

Interviewer: I've started recording it, and he should have told you as soon as I recorded it.

Speaker: I say I understand.

Interviewer: You are saying that you understood exactly.

Interviewer: Okay. First of all, can you confirm that you have approved the consent form and that you are participating in this interview voluntarily?

Speaker: Yes. I confirm.

Interviewer: Our interview will last about 1 hour. I have a group of questions. You can answer in any way you can think of. There's no right or wrong questions. We are just trying to get your ideas and your thoughts. How old are you? Let's start like this. Let's start with simple things.

Speaker: [60-65] now.

Interviewer: How long have you and your wife been together?

Speaker: We met in [Year]. We got married in [Year].

Interviewer: [36-40] years.

Speaker: That's around there.

Interviewer: Do you have children?

Speaker: We have an [occupation] daughter. She is [30-35] years old. But she doesn't do [occupation]. She works as a [occupation] in a [company].

Interviewer: Who do you live with at home?

Speaker: The [1-5] of us. The girl is still with us. She hasn't left the house.

Interviewer: What is your main source of income? What do you do for a living.

Speaker: We have pensions. If our daughter joins, she joins. So we are rolling. It's going well.

Interviewer: I address your wife as your wife. Do you want me to use another word?

Speaker: I mean you can call her [Partner's Name].

Interviewer: Let me call her your wife so that there is less to reduce. We will remove the names from the interview and the records. Is that okay with you?

Speaker: I don't understand. Could you repeat it again?

Interviewer: Because if I use the name, we will have to erase it from the record every time I use the name.

Speaker: Okay. Then say your wife. Whatever's easy for you.

Interviewer: Okay. Do you want to start by telling me the story of how you met?

Speaker: Sure. We were in the same company. I joined [Company Name] company [1-5] year before her. She came [1-5] year later. As soon as I saw her from a distance, I realized that this happens to many people. I had a feeling that this girl is the woman I'm going to marry. After that, I immediately haunted her from the beginning. I mean, now I was in front of her everywhere. I did everything I could. Anyway, I convinced her. Eventually we started dating there. I was the first one who got her in the company. Because there were a lot of young men like me.

Interviewer: How did this process develop?

Speaker: Well, I'm a troubled person. I mean, from the very beginning, from the very first days, the reference to the past is still her number one weapon in our discussions today. I mean, I was like this, I was a person who was active, hyperactive or pessimistic, like I had the devil in me. I put her through a lot. Look, for example, I don't remember this. I was crossing the street and I always said to her, "Come here." Don't you hold your wife's hand? Or don't you say, "Come on, you go first" to the one you love? I don't remember that. I mean, I even did that. That's how it developed after that. But we've never been able to separate and it's been like this until today.

Interviewer: How did your always going in front of her turn into a relationship?

Speaker: At the company?

Interviewer: Exactly. When you met.

Speaker: When we met. She got fed up. Of course, I made her fed up too. For example, we had glass partitions between departments at that time. I was in the [department] and he was in the [department]. There were two panes of glass in between, anyway. The girl was busy. She hung something on the glass there. She even wrote a note like a reminder or something. It comes right to where I see her, but it comes to the line. I immediately make a phone call, for example. Take those papers down. She's scared, what happened, what paper, whatever. I say I can't see you, for example, from where I'm sitting. Every moment, you know, how do you get in front of her, you say, I get in front of her even here in her business life. I didn't have a car yet, but I bought a car [1-5] year after I got a job. We were on the bus. The company shuttle, I go and sit next to her right away. I get off right behind her at the [Name] bazaar because she takes a minibus from there. After that, until she goes to the minibus, most of the time I get on the minibus with her. I mean, I applied all kinds of flirting techniques, methods, whatever there was to do in the conditions of that day.

Interviewer: How was she convinced by these methods?

Speaker: It happened, I mean, of course, I wasn't like I am now, I was a very handsome man physically at that time. She was a very beautiful girl anyway. After that, you have the ability to persuade, as I said, as I said, at that time, which is now partly maybe one of the value judgments in the society, then, no, her family was good, her background was good, her education was good, and so on, they were also very suitable for us and so on. After that, I think they were also influential, which she also says that she was deceived by considering them, she gets angry with herself, etc. Well, then, I mean, a lot of things came together. I had a [house]. After that, I tried to take her there, I mean, come and see my [collection] and things like that, and I succeeded after a while. Well, it developed like this, it developed rapidly. I mean, of course, you can't just sit at home and stare at each other, then something started, some things started to move, we were young. Our hormones were working and so on. After that, in this way, the union became more alive, colorful and diversified. After that, it was probably [1-5] year later. I told my parents about it. I had already gone and met her parents at that time. And I made this decision on my own, independent of them, which is a mistake, of course, this is a mistake in my past. My youthful mistake. I made my decision before I was consulted. You know, but I wrote a letter saying, whether you like the girl or not. What a pity, at least make a phone call or go. They still live in [City A]. Now they're passed away, but they were in [City], their house was there. After that, anyway, you have to go and tell them, etc. No such a letter, how can you write only a letter to parents? I upset them too. But in the end, first of all, the classic promise was made and our parents came and went. Then we got engaged. [1-5] year after that, in [Year], we got married.

Interviewer: Thank you.

Speaker: You're welcome. So it took [1-5] years from the time we met until we got married.

Interviewer: The dating period lasted [1-5] years.

Speaker: Yes, yes.

Interviewer: How would you rate the quality of your relationship compared to the relationships of people around you?

Speaker: Today or in the past?

Interviewer: Today.

Interviewer: Very bad, I mean, if you remember, I was obsessed with romance in that article.

I mean, maybe you are using it there as a concept, as another different concept, I understood it.

