

Speaker 1: Yes, thank you very much again for joining this call. As you have mentioned in your messages, we would like to learn more about your view on romantic relationships. And we think that your experiences and your point of view will contribute a lot to the project. Before we start, let me ask you again. Is it okay for me to record this interview? We will only use this recording for transcription.

Speaker 2: There is no problem appropriate.

Speaker 1: Okay. REDACTED How old are you?

Speaker 2: [21-25].

Speaker 1: How long have you been with your partner?

Speaker 2: It has been [1-5] years.

Speaker 1: Do you have children?

Speaker 2: No, there is not.

Speaker 1: Who do you live with at home?

Speaker 2: I have a roommate now, I live with her.

Speaker 1: What is your main source of income? If you have a job right now, I can ask about that too.

Speaker 2: I am working now, in the evenings. I have my own source of income now.

Speaker 1: How would you like me to address your partner. Boyfriend, spouse, lover, partner. Or it can be a form of address that you prefer.

Speaker 2: You can say lover.

Speaker 1: Okay. Can you tell me the story of how you met your boyfriend and how your relationship started?

Speaker 2: We knew each other when we were children, and then I moved to another district. We lost touch a lot. Then somehow our paths crossed again. When we were in high school. Then we communicated again, and that's how we started.

Speaker 1: So how did your relationship develop?

Speaker 2: I mean. It developed with a little patience, actually. I mean, we both waited for something and then I can say it developed.

Speaker 1: Okay. How would you rate the quality of your own relationship compared to your friends' relationships?

Speaker 2: I would rate it as good quality.

Speaker 1: Can you open this a little bit more?

Speaker 2: Okay. So. I think it's above some standards, you know, in terms of understanding, you know, in terms of respect in the relationship. I think everything is at a good level of what it should be, so I would call our relationship quality.

Speaker 1: Okay. Can I ask you how many romantic relationships have you had in the past?

Speaker 2: Yes. I had one other relationship like this before. It had to end. So it's over now.

Speaker 1: Okay. How would you rate the quality of your current relationship compared to your previous relationship?

Speaker 2: I think this one is of much higher quality, because as I said, it is a matter of understanding and respect. These were things that I felt very much lacking in that older relationship. That's why I think I have a better quality relationship now.

Speaker 1: Okay. Why do you think so? I mean, yes, you talked about understanding and respect. But I would appreciate it if you could elaborate a little bit more on these concepts.

Speaker 2: For example. After an argument. The other person is doing something. He is making an effort to solve that argument. He feels that you might be offended about something. You know, he understands that. He acts accordingly. Or he tries harder not to offend. He is more understanding. He tries to respect your private life. It's a good thing for me to strive for these things for the relationship.

Speaker 1: Yes, actually you touched on it a little bit. But I also want to ask the question, what makes a relationship high quality for you? Or things.

Speaker 2: I think the level of communication between us is very important. For example, I personally have some difficulties in this regard. But my boyfriend is better than me in this regard. Somehow we are trying to make up for my deficiency. Communication is very important. Respect is very important, as I said, understanding is also very important. The most important thing is love ["love" in native language]. Loyalty. These are the things that must be for me.

Speaker 1: So if I asked you what makes a relationship low quality, how would you answer?

Speaker 2: The other person needs to listen to you and understand you. When you speak, he/she needs to give you time. I mean, not when he is free, but just for you. So these can reduce the quality of the relationship.

Speaker 1: So would you say that high quality relationships for you are relationships with a high level of communication and understanding?

Speaker 2: Yes.

Speaker 1: So how do we know that a person is in such a relationship? That the level of communication, understanding and love is actually high? You know, how can a person understand? Can you tell us a little bit more about that?

Speaker 2: Are we looking from an outside perspective at the first person's relationship right now? Or am I looking at my partner?

Speaker 1: So how is it when a person is in such a relationship with his partner?

Speaker 2: It depends on how satisfied you are with that relationship. I mean, I have expectations from a relationship. If it can meet it, if I am satisfied with it, if I don't have any problems with it. You know, I can be sure that you are in such a relationship.

Speaker 1: So for you, a relationship with a high level of communication is related to expectations. As far as I understand. Or I misunderstood, sorry.

Speaker 2: No, I mean I expect these from a relationship and the other person can give me that. I feel that. I feel that he can give me that. Then I can understand.

