let each other grow because because I'm completely really completely satisfied.

Interviewer: So with that um thank you so much for sharing so let me just we're just close to wrapping things up but I would just like to summarize um what you have conversed about in the pat. So let me just share it in a while so yeah feel free to feel free to respond or correct at any moment.

Interviewer: So with demographics starting off with demographics, your age is [26-30] and the relationship is you've been together for [1-5] month. So no children yet and you both live in different um houses uh so you're living in your [location] and then and then your main source of income is your salary as a [occupation] at [Company]. And then so as for your love story, so she said yes, [Date] so you're working with the [occupation] and she's currently in [1st-4th] year college so studying college and then you met her [1-5] years ago but you do not have any feelings yet, but you're in the same group of friends or same circle with the [occupation]. And then eventually with your last duty, you you somehow got close with the [project] first and then you confessed your feelings and then initially she said no but um over time you told her to think about it, and then she said yes okay.

Interviewer: And then with relationship quality you mentioned that there was no change with the treatment of how you treated her as a friend and then as your girlfriend over time and then if you're if you compare it with your friends' relationships, the relationship is more open and the relationship their relationship is more open since you also have some limitations with the family. Okay and then you had [1-5] previous girlfriends excluding flings and then compared to your previous relationships you mentioned that you're more matured and the previous relationships were actually toxic and in this relationship you want her to grow in her own world so you'll mention that same wavelength okay. And then you also mention a high quality relationship is acknowledging that you're you have differences that will continue if you talk about it and then you have to meet halfway and then you have your own world our own environment but you're always there to support.

Interviewer: And as for low quality the opposite of what you mentioned the high quality but basically no support on their hobbies and then you want that person to be your world or yours all the time. So for you the most important thing in a relationship is understanding, as love and trust is somehow the bare minimum of the relationship. As for your conceptualization of love, you believe that love is one thing that makes a relationship successful so you want to build a future with her but also that means that you want to see her graduate, you want to see her fulfill her goals as a as who she is.

Speaker: Yes it's part of our future together.

Interviewer: Okay so in terms of indicators of love so you just feel it what she does is already an indication of true love for you. Delving to conflict you mentioned that two of your biggest challenges are money and the family side. As for money you're working but you also give a portion of your salary to your to your house to your family and of course you have at first before [Partner's Name] came you're set on what's left from your salary is for you, but now since she came she also has a portion. So more on the logistics part and then the family since she's not yet allowed to have a boyfriend and then you had no major fights yet but in if ever there are your ways of resolving it is through communication and meeting halfway or working things out.

Interviewer: And then as for relationship maintenance aside from communication of course you have to be consistent in order to maintain the relationship and I'd also like to highlight this because you also kept on mentioning it even though you have different priorities different and different environments so you allow each other to grow in each other world so you have your own priorities you have your own environment but the relationship really made you more inspired the work and it also led you to tell like not based on your colleagues or your um [occupation's] feedback they mentioned that it changed you. And then but for her we cannot say cannot say at this early time but you highlighted that the [Partner's Name] you met in the first day is the same [Partner's Name] that you're interacting with until now. And though we're we're just discovering parts of each other every day and then you also mentioned that the relationship makes you feel safe because of the constant um constant interactions constant reassurance and you also feel better when you open up when with your work and personal life.

Interviewer: So with our visual skills with the statement my partner used really really listens to me rated nine because she is always there to listen for you even at the very first moment when you're sharing about your experiences and even up until now. And then as for the responsiveness to needs to your needs so you rated seven because there are also some needs you acknowledge that there are also some needs that she cannot yet provide for you yes. So as for sex um you never had sex but you had um interactions or intimacies that are close to it because you promised that there will be no sex until she graduates. So you also rated your sex life as seven because there are also another there are also some actions that um already you cannot yet do but you remember your promise to each other so in general you're completely satisfied with the rating of 10 so you can't ask for anything else in the relationship. And basically that sums up the interview so was that right is there anything yes you'd like to add?

Interviewer: Thank you so much again this, so before we end--

Speaker: I hope I was able to help you with your research.

Interviewer: Yes yes very helpful so before we end I want to talk to you about a little about how we will handle the data so of course as a research project we also want to be ethically transparent as possible so I'll be providing you with two options with data sharing so let me know which one works for you so for option number one transcript portions can be shared so none of which can be identified to you so the de-identified transcript can also be read by other researchers so that's option one and then option two the whole transcript will be shared of course sensitive information and identifying details will be anonymized but there's a minimal chance that someone who knows you can piece together the details so if ever you share the whole transcript but it would take time for them to identify you since they have to look into the reference the supplementary material so but so although again no sensitive information or no information that might identify you will be provided so of these two options so which are you comfortable actually comfortable with both options?

Speaker: It's up to you what you what you both needed more on your research doesn't matter okay it's fine it's up to you.

Interviewer: wow so with that thank you so much again for your participation as in really really thank you so i would also like you to know that this is actually being done also in the Philippines brazil turkey france in the u.s so multi-country research project so for this study to be successful one more thing that you will ask for you so can you recommend two close people in your life as a nominator so um we'd ask them for additional couples that might be interested in this study that you don't know or interact with so because we do not see each other often um oh as long as long as i know as long as it's uh close friends we can bother to ask for an offer additional couple um two close people as nominators because as nominators they'll be providing more couples we can interview the two people that i will nominate you will also interview it or no um see you nominate or um but yes okay see i'll message the i'll message the names to you okay um thank you again for your participation