Interviewer: Exactly

Speaker: And our, I mean, we talked to your mother and I said that, for God's sake, stop it, for God's sake, it's not romantic. She said no, no, she said you are investigating all kinds of research, all kinds of relationships. She said don't worry about it. I mean, I don't believe that we have such an enviable life that can be taken as an example. I mean, what is it, but despite so many arguments and fights, I have never touched my wife or my daughter, or we have used insulting words, and maybe we still do from time to time, but I didn't use a mother swearing, immoral expressions, but always such heartbreaking, insulting words. Maybe these are more bitter, of course, I wish it wasn't like this. That's why I don't see it as very high quality anymore. She retired from [occupation], she graduated from [degree program], and then after we got married, she graduated from [occupation]. She became an [occupation]. Anyway, she retired from I retired from a [company] in organized industry, in the [department], in the city of [City B], as a [occupation]. After that, we both stayed at home. Our daughter is there, of course. Of course she stayed away from her students, so I left my job. She has children and she has a different character than me. After that she started to establish a management style at home. I mean, in the last [1-5] years these things have gotten worse. I say I'm not your student or I'm not your child or something like that. It's gotten to the point where I don't know, how do I tie it, where do I put it, how do I put it, I don't know, how do I do it? She started practicing something like a dictatorship at home. After that, and as I said, her most powerful weapon is the reference to the past. While doing these things, you did this and that. Do you remember, out of the blue, and it's great, you know. I mean, women have a weird memory, man. I mean, what does she remember, what does she remember and where does she get it from? I don't remember. Some of the things she says she remembers, some she doesn't. But I'm sure she's sure she doesn't remember, she's not going to lie. I still don't remember. It turns out something like that happened. You know, it's like crossing the street. I was the one who crossed the street myself and did the thing first. After that, these last [1-5] years, I mean, where are you going to say [36-40], [36-40] years, where are you going to say [1-5] years? Maybe such a transition jump was too sharp. But I can get to the part I mean with a reference to the past. I had a way of working that I spent more than half of the year abroad, for example, she used to tolerate them. She says that when I was gone, they were relaxing, they were comfortable. Now I'm here all the time. We get very restless. For example, there was an earthquake in [City C], I wasn't there. [60-65] people died in a flood in [City D]. I was not there. My child was sick with a fever. They took him to the emergency room in the middle of the night. I wasn't there. I didn't see any of this, the hardships of the family, etc. According to her, I'm fine. I drank and had fun there, which of course is not the case. I mean traveling, you see the city in the taxi window, you see the city in the hotel window and that's it. At dinner, you see one or two people around you. You go to bed. In the morning you have a meeting, a fair, whatever. Those things are like that. After that, but as a result, you were traveling, you were in a good mood, that period was over. Plus, I drank a lot for many years. I was a serious drinker. After that, it's true what she said every evening, for example, even now she still says that every day or every three days. She gets angry with me. After that, when I came home every evening, hello, hello. They would prepare dinner and sit down. I would hear noises coming from the refrigerator and the kitchen. The sound of ice falling into the liquid, clattering. While they were eating, I'd sit on the couch and drink. They'd finish eating. Then I'd get up and eat. But I never made any disrespectful or physical gestures like I just said. I didn't break things like doors, windows, etc. There was no such thing.

Interviewer: There was no violence.

Speaker: No violence, not today either, God forbid. But there is unhappiness, unrest, unpleasantness, I mean, this was my big thing, my mistake, my shame. I still drink very rarely. Now I'm here in [City D], I drink a little too much here in [City D], what can I do on my own? I drink more, but when I was in [City B], when we were together, she never wanted me to drink at home anymore. She declared martial law. Because for example, she spilled my [drink] off the balcony or something. Then what do I do there, she goes to bed at midnight. I don't go to bed, I say I'm going to watch a movie or something. I drink secretly in the living room. Besides, if I want to drink, I'll drink. Because she prevents me. I mean, let me drink two nights a week, three nights a week, at most. But I've exercised all those rights in the past. She's right. She suffered a lot from me in that regard. Then, for example, his [relative] died, the news comes suddenly in the evening. After that, I've been drinking and my face is red. I go to the funeral home like that. She reminds me of that. She's telling the truth.

That news had come to us before I drank it. I knew we had to go that night. But I drank anyway. I mean, I drank there. I mean, in the past, there were many aspects of alcohol that disrupted our lives and affected our order and social relations. Because today, for example, when I have personal problems, I go and see [occupation] and [occupation] from time to time. But now I'm on medication and I've benefited from those sessions. Sad things. Was I the man to be like this? Look what happened to my friends? I'm a college graduate, a [University] graduate, you know, from a factory or something? But how could I crush myself? What should I do? We sold the property. You sold the house in [Location], you sold the cherry orchard. We had to. But how sad was I about all that for a while. And drinking, too. All these regrets and sorrows about the past. After that, I was devastated. Anyway, it's been over [1-5] years. I feel good thanks to both a psychiatrist and a psychologist plus to the medication. Anyway, my environment understands this.

Interviewer: Yes.

Speaker: After that, I wonder what else to say... Maybe there are jumps, but you probably realized that it's all in one whole. I mean, all of them are actually one single scenario. Well, go on, ask a question, I've spoken now.

Interviewer: While we are on the subject of conflict, you said that you argue about alcohol in your relationship. What other difficulties do you experience?

Speaker: I mean, I was angry. I mean, of course, you can't show your anger during the day. You have to come and discharge it at home. It's wrong, of course. But there were words that came out of my mouth very quickly and without thinking. I even told her, look, your throat is seven knots, seven knots, you have to think while saying the word, you have to say it like that. But I couldn't apply it. I mean, I was saying whatever came to my mind in a critical sense, whether it was anger or a shouting call. I mean, there have been many times when I have spoken thoughtlessly without evaluating.

Interviewer: How about now?

Speaker: Excuse me?

Interviewer: Right now well, right now it's current.