Speaker 1: So when would you say that your relationship has a high level of communication?

Speaker 2: I think it is usually high. We usually have a high level of communication. I mean, in terms of sharing things, in terms of telling about our day, in terms of sharing if we are having a problem. We do this comfortably. It is only after an argument that there is a breakdown in our communication, which is something I am trying to overcome in this relationship. Other than that, we have very good communication.

Speaker 1: And when was the least time?

Speaker 2: When we have little communication? I mean, he is not someone who argues all the time, there are times when we argue. Because I don't want to talk for a while, I want to think by myself, after an argument, my boyfriend wants to talk all the time. This is a problem we have between us. There is a communication breakdown here. Other than that, there are no problems.

Speaker 1: If it's appropriate, you actually touched a little bit on these in your previous answers. But I would like to ask you again, what are the most important things for you in a relationship?

Speaker 2: So I think my answers will be similar. But understanding is very important. It is very important that I trust the other person. His loyalty to me is very important. His behavior towards other people is also very important. How does he approach other people? I mean, how is his personality in daily life? I pay a lot of attention to that. It is important that we love ["love" in native language] and respect each other.

Speaker 1: Can you explain these concepts a little bit more? Actually, you talked about understanding, trust, loyalty, love and respect. I would appreciate it if you could elaborate a little more. Why do you think this way?

Speaker 2: Why do I think like that? Because I think these are things that have to happen. I mean, even in a relationship with a friend. You need to understand and listen to the other person. Because you share something. You are together all the time. You will share things. You will share yourself. If you are having a problem. If you had an event that day. The other person should listen and understand. If you are happy or sad about something, they should do it with you. In my opinion. Apart from that, you should always feel his love ["love" in native language]. I mean, it's not just a matter of words. He has to make you feel it too. When you feel that too, I think it turns into a beautiful relationship.

Speaker 1: So, what does love mean to you?

Speaker 2: What does love mean to me? I don't know. How can I answer? I think love (aşk) is something that should be in a person's life. Even if you don't want it, it's something that can happen to you. I don't know. Is it something inherent in human nature? I don't know, I don't know. I think it's something that has to happen, so experiencing it has a positive or negative effect on your life. If it's true love (aşk), if it has a positive effect on your life, I think it's a beautiful love (aşk).

Speaker 1: I'm sorry, Ms. REDACTED. You're a little bit intermittent, but I think it's my internet. I'll connect it on one of my phones. I'm really sorry.

Speaker 1: Okay. I actually understand what you are saying, but I don't want to miss anything because the sound cuts out sometimes. I'm connecting. Sorry really... Yes, I think we have a better internet connection now. I'm sorry again. Actually, I'm sorry, I'm really sorry and I'll ask you again. I mean, I heard everything at the beginning, but towards the end you said that I think it's something that is actually in the nature of human beings. You said that life can have positive and negative effects. At that time there were interruptions in my internet. Is it possible to understand that again from you?

Speaker 2: Of course. I don't know exactly biologically, of course, I just think, I think it's something that can happen in nature. I mean, since this is something that can happen, it will have a positive or negative effect on our lives. If what we call love (aşk) is real love (aşk), it has a positive effect on life.

Speaker 1: So, how important is love in a relationship?

Speaker 2: I think it is as important as respect. Because that's what binds us to each other. That's what separates us from two friends.

Speaker 1: How do you know if your partner, your lover, loves you?

Speaker 2: How do I know? If he has other behaviors towards me that are special from other people and he does it from the inside, he really wants to do it from the inside, if I feel it, then I know.

Speaker 1: You mentioned his special behavior towards you, right? I'm sorry, but something happened on the internet. I was trying to understand the sentence. If you could elaborate a little bit more, I would appreciate this special behavior.

Speaker 2: There have to be things that can separate us from two friends. Whether it is his attitude towards me, his behavior towards me, the way he looks at me. When I feel these things, I can understand from the other side, that is, how much he loves me, how much he loves me, how much he is interested in me.

Speaker 1: So, what would you say are the challenges in your relationship with your partner?