Speaker: No, can I? That's over for [1-5] years. I mean, it's something else. It's like I'm living with someone else now. [Redacted]. She used to look at her and me with such innocent eyes. How do I pity her now? How do I feel sorry for her? For example, the child starts doing things because of us, for example. She goes to bed because she has to pee. She's like [1-5]-[6-10] years old. Then she says she doesn't have a daughter, she has to pee. We found a remedy, we put a seat in the living room. The child sits in the living room all day long in front of us. After that, she goes from time to time, washes her hands, comes back, and so on and so forth. I affected her a lot. I mean, I apologized many times to our daughter and my wife about these issues. But before scanning the last [1-5] years, I had already been aware of these things for the last [6-10] years or so. And I was gradually trying to minimize them in my own way. But with this martial law, everything has changed anyway. So the other thing is that my gradual transition to this life was healthier in my opinion. But my wife made a coup and made a coup. And now she's pulling all the strings. That's how I see it. And this is another source of my unhappiness. Like this. I don't know if there are any other problems.

Interviewer: What do you discuss about current issues, do you still discuss them?

Speaker: There is no discussion. I mean, there is no such thing as discussion anymore, there is its domination. For example, I may be right somewhere, I may have done an inconsiderate behavior, I may have said a word, but its return to me is so sharp, it is so heavy, I mean, I already go to a [occupation], I also go to a [occupation], I also go to sessions, I have a doctor, he is a very excellent person, he also tries to understand me. I mean, after that argument, after the insult I received, I can hardly crawl from the corridor to the back room. And I go into a deep sleep for a minimum of half an hour. This is like digesting this insult, coming to your senses. I mean, it's like a knocked-out boxer trying to come to his senses in the back locker room. I find it in that way. I don't have the right to respond or get angry. I mean, as soon as it happens anyway, let's say I did it now, let's walk from there for example. She leaves the house with a very extreme reaction. That's what happened. After that, going by car in the middle of the night in the snow and winter in the cold and staying overnight in other streets and neighborhoods with the car, bone pain for days after that. She can do such things, or there is a walnut coffee table that is a family souvenir, she throws it against the wall, she can smash it to pieces. When she gets angry with me. Or we are drinking coffee at that moment. For example, when we're talking to her, I look to see if she has anything in her hands. Do you have a glass, then a cutlery or something? Because they might fly away after a while. I talk to her by looking at what she has in her hand. For example, she says you go, for example, or I'll go to my parents' house. So I get up and come here. I'm in exile here now. I'm not here for my own pleasure. But because it's like this. But also, for example, the coincidence that we've been talking since we got married together is my high school friends, my high school classmates. After that, one of us moved to Izmir and one of us moved to the [Location], but we're friends that we see each other very often. I mean, [1-5] men. And in those days, [1-5] of their wives are ladies that we got married at the same time. They also get along very well. We're already very good friends as men. After that, one of them invited us to [Location] for [Event]. Now I'm here. Tomorrow I'll go to [City B], we'll pack up. On [Day] that other friend who lives in [City B] will come and pick us up. Their car is big and comfortable. After that, [1-5] of us girls won't come. [1-5] of us will go to [Location]. We'll stay there for [1-5] days. Let's see what will happen. You know, this is a nice event on the outside, so I don't know. [Name], I'm still trying to improve our relationship. I see that she's also trying. I mean, she still loves me, whatever I have. But you know compassion. I mean, you've understood from your experiences, from your meetings. Over time, that love (aşk) is no longer there. Compassion is too much. We feel compassion for each other. Love (sevgi) remains like a mother, child, father maybe. I don't know, pitying and thinking. Thinking about what's wrong with him or her. These things make the relationship continue. I had an operation on my foot [1-5] months ago, still not recovered. Now she's always following me there, for example. You know, as I said, these feelings are very rich in her too. It's very rich in me too. If she tells me something's wrong, I'll quit my job. I'll deal with her. Blah, blah, blah.

Interviewer: What are the other ways to maintain your relationship other than calming the conflicts and what keeps you together?

Speaker:: I don't quite understand?

Interviewer: Compassion, what ways do you use to maintain your relationship? You said that conflicts are not resolved much, if I understand you correctly. Conflicts.

Speaker: Sure, that conflict happens and it's over.

Interviewer: Afterwards it is treated as if it didn't happen.

Speaker: One hour, two hours, unfortunately. We have a lot of pretending. She realizes that and gets angry. If we're under the same roof, she can't leave me and I can't leave her. That's why we take refuge in pretending, we really understood that too. We realized that love (sevgi) is very dominant. At first, our thing was strong. Our sex life was strong. Now it's zero. It's been zero for quite a while. We're so far below zero according to some, there's nothing like that. First, there was sex. After that, the love (aşk) part came out. After that, there was compassion, love (sevgi), etc. In certain processes, some of these have gained weight, I guess. But right now we're doing it with compassion and pity. But at the bottom of it all, I think there is still love (aşk). Because I believe that, because I live that love (aşk). There are some romantic situations. I get carried away. He can't get carried away, but I do. Then she gets angry. She says, "Why are you doing such nonsense? But because I love (sevgi). I'm still in love (aşk). We're a little apart there. As of today. You'll find all this out when you interrogate her anyway.

Interviewer: What does love mean to you?

Speaker: There is no definition of love, man. It has no definition. I mean it is such a lottery. I mean, it may or may not happen, I think there are people who have never been in love all their lives. But I consider myself lucky in that sense. Today, there's an equivalent. But I consider myself lucky to be honored with such a feeling. Of course, this is reflected in our child. We have very rich feelings for her too. On top of that, there are also the regrets I feel for the pain I caused them in the past. When all these things are combined, I mean my dependence on them and my love (sevgi) and obedience to them is very high.

Interviewer: If you try to define it, how would you define love?

Speaker: Love?

Interviewer: I realize it's not an easy question.