Speaker 2: The difficulties in our relationship, I mean, to be honest, I would say, looking at the problems we are having now. Actually we are the same age. We are a few months apart. I mean, maybe this is a general thing, but I think men mature a little bit late. There are some behaviors that I expect to be more mature. Other than that, you know, getting out of the family's influence, being able to do things on your own. Other than that, I don't know, we don't really have any other big problems. There is also a problem for me. I have some communication problems. You know, these are things I am aware of. Other than that, we don't have any big problems.

Speaker 1: Do you and your partner fight?

Speaker 2: Fighting, I mean, yes, we have arguments.

Speaker 1: So would you say that these discussions happen often?

Speaker 2: Not too extremely often. How can I give time? There is no time I can give, but I can say it is not extremely frequent.

Speaker 1: What are these discussions about?

Speaker 2: So it's not really about other people. It's usually always about things that he and I have experienced. It's about our own personal characteristics. So if one of us is uncomfortable with a trait, a behavior, we usually argue about it. But at the end of the discussion, there is an improvement. So we try to make it better. So we take a step. So we don't have an unhealthy discussion.

Speaker 1: Actually, I was going to ask you something related to that, how do you resolve these debates?

Speaker 2: So if we both understand that problem, if we realize what that problem is, we start thinking about what we can do about it. So we try to solve it somehow.

Speaker 1: Can you explain a little bit more? How are you trying to solve it?

Speaker 2: So if we have a behavior, or if we have a wrong statement, we are much more careful to say it and not to do that behavior. Because we know that if we are both uncomfortable with it, we have to solve it somehow. Otherwise it's worse. So after correcting that behavior. This, as I said, is something about understanding. If the other person thinks that I am uncomfortable with that behavior or if I think that he is uncomfortable with my behavior, I take care not to do it again. In order not to disturb him. This is how we solve our arguments.

Speaker 1: Actually those compromise ways that you mentioned. So apart from solutions like both of you focusing on a problem, not doing it again, what are the other ways to maintain your relationship?

Speaker 2: Other ways of maintaining our relationship. I don't know, I don't know, actually when we let it go like this, it seems to go by itself, but there must be a way. If we keep doing everything like we are doing now, it will work because we are both happy with the way it is. We both think that these things are necessary in a relationship. You know, I think our views on the relationship are the same, so I think we are moving forward somehow when we maintain our current behavior.

Speaker 1: I was wondering if you can hear me now, because your image is gone. I was wondering, is it again? Yes, he's in our view now, great. I hope you weren't talking about anything. Last time you talked about protecting your behavior at work. It was really such a misfortune today, something that has never happened before, I am very sorry again. One other question: Would you say that this relationship is good for you?

Speaker 2: I can say. So he is a person who is good for me and this relationship is a relationship that is good for me.

Speaker 1: Why?

Speaker 2: I can say that it is good for me. Because he is a person who understands me, who listens to me, someone who is even willing to change things in my life for me. So I have no doubt about his love for me. I feel that he is good for me because he tries to make me feel good.

So if I feel bad about something, he tries not to do it. He is someone who is good for me in every sense as a friend or as a partner. He is good for me in every sense.

Speaker 1: Can you give an example? I mean, in every sense, in every aspect of my life you mentioned that it felt good. Or the other understanding, listening. I would be very grateful if you could give some examples.

Speaker 2: Sure. I mean, like I said, understanding me, listening to me. In my personal life I'm going through something. Like, not every person wants to listen to this. Not every person wants to hear this and do something about it. But when I come and tell him about a problem I have in my personal life, he listens and understands it as if it were his own problem. If he can do something about it, he tries to do it. Other than that, for example, when he wants to discover something, he wants to do it with me. I mean he wants to go somewhere new. For example, he tells me to come and let's go. I mean, he wants to do things with me that will make him happy. I think this is a good thing. In the same way, if I'm going to experience something new, I prefer to experience it with him. It's a little bit like we have brought the other person into our lives in such a way that we want to do something. So in a way, their happiness is like our happiness too. So I think these are things that are important.

Speaker 1: So has this relationship changed you?

Speaker 2: Well, it didn't change me much personally because I tried to look at life in this way after my last relationship a little bit. There were shortcomings that I had in my last relationship. Then, because I realized that those shortcomings were not here, because I wanted exactly this kind of relationship, I just continued to be the way I was. Because of my age, of course there were things that I grew up with, but there was no point where the relationship changed me.

Speaker 1: And did your lover change during that relationship?