Speaker: Sure. I mean, you know, they say it's love at first sight and so on. It's really an electricity, it's not something that you can see and hold with your hands. I mean, you live it. You live it and you can't tell it, you can't draw it, you can't write it, let me speak for myself, you just try to explain it with some examples. But I mean, like something, like a proposition, like a sociological explanation, logic, I don't think there is such a thing like 2 or 3 lines. It can only be explained with examples.

Interviewer: Try to describe what it feels like, what does it feel like, what happens in your body when you feel it? When you feel love.

Speaker: I mean, you don't think about anything in the world. Nothing. You just think about her. I'll tell you that. And I mean, maybe it doesn't happen with everybody. It happens in such a way that I can be a victim, I mean, I can be a slave to it, I mean, it goes on all the time, it's not something that happens 24 hours a day. But I get this feeling from time to time. She does something. When she watches TV, she does something with her feet. Those feet and stuff. How I like it. It makes me want to love her. I mean, for example, I think it's love (aşk), brother. Otherwise, what are you going to do with a woman's feet when she's 60? But like this. I mean, I can still experience it. I see that warmth in me. I don't know, "This is love." It was on the gum. I mean like that.

Interviewer: You seem to be describing a warmth, a desire to love, a desire to be close, a desire to show affection.

Speaker: Of course, of course, but again, because of the misfortunes of this last period, many of these things cannot be answered. But sometimes, when we have a few sweet moments, she says that she realizes them. But she doesn't feel like answering me. She says I can't reciprocate with you. I'm sorry by getting angry. But she says, what can I do now? I'm saying okay. I'm free in my feelings, I'll do it, I say. Some conversations like this pass between us. Love (aşk) is hard work. But it's very sacred. I consider myself lucky, like I said.

Interviewer: How important is love in a relationship?

Speaker: Well, it's a relative thing, I mean, it depends on your age, I think, your status, etc. And of course a person can have ups and downs throughout their life. Can you please tell me what exactly you ask?

Interviewer: How important is it in a relationship? How important is it for a relationship? Of course everything is connected.

Speaker: Well, I think it's a must again. Otherwise, you know, we see that there are a lot of people who get married just for money or because their families want them to or because of traditions, etc. I don't know about our relationship. God forbid that it happens to us or to our daughter or to those around us, I mean, in that respect, for me, love (aşk) is always decisive in the relationship and it has always been so until today. In other words, whether it was in our sexually-oriented period or in our period of quarrels or in today's dictatorship period, love (aşk) was important to me in all of them and it has a special place in my heart and in my heart. And I listen to it and try to get the message of love at that time. whether it is reciprocated or not.

Interviewer: May I ask how many relationships did you have before this one?

Speaker: I mean, I had one that was such a bombshell, so strong. Apart from that, I mean, there were some short-term ones and the romantic part was very dominant. For example, the girl was studying at university here and I was studying in [City A]. I came here and I came here at the first opportunity. I'd stay at her house. We did stuff, we talked, we chatted, we walked around the mansion or something. Then I went back to [City A]. Things like that. I can't count the exact number anymore. [1-5]-[6-10] is not too many. [6-10], let's make it [6-10]. That's it. From high school.

Interviewer: You tried to compare your current relationship with your previous relationships. How would you evaluate your current relationship?

Speaker: I don't understand, can you say it again please?

Interviewer: If you had to compare these previous relationships with your current relationship. How would you evaluate your current relationship. How would you evaluate the quality of your current relationship, sorry.

Speaker: I mean, the durations are different. If each of them had lived for [1-5] years and [6-10] years, this question could be answered more clearly.

Interviewer: Yes, I realize it is a difficult question.

Speaker: I mean, it's hard for me to compare them with my current relationship when some of them lasted [1-5] months, some lasted [6-10] months, some lasted [1-5] year plus [1-5] months and so on. But whatever happens, I don't regret what I did again. Sometimes I fall into that regret. Why did I marry this woman? But with that one and the one that happened twice, my mind sometimes.... It still comes and goes sometimes. I say go, go, go. After that. In that respect. Even though the quality of my current relationship has its ups and downs, if we evaluate it in time, maybe I did a better job than them, maybe I did a better job than marrying them.

Interviewer: Okay. What are the qualities that make a relationship high quality? What makes a relationship good?

Speaker: I mean, of course, it may be a formality at first, but in the end, there is respect, which is a must. So definitely mutual respect is very important. If that wall of respect is broken down or what can I say respect

Interviewer: The foundation.

Speaker: It would be very bad if respect is gone.

Speaker: So I think that then that relationship will start to get damaged. So there is respect. Of course, if we are talking about our kind of relationships now, love (aşk) is something that is indispensable here. Which I am saying again, I mean, my wife still has love (aşk) for me, whatever it is, whether it is walking with compassion or pity or love (sevgi), whatever it is, and then she has a mother's love (sevgi) or whatever it is, so she also has love (aşk) for me, and love (aşk) is also an important criterion for the quality of this thing in the healthy functioning of the relationship. Love (aşk) and respect first.

Interviewer: Is there anything else you would consider love and respect?

Of course, we don't have much of that, unfortunately, it would be very good to have common tastes and common hobbies. For example, my wife is an [interest]-oriented person, she works in [interest], she works in [interest], she will have a [activity] very soon, she has participated in many [activity], this will be her first [activity] in an old hall in the mansion, it will be a very nice thing. I've never been into [interest], I'm saying something rude, it's true, but I was lucky, or I mean I really had something in me, but I don't have it, I get bored, we used to go to [activity], I used to go to the [activity] and I would immediately find a place to sit there, or I would go in front of the door, I used to smoke cigarettes, I would immediately say I'm going to smoke a cigarette or something like that and I would run away, No, I wish we had common [interest], I said to me the other day, she did something to me, I mean, she was a little against it, but I think so, I said if I was a person from a background or a person who understood more about the things you do, then our relationship could be healthier or our happiness could be higher, she does it have to be, she said it can be without it, it can be other things, she said. Maybe she said it to upset me, I don't know why she said it, it's important, common things, what do we have in common, we both like to travel, we both like to go to new places, after that, although there have been bad examples of this in the past, especially because of the drinking, but we like to go on vacations, so we like such things after that

Interviewer: Respect. Please go on

Speaker: We can't forget some of them, I mean, we had such nice vacations.