Speaker 2: During the relationship we had? I mean, I don't think he has changed much either. I can only say that things have changed because of our age, but other than that there has been no change.

Speaker 1: Do you feel safe in this relationship?

Speaker 2: I feel it. I mean I don't know what kind of confidence, but I feel it.

Speaker 1: Can you explain a little bit more why you say that?

Speaker 2: I don't feel uneasy, I mean during the relationship and I feel like something is going right. And that gives me a feeling of trust.

Speaker 1: Actually, again, I would ask you to illustrate a little bit more. Maybe the absence of this uneasiness, maybe in other ways. I mean, you can give examples of moments when you felt safe or why it happened.

Speaker 2: So that feeling of peacefulness is all about the other person making me feel that. I don't know how to put the sentence together because I couldn't fully understand that trust thing. The trust question. The behavior of the person, my boyfriend's behavior... He doesn't put me in such a thing, he doesn't put me in a binary way of thinking. He behaves as he really is. If I know where and how he will behave, if I know how he will behave, I say that he will think this, he will do this, this is what he wants, and he really does that. So there's no doubt between us, that's why I feel a sense of trust. I mean I'm not uneasy around him because I know more or less what he's going to do. He always behaves the same way. I don't know, this question was a bit complicated for me to answer because I didn't understand the question completely. So I can say that I don't feel insecure around him.

Speaker 1: You can actually see it too. The zoom time is running out upstairs. Unfortunately, I do not have a premium account because I am a student. That's why I don't want to interrupt your words. I mean, what you say is very valuable for us. If you wish, without interrupting either of us. Let's open a second party. If you are available. I will send you a second link via whatsapp in a minute or two. If it's okay, then I'm closing this recording. Let's continue with a second recording.

Speaker 2: Okay.

Speaker 1: See you in a few minutes.

Speaker 2: See you soon.

12A - Sinem_5-10_High_Median-High_Partner1_PART2

Speaker 1: In our next question, I have a couple of questions that I will actually ask you by visualizing. I hope you can see them. Like this... Can you see, if I ask you, my partner usually really listens to me. On a scale of one not true at all and nine completely true, what would be your answer?

Speaker 2: I guess I would say he listens to me completely.

Speaker 1: So you prefer nine.

Speaker 2: Nine.

Speaker 1: Okay. My partner is usually sensitive to my needs.

Speaker 2: Nine.

Speaker 1: Why, going back to the first question, my partner usually really listens to me, why did you answer nine?

Speaker 2: I mean he really listens because... He tries to do something about what he listens to. To say something like that, to express his/her opinion, to show it in his/her behavior. So he also tries to do something about it. So he has really listened to it. He has come to the point where he can do something about it. So I think he really listened.

Speaker 1: Can you give better concrete examples of what you have achieved with this in your relationship?

Speaker 2: How can I give it? For example, I went to him in the most irrelevant way, with a matter that did not concern him at all. So we met, we talked. Then I started talking about my friends, for example. That day I had a happy experience with my friends, I had a problem. Then when I come and talk to him, he gives his opinion. I mean, I think it's like this, like this. Or you should think like this, you should do like this. You know, he really listens to me and if I have a problem, he tries to find a solution to it. It's only about my external, you know, my life outside of him. It's the same with something we live together, that is, if we have something in common, when I tell him that I think this is like this and that, he listens to it, he filters it through his own filter. Then, if he thinks differently, he tells me. Or if he thinks what I say is the same. He says yes, let's do this and that then. So he really listens and tries to find a solution for everything.

Speaker 1: So why nine and not eight?

Speaker 2: Because the question is asking usually. I mean, maybe sometimes it doesn't happen, but it usually happens.

Speaker 1: Yes actually very sorry my computer froze. In another question I asked you that my partner is usually sensitive to my needs and you answered nine. Again I was going to ask why we prefer nine.

Speaker 2: For example, there are also issues where he is insensitive, but it is very rare. That's why I said usually nine. Let me talk about our relationship again. So let's say something happened between us again. Or nothing happened between us. I just have a need. Either I want to be alone or I don't want to talk at that moment or I need to talk at that moment. If I tell my boyfriend that I need to talk to you at that moment, he would probably prefer to throw everything aside and talk to me. When I say I don't want to talk right now, this is actually something he has a little bit of difficulty with. He always wants to talk because when we have a problem or something. He is more of a person who prefers to talk. But lately this is a problem we are trying to overcome. I want to use my own space. When I tell him to give me some time, he finds it difficult. But he still tries to do that too. So he tries to respect that too.