Interviewer: Respect, love, affection and tenderness are common pleasures.

Speaker: We said love (sevgi), we said respect

Interviewer: respect, love (aşk), common tastes

Speaker: yes, common pleasure and hobbies are three, I think these already fill that relationship, I don't know, you may have gotten different answers from people, but I think these are enough, I mean, they fill me up, if we can make them beautiful.

Interviewer: What would make a relationship bad?

Speaker: Well, I don't believe in the saying that love (aşk) is over, you know, that's also a thing, the label, I don't believe in it too much, I mean, it may be a temporary decrease or increase, so in that respect, the more risky one, the risky one, I think respect can end because it really ends, then the issue becomes very bad, so in that respect, I see respect as the most dangerous thing, you asked something similar to this in terms of the deterioration of the relationship, right?

Interviewer: Yes, that's exactly what I'm asking, the end of respect, is there anything else? I mean, treating each other disrespectfully makes the relationship bad, what else makes it bad?

Speaker: I mean, of course, environmental factors, I guess we haven't experienced that much, but you know, a man's circle of friends is different, a woman's circle of friends is different, it is difficult for them to be together and engage in social activities from time to time, so this is also a problem in a relationship. From time to time, of course, everyone may have different circles, but if you can decorate them all together with meals, invitations, parties, trips, vacations, etc., then the relationship will be stronger, so we can also consider such a factor. Differences in environment.

Interviewer: Having common friends, being able to get along with people who enjoy common things.

Speaker: Yes, being in a common denominator, not that everyone has to be together everywhere, but I don't know, a barbecue party, everyone likes barbecue, I mean, normally you gather there and everyone is together.

Interviewer: How do you know that your partner loves you, you say that you know that your partner loves you, how do you know that your partner loves you?

Speaker: We are approaching [40-45] years now, I mean, I can tell from her look, from her eyes, she doesn't need to say anything at that moment, she has such a facial expression, eyes, eyes, eyes, I mean, it is very beautiful for me, I understand it, of course, sometimes it can be embellished with words or behavior, then it is much more magnificent

Interviewer: What words and behaviors like

Speaker: Well, for example, when she wakes up suddenly in the morning, she hugs me like crazy, she catches me in the hallway, for example, it's very obvious, very warm, a very beautiful confession of love. No one can make any comment on it, otherwise. Something like that happens, or when I'm sitting in the living room, she comes running again and hugs me and tells me something that comes to her mind, like let's do this or that or something like that. With these things, I understand and I still have some of them, thank God, and then she regrets doing it, so there is also such an aspect.

Interviewer: You can also tell from the excitement about doing something together.

Speaker: Yes, yes, [Town], God willing, there will be something like that, now she will take something from her [interest] to our friends in [Town], and tomorrow she will look for something suitable from the [activity] for those who will come from here. God willing, we will have good moments there together. I don't know anymore.

Interviewer: Would you say that this relationship is good for you?

Speaker: I mean good, good in what sense, brother?

Interviewer: In whatever sense you want to understand it, it's open-ended.

Speaker: I don't know. I mean, now, for example, now she says that from time to time, she says you are sheltering here. Again, this is wrong, this was a wrong conversation of mine in the past, I told her, you know that little room on the right inside, I said, I'll go in there and live there, I'll go out, I'll have dinner sometimes, you can do my laundry and stuff, I mean, let's separate our lives and stuff like that. Of course it's wrong, of course it's ridiculous, but at the root of it, there is a shelter, I mean, I am officially sheltering at the same time. She says you can't leave this place, she says you can't leave it, she says if you leave us, she says you can't take care of yourself, and then she says that you will need caregivers, care homes, this and that. Here, I mean, it's a bad thing, but unfortunately that is partly correct, and then our relationship is good or not.

Interviewer: Is it good for you or do you think it is good?

Speaker: It's good because I'm sheltering, for example, but it's a very bad thing, I mean, it's a shame to look at it that way, but she did such a verb, we are experiencing it, she occasionally pinches me and so on, so there are parts that I like, of course, it's good at those times.

Interviewer: It is good for you when your relationship is sincere and warm

Speaker: Of course, absolutely.

Interviewer: But it seemed like there was a but.

Speaker: Yes, I mean, because with the examples I just gave, our relationship was very battered, the relationship was very wounded, and thanks to him, he is still making an effort to heal those wounds, that is, to close those wounds before he dies. I believe that. Anyway, we are going together. Why did I say that?

Interviewer: we talk about whether the relationship is good for you or not

Speaker: Well, we are talking about it, okay, but what? Anyway, where did this journey come from? I mean, of course, these shares, I guess that's what I meant. The fact that there are shares, for example, the proliferation of such examples in the name of repairing wounds. Because we were wounded, our relationship was wounded, this may not be the case for everyone.

Interviewer: You are trying to repair it.

Speaker: She tells me that I am not a person who makes a lot of gestures, shows a lot of kindness and helps a lot, and she shows me examples of husbands and men who do so, maybe it may be true, but I mean, I do what I do in my own way. For one thing, maybe I am artificially trying to be very protocol and polite, trying to be helpful and so on. You know, maybe this is an element that needs to be strengthened in order to be good in the relationship. I don't have such expectations from her, I mean, I just want her to take good care of me. So in that sense, she is important to me. I'll do what she says, no matter what she says. That's the situation.

Interviewer: What doesn't feel good

Speaker:insulting you

Interviewer: Conflicts

Speaker: Conflicts, of course, I mean, conflict is a response, here I say dictatorship, I say attack, I mean, it's like, huhh look, look, it's a pity, you know the events that happened in [Country]. I don't know if it was a plot or not, but first [Country] attacked them. Then the other one raided them, it was as if the other one had been preparing for this war for [1-5] years, and then look what they brought them to, they are now committing genocide. Now why did I say that?

Interviewer: We came from the conflict.

Speaker: Oh, we came from the conflict. A conflict has two sides, but at first these are two sides, but right now I think the only side is what is happening in [City]. Israel is committing massacres and I was going to say that I liken ours to that. I mean, maybe there were conflicts at the beginning and I showed my teeth, but they are over, man. Unfortunately, I hope that this process will hopefully end, otherwise it's not a case to be endured, I mean really. Tomorrow one day I will come to you and tell you that we saved the relationship or no, we couldn't do it, brother, we got divorced, because I mean, because I respect your work that you are doing right now.

Interviewer: Thank you. I hope you can save it then.

Speaker: I hope you care a lot about this or you are curious about it, it doesn't matter because you are doing some kind of work here right now, I am emotional like this. For example, in my professional life, I have always given some space to my emotions. For example, I was always a [occupation]. I would feel whether he was a buyer or not, for example, whether he was a real buyer or not. Or I would know if he was going to finish that day or not. I always include my feelings and my emotions. Here, I just said that I have added those feelings to this relationship with you right now, so I said I will give information later.

Interviewer: Thank you. Of course, why not.

Speaker: Yes, yes, you are more like your mother.

Interviewer: I do, yes.

Speaker: Yes, she's a very nice lady. God bless her.

Interviewer: Yes. Has this relationship changed you?

Speaker: Marriage?

Interviewer: Yes. Has the relationship you have been in for [30-35] years changed you?

Speaker: I mean, again, it is a rehash, but it didn't change me except for the last [1-5] years of heavy pressure. I mean, I was more independent, I did what I wanted, I made my own decisions and implemented them myself, some of which she liked and some of which she didn't, but maybe. So how can I put it? I was an independent person with my own decisions and then I was a free person. That's how I was in my family too. Well, we were the only boys. after that, well, the others were girls. At work, as I said, I was handsome in high school and university. I was always cool, that self-confidence, that arch stance, maybe these lie under the smart ass remarks I made to my wife. After all, the question is whether this relationship changed me or not. No. I mean, on the contrary, unfortunately, I look at it from my wife's point of view, I wasted her right now, maybe I did some things by upsetting her so that I could live better myself, but she has been getting her remuneration very badly lately. But it didn't change, I mean, I was happy with my life until [1-5] years ago. The trend was normal

Interviewer: Did she change during the relationship, no, she did what she wanted, actually.

Speaker: I mean, she studied [degree program] and [degree program] at first without wanting to. That's when we entered [Company]. She graduated from there and then we got married. She really writes well. She said I'll try again from [degree program]. There's a child, she's not even old yet. After that, we said, "Come on," and she actually went and got in. In order to do what she wanted. She finished as the first in her department, is it true, she finished first in [degree program] when her child was [1-5] years old, blah, blah, blah, blah. Then she said, "I want to be a [occupation], I want to do [interest], I have a lot of [interest], and I don't have any physical financial means." This is also a good, smart decision. She went to the state. She applied and was accepted and so on. She worked as a [occupation] for the last [20-25] years or something. After that, she was happy, for example, she was a very happy [occupation]. She had a very good relationship with her students, whereas the [class], I mean, if it was [class], [class] or something like that, I don't know, it's not something to prepare for university, but I would have been surprised. [Interest] is such a trivial thing with us, you know, it's the same with you, who cares. But when she came home, God It was as if she had come home from a heavy class in [class] or something. That child said this and that, we did this and that, notebooks, notebooks, this and that, no, she takes notes for the children and so on. I say, "Wow, what is this [class]?" and so on. She was a person who loved her job and respected it. After that she didn't change either, after all, I think she lived her life as she wanted. Except for the unhappiness she had with me, of course. I am very sorry for them too.

Interviewer: Has your personality changed in the past [30-35] years?

Speaker: I mean, no, I mean, this is actually similar to the previous question.

Interviewer: yes

Speaker: For him, I mean, it may also appear with that course, but of course it has been more softening, I mean, I was like a sharper knife in the past. Well, I didn't lay into, but I would yell and scream at people. For example, there was a [occupation] in my [1st-5th] year or something. She was knitting all the time, okay, there was a lot of work piling up there. We gave her work. There was a [occupation], [Name], who was her friend from somewhere. I think she probably trusts him or something. It's gotten to the point where I opened my mouth and the corridors are groaning, okay. I looked and saw the guys next to me crawling under the table, they were so scared of me. The woman turned blue and went from color to color. Then they separated her and put her in another department. I mean, I was so sharp like that, I mean, how can you do such a thing in the company of a man who lives like that, I mean, what are you doing then, then these things have already decreased over time, these carries, these fights, but there has been such a change in my life, my life has softened, they say my sect.

Interviewer: Your temperament

Speaker: With my temperament, I have become more accepting and understanding. Probably because of age. I guess when you have a child, you become more relaxed.

Interviewer: Do you feel safe in this relationship?

Speaker: what is trust what what what dimension of trust

Interviewer: Do you feel safe, not do you trust?

Speaker:safe from what?

Interviewer: It could be physically, it could be emotionally.

Speaker: Physically, God willing, of course. We don't have a gun at home, but we are safe at home, we protect each other, we love (sevmek) and care for each other, we have security.

Interviewer: You mentioned various flying objects

Speaker: [redacted].