Speaker 1: So I will ask again why nine and not eight.

Speaker 2: Again because of that usually thing, actually. I could say eight, but since the question asks usually, it is very rare that he does not do this. That's why I preferred to say nine.

Speaker 1: I hope you don't mind me asking. And if this is a sensitive subject for you, please feel free to say so. But I would also like to know more about your physical intimacy as a couple. How often do you have sexual intercourse these days?

Speaker 2: We don't see each other much these days.

Speaker 1: And how satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker 2: I am very satisfied.

Speaker 1: Would you like to explain a little bit more why you say that?

Speaker 2: I mean, in the end, we have certain needs and desires while living it. We both respect them. You know, the things we experience are very satisfying, very good things for us. So I think we are both satisfied.

Speaker 1: Yes. Tell me my last question to you in such a visualized way. If I ask you how dissatisfied you are with your relationship in general. Between completely dissatisfied and completely satisfied, which one would you consider appropriate for your relationship?

Speaker 2: I am completely satisfied with my relationship.

Speaker 1: How would you rate your satisfaction with your relationship, between zero, not satisfied at all and ten, completely satisfied, which would you say is appropriate?

Speaker 2: I would say I am completely satisfied with that.

Speaker 1: So ten then. Why did you answer ten?

Speaker 2: Because there is not much that I am not satisfied with. So it's a good relationship for me in every sense. By the standards of a relationship, I'm in a relationship that I'm very satisfied with, so there's nothing that I'm not satisfied with.

Speaker 1: Can you tell me why ten and not nine?

Speaker 2: So there are some problems, maybe we have, maybe we will have in the future, that can spoil this satisfaction. But nevertheless we think that it's just something that can happen. I mean, at least I think, there may be problems, there may be complaints that may spoil the satisfaction, but in general we have a relationship that we both want. We both love each other and we both continue to do that. So I wouldn't want to continue something that I am not satisfied with. That's why I can say that I am completely satisfied, I mean I can say that sincerely.

Speaker 1: Did your relationship meet your expectations?

Speaker 2: My relationship has met my expectations. My expectations that I said at the beginning are being met.

Speaker 1: Yes, Ms. REDACTED, we are about to finish. I would like to summarize what we talked about in the last hour. You are [21-25] years old, you have been in a relationship for [1-5] years. You met as children. Then in high school you reconnected with your lover. Understanding and respect and communication are very valuable for you in the relationship. And you used it to define love in the relationship as what distinguishes it from two friends. You mentioned the value of trust and loyalty again. You mentioned that one of the ways to maintain the relationship is to maintain the behavior. You mentioned that you have a lover who listens, who understands and that's why this relationship makes you feel good. And you mentioned that you and your lover did not change much in the relationship, that your character changed due to your age. Was that true? And is there anything you would like to add?

Speaker 2: These are correct. And I have nothing to add.

Speaker 1: And finally, how comfortable did you feel talking about these issues?

Speaker 2: I am very comfortable.

Speaker 1: Okay. Yes, thank you very much again. Now before we finish, I actually mentioned to you before we started the recording, I would like to give you some information about how we are going to handle the data. And we actually want you to have the choice in this. As a research project we want to be as transparent as ethically possible. So we want you to decide. Which data sharing option is appropriate. Your first option. To share parts of the transcript of our interview. None of this transcript information will contain any information that can identify you. This way, our de-identified interview transcript can be read by other researchers. The second option, if you don't mind and if you want to be a bit bolder, is to share the entire interview transcript anonymized and stripped of sensitive and overly identifying details, so that someone who knows you well has a small chance of piecing together the details of the interview transcript and narrowing down the choices of who you are among colleagues. Again, I would like to emphasize that no sensitive information will be shared in this option. Which option would you prefer?

Speaker 2: For me the interview is completely shareable, no problem. I'm very sick right now, I don't know how I look, if the image is shared, I don't prefer that.

Speaker 1: Image is not shared.

Speaker 2: Everything else can be used.

Speaker 1: Then I can say that the second option is suitable for you, right?

Speaker 2: Okay.

Speaker 1: All right. Thank you very much again for participating in the study.

I would like you to know that these studies have been conducted in the Philippines, Brazil, the Netherlands, France and the USA. I have one last favor to ask of you for the success of this work,

If it's okay with you, can you nominate two close people in your life? We will ask them to suggest other couples who might be interested in this work. And we will ask them to suggest couples that you don't know or have not interacted with. In this way, we aim to reach as different and diverse participants as possible. Is this suitable for you?

Speaker 2: That's fine, I can ask some of my friends around me.

Speaker 1: All right. That's great. Thank you very much again. Then I guess I can contact you on whatsapp about the couples you can suggest. If that's okay with you?

Speaker 2: All right.

Speaker 1: Thank you very much. If the couples you will contact agree, if they have the consent to participate in this study. You can give them a little notice before we contact them so that they do not leave us unanswered. We would be very grateful to go to work. Thank you very much again, you guys.

Speaker 2: I thank you, thank you, good work.

Speaker 1: I'll close the recording then, if that's okay with you.

Speaker 2: Okay.

PART 2

Speaker 1: In our next question, I have a couple of questions that I will actually ask you by visualizing. I hope you can see them. Like this... Can you see, if I ask you, my partner usually really listens to me. On a scale of one not true at all and nine completely true, what would be your answer?

Speaker 2: I guess I would say he listens to me completely.

Speaker 1: So you prefer nine.

Speaker 2: Nine.

Speaker 1: Okay. My partner is usually sensitive to my needs.

Speaker 2: Nine.

Speaker 1: Why, going back to the first question, my partner usually really listens to me, why did you answer nine?

Speaker 2: I mean he really listens because... He tries to do something about what he listens to. To say something like that, to express his/her opinion, to show it in his/her behavior. So he also tries to do something about it. So he has really listened to it. He has come to the point where he can do something about it. So I think he really listened.

Speaker 1: Can you give better concrete examples of what you have achieved with this in your relationship?

Speaker 2: How can I give it? For example, I went to him in the most irrelevant way, with a matter that did not concern him at all. So we met, we talked. Then I started talking about my friends, for example. That day I had a happy experience with my friends, I had a problem. Then when I come and talk to him, he gives his opinion. I mean, I think it's like this, like this. Or you should think like this, you should do like this. You know, he really listens to me and if I have a problem, he tries to find a solution to it. It's only about my external, you know, my life outside of him. It's the same with something we live together, that is, if we have something in common, when I tell him that I think this is like this and that, he listens to it, he filters it through his own filter. Then, if he thinks differently, he tells me. Or if he thinks what I say is the same. He says yes, let's do this and that then. So he really listens and tries to find a solution for everything.

Speaker 1: So why nine and not eight?

Speaker 2: Because the question is asking usually. I mean, maybe sometimes it doesn't happen, but it usually happens.

Speaker 1: Yes actually very sorry my computer froze. In another question I asked you that my partner is usually sensitive to my needs and you answered nine. Again I was going to ask why we prefer nine.

Speaker 2: For example, there are also issues where he is insensitive, but it is very rare. That's why I said usually nine. Let me talk about our relationship again. So let's say something happened between us again. Or nothing happened between us. I just have a need. Either I want to be alone or I don't want to talk at that moment or I need to talk at that moment. If I tell my boyfriend that I need to talk to you at that moment, he would probably prefer to throw everything aside and talk to me. But he still tries to do that too. So he tries to respect that too.

Speaker 1: So I will ask again why nine and not eight.

Speaker 2: Again because of that usually thing, actually. I could say eight, but since the question asks usually, it is very rare that he does not do this. That's why I preferred to say nine.

Speaker 1: I hope you don't mind me asking. And if this is a sensitive subject for you, please feel free to say so. But I would also like to know more about your physical intimacy as a couple. How often do you have sexual intercourse these days?

Speaker 2: We don't see each other much these days.

Speaker 1: And how satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker 2: I am very satisfied.

Speaker 1: Would you like to explain a little bit more why you say that?

Speaker 2: I mean, in the end, we have certain needs and desires while living it. We both respect them. You know, the things we experience are very satisfying, very good things for us. So I think we are both satisfied.