Interviewer: so you have a fear of flying objects

Speaker: Yes, yes, ours are unidentifiable flying objects. Being safe is another part of our relationship, I trust, I am safe because my wife never stops telling me when something is wrong or she doesn't tell me, I mean, we have been living our lives as she wants in the last period. I mean, even before that, I had usually made them feel safe despite all the pain I had caused them. I made them feel safe, I'm talking about my daughter too because they are together in everything. After that, we have a safe and secure relationship in general.

Interviewer: For example, can you share your experiences, your thoughts, your feelings without fear of judgment or retaliation?

Speaker: You and I met at a very bad time because these last [1-5] years have changed everything, we are living the bad example you gave, but there was no such thing before, but if we are talking today like slices of bread, unfortunately there is unrest, I am insecure in that way.

Interviewer: So you hesitate to share your safe inner world. At least right now, in this period you are in.

Speaker: I say a word without realizing it, and I have experienced them, I say a word, and she pulls something from somewhere else and uses it against me, so I can't open up too much in this period.

Interviewer: We are approaching the end of the questions, I need to show you a few things and we will go through them, I ask for a second, I need to open it, I know where it is. Can you see it?

Speaker: Wait a minute, yes, there is something like a table

Interviewer: Exactly

Interviewer: If I ask if my partner usually really listens to me, I mean listening not in the sense of listening to words, but listening to troubles, listening

Speaker: Listen to

Interviewer: Yes in the sense of listening, thank you very much. What would you say if one is not true at all and nine is completely true?

Speaker: I think we should look at the general average, for example, because in some subjects she listens to the very end. Because it is clear what is at the beginning of the word, what I will tell or what I will say. In some of them, she doesn't listen at all, she doesn't care, she doesn't care what I say after 5 minutes, so I want to see it in the middle. 6.

Interviewer: why not 5

Speaker: As I said, I mean, I think the ones she listens to are more than the ones she doesn't. I can't be unfair to her.

Interviewer: Can you give me one example of a time when he listened, or a time when you felt rested or...

Speaker: I don't know, for example, when his father's test time was approaching, when medical check-up was approaching. For example, I followed this before her, so when I say that the time for his father's check-ups is approaching, she immediately leaves her work, for example. She would be with me and I would remember all the details, even the things she forgot. Look, this test will also be done this time, let's not forget, I say, for example, blah blah blah. This is an example, so we have experienced this. I don't know what fits your criteria, but I don't know.

Interviewer: If I say that my partner is usually sensitive to my needs, one is not true at all and nine is completely true.

Speaker: What is the need here?

Interviewer: You can have all kinds of needs, you can have individual needs, you can have emotional needs, you can have relational needs, you can have all kinds of needs.

Speaker: It decreased a lot recently. I'm going to be very optimistic and give you four, but maybe even lower. Four.

Interviewer: Why not five

Speaker: No, that's it.

Interviewer: Why not three

Speaker: You know how we have been lately, I mean she doesn't care much about my needs. She says go and do whatever you want.

Interviewer: Then why did you give four

Speaker: Less, less than five. But I mean, to give three, to give two, I don't have a place in that house anymore, so it comes to that. It's not bad, we still drive it, but it only goes at four, so we can't kick it into fifth gear.

Interviewer: Okay. How satisfied are you with your relationship in general? Completely dissatisfied, very dissatisfied, a little dissatisfied, not sure, undecided, a little satisfied, very satisfied, completely satisfied.

Speaker: I am very dissatisfied, I am not very satisfied, I am a little bit dissatisfied, the [Language] for this sounds a bit strange to me.

Interviewer: Yes, I mean, it's like, I'm very dissatisfied, I'm more dissatisfied than I'm a little dissatisfied, do you know what I mean? Completely dissatisfied, your most dissatisfied state, very dissatisfied, a little more satisfied, a little more dissatisfied.

Speaker: Slightly

Interviewer: Slightly bit,

Speaker: That's what I'm saying.

Interviewer: Slightly a little bit, very very

Speaker: Slightly, slightly.

Interviewer: Slightly dissatisfied.

Speaker: Yes.

Interviewer: Then it should be this, let me check this for a minute. Not this, that.

Interviewer: Same question, how would you rate your satisfaction with your relationship? We are now from minus 10 to plus 10. Minus 10, completely dissatisfied, completely. Plus 10...

Speaker: What's in the middle?

Interviewer: Not t....., I don't know. For example, what I am happy, what I am satisfied with, what I am dissatisfied with is in the middle.

Speaker: Is that in the very center

Interviewer: That's the most oriented one.

Speaker: The other one I am completely satisfied.

Interviewer: Exactly.

Interviewer : I am completely satisfied, there is a line from completely dissatisfied to completely satisfied, and in the middle there is neither satisfied nor dissatisfied. From minus 10 to plus 10.

Speaker: It would be like two and three.

Interviewer: Plus two and three.

Speaker: Yes. Because it's quite a long scale.

Interviewer: Yes.

Speaker: You must have been through a lot, so much variety.

Interviewer: You talked a little bit about your sex life, you mentioned that you don't have one.

Speaker: Yes. I don't have one.

Interviewer: How much? No. No sexual life.

Speaker: I mean, there was a period of intimacy. Let's not get into that. Caresses. Kissing, this and that. They don't exist anymore lately. Again, I mean, we can see it in parallel with martial law. It even started before that.

Interviewer: Okay. Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with this situation?

Speaker: Of course I'm not, who would be satisfied. But she, I mean, she is not satisfied either. But with each other, especially my, how should I put it, my performance is very low. The reason actually stems from there. Because if I go to other women, not my wife, that's another story. I mean, I mean, I can meet with a proper woman, maybe secretly, maybe secretly, I don't know, but I don't have such a person in my life. But I'm in no mood to go looking for women here and there. But when I measure myself, I'm already aware that I'm not very good. Which is a pity, the first victim of this is my wife.

Interviewer: Do you have any idea of causality?