Speaker 1: Yes. Tell me my last question to you in such a visualized way. If I ask you how dissatisfied you are with your relationship in general. Between completely dissatisfied and completely satisfied, which one would you consider appropriate for your relationship?

Speaker 2: I am completely satisfied with my relationship.

Speaker 1: How would you rate your satisfaction with your relationship, between zero, not satisfied at all and ten, completely satisfied, which would you say is appropriate?

Speaker 2: I would say I am completely satisfied with that.

Speaker 1: So ten then. Why did you answer ten?

Speaker 2: Because there is not much that I am not satisfied with. So it's a good relationship for me in every sense. By the standards of a relationship, I'm in a relationship that I'm very satisfied with, so there's nothing that I'm not satisfied with.

Speaker 1: Can you tell me why ten and not nine?

Speaker 2: So there are some problems, maybe we have, maybe we will have in the future, that can spoil this satisfaction. But nevertheless we think that it's just something that can happen. I mean, at least I think, there may be problems, there may be complaints that may spoil the satisfaction, but in general we have a relationship that we both want. We both love each other and we both continue to do that. So I wouldn't want to continue something that I am not satisfied with. That's why I can say that I am completely satisfied, I mean I can say that sincerely.

Speaker 1: Did your relationship meet your expectations?

Speaker 2: My relationship has met my expectations. My expectations that I said at the beginning are being met.

Speaker 1: Yes, Ms. REDACTED, we are about to finish. I would like to summarize what we talked about in the last hour. You are [21-25] years old, you have been in a relationship for [1-5] years. You met as children. Then in high school you reconnected with your lover. Understanding and respect and communication are very valuable for you in the relationship. And you used it to define love in the relationship as what distinguishes it from two friends. You mentioned the value of trust and loyalty again. You mentioned that one of the ways to maintain the relationship is to maintain the behavior. You mentioned that you have a lover who listens, who understands and that's why this relationship makes you feel good. And you mentioned that you and your lover did not change much in the relationship, that your character changed due to your age. Was that true? And is there anything you would like to add?

Speaker 2: These are correct. And I have nothing to add.

Speaker 1: And finally, how comfortable did you feel talking about these issues?

Speaker 2: I am very comfortable.

Speaker 1: Okay. Yes, thank you very much again. Now before we finish, I actually mentioned to you before we started the recording, I would like to give you some information about how we are going to handle the data. And we actually want you to have the choice in this. As a research project we want to be as transparent as ethically possible. So we want you to decide. Which data sharing option is appropriate. Your first option. To share parts of the transcript of our interview. None of this transcript information will contain any information that can identify you. This way, our de-identified interview transcript can be read by other researchers. The second option, if you don't mind and if you want to be a bit bolder, is to share the entire interview transcript anonymized and stripped of sensitive and overly identifying details, so that someone who knows you well has a small chance of piecing together the details of the interview transcript and narrowing down the choices of who you are among colleagues. Again, I would like to emphasize that no sensitive information will be shared in this option. Which option would you prefer?

Speaker 2: For me the interview is completely shareable, no problem. I'm very sick right now, I don't know how I look, if the image is shared, I don't prefer that.

Speaker 1: Image is not shared.

Speaker 2: Everything else can be used.

Speaker 1: Then I can say that the second option is suitable for you, right?

Speaker 2: Okay.

Speaker 1: All right. Thank you very much again for participating in the study. I would like you to know that these studies have been conducted in the Philippines, Brazil, the Netherlands, France and the USA. I have one last favor to ask of you for the success of this work, If it's okay with you, can you nominate two close people in your life? We will ask them to suggest other couples who might be interested in this work. And we will ask them to suggest couples that you don't know or have not interacted with. In this way, we aim to reach as different and diverse participants as possible. Is this suitable for you?

Speaker 2: That's fine, I can ask some of my friends around me.

Speaker 1: All right. That's great. Thank you very much again. Then I guess I can contact you on whatsapp about the couples you can suggest. If that's okay with you?

Speaker 2: All right.

Speaker 1: Thank you very much. If the couples you will contact agree, if they have the consent to participate in this study. You can give them a little notice before we contact them so that they do not leave us unanswered. We would be very grateful to go to work. Thank you very much again, you guys.

Speaker 2: I thank you, thank you, good work.

Speaker 1: I'll close the recording then, if that's okay with you.

Speaker 2: Okay.