Speaker: Sir?

Interviewer: Do you have any idea of its causality?

Speaker: Well, causality, I mean, I researched that for a while. There is a subject related to the general blood circulation system. It is happening.

Interviewer: It happens yes

Speaker: Then I attribute it to him. Because I have it and I have insufficiency in my feet. To find out exactly, they do something like a tomography on the penis. They look at the veins and stuff.

Interviewer: Yes, exactly.

Speaker: I didn't have it done after that, but I said to myself that it must be that. [Redacted].

Interviewer: You have the desire.

Speaker: I have a desire, but I can't turn it into reality. But why can't I turn it into reality? Here a lot of things come into play. Maybe I have insecurity in myself. The low performance, for example, I was doing something recently, I'm sorry. I mean, I can't even masturbate anymore. I'm exhausted to that extent. As we get older, of course. After that. Now in that respect, how will I approach my wife and so on and so forth. I mean, it's not pleasant.

Interviewer: It might be useful to see a doctor in that case.

Speaker: Yes, I did, but she did something. One of them said let's do that test. One of them suggested psychiatric treatment. One of them went straight to medication.

Interviewer : Viagra

Speaker: You know those Viagras? I haven't tried that either, maybe I should have.

Interviewer: You can still try it.

Speaker: What?

Interviewer: You can still try it.

Speaker: Yes, maybe right. One of my complaints is frankly this. You know, when she talks to you, does the topic come up? Does she open herself up and talk here? I don't know these things. You'll see. If it comes up, she's right to complain about me. I left her unanswered. I'm glad I didn't lose her. In another way. I still have a wife who is loyal to me.

Interviewer: She leaves you unanswered in love. You leave her unanswered in sexuality.

Speaker: I don't understand.

Interviewer: She leaves you unanswered in love. You leave her sexually.

Speaker: Exactly. How did you know? That's right, that's right. But these things, one is measured with iron, the other is measured with cotton. But in the end they are both heavy.

Interviewer: That's it. That's all my questions.

Speaker: It lasted one hour and ten minutes.

Interviewer: Yes. Exactly.

Speaker: Good. I didn't understand at all. I hope it works for you.

Interviewer: It will definitely help. I'd like to summarize before we move on to our bureaucratic processes, what we talked about.

Speaker: That's right, just to confirm.

Interviewer: Let's confirm. If I have misunderstood something, please correct me. If you realize that there is something missing, add it. If you realize that there is something extra, let's take it out. You are [60-65] years old. You have been married [36-40] years. You have a [30-35]-year-old daughter who studied [degree program] but is not an [occupation]. Your wife, daughter and you live together.

Your pension. You are rolling along on both of your pensions and your daughter's contributions, sometimes out of the goodness of her heart.

Speaker: Exactly.

Interviewer: We started with the story of how you met, that you were in the same company, that you had been working there for a year when she came. You said that when you saw her from a distance you said I want to marry her, I will marry her and that's how you decided. You said you haunted her. That you got in his way, in every way...

Speaker: Can you speak a little louder, dear?

Interviewer: Of course I will speak louder. You told her that you haunted her, that you were always in front of her, that you tried all kinds of flirting methods, hitting on her, that you made her fed up, you made her suffer a lot, you told the girl, you started there, as much as you told her about suffering a lot. Then you told her that you had a bachelor house and that she came to your bachelor house a few times, and that when she came to the bachelor house, with youth and hormones, people didn't sit calmly, and that intimacy started. A year after that, you wrote a letter to your family about these events and told them that you were getting married to this girl, that you wanted to let them know, that you regretted it a little bit and that you would have preferred to have talked about it. You said that you got married in [Year] and that you had been dating for [1-5] years. I asked you what would happen if you compared the state and quality of your relationship with those around you, and you said it was very bad. You said we have nothing to be an example, nothing to envy. You mentioned that sometimes, even though there are no heart..... curses, even though there is no swearing, even though there is no violence, insulting heartbreaking words fly in the air, and that your husband also flew other objects in the air in the last period. Especially during the covid period, you mentioned that the fact that you retired at the same time and stayed in the same house was the beginning of a difficult process. You mentioned that you were all locked up at home together and that your husband tried to establish a martial law at home similar to the one at school and that you often felt the need to say I am not your student. You said that you were living under a dictatorship. You mentioned that your most powerful weapon is your past bullying, not bullying, but bullying. You mentioned that when you were young you were out of the country for long periods of time, you missed a lot of life experiences to work, you missed your daughter's illness, you missed important moments, and you felt that these things were taken away and you felt like you were left alone.

Speaker: It's like I'm doing them with pleasure.

Interviewer : Exactly.

Speaker: Sorry, please open a parenthesis. We said bullying there. Emotional bullying.

Interviewer Emotional bullying. Exactly.

Speaker: Not physical.

Interviewer: Not physical. There was no physical violence.

Speaker: So partly verbal but mainly emotional.

Interviewer: Emotional. You mentioned that alcohol is a problem, it was a problem in the past, now it's part of an ego battle, he doesn't allow it and you will consume it at night after he goes to bed, you consume it but you don't consume it like you used to. You explained that this alcohol has a share in creating unhappiness, unrest and unpleasantness. You even talked about a time when you had to take alcohol to a funeral home.

Speaker: Don't ask, don't ask.

Interviewer: You said that these things hurt you inside as regrets from the past. When we talk about the current difficulties of your relationship, the current and the difficulties up to now. You mentioned that you used to get angry very easily, that you used to say things without thinking, that your child used to watch you with big eyes while you were arguing and fighting, and that he even wanted to go to the bathroom because of that, that's why he ran away.

Speaker: Washing her hands all the time.

Interviewer: That he has the desire to wash his hands. [6-10] years ago you said that you realized how wrong you were doing and that [6-10] years ago you started trying to change yourself, but with the covid [1-5] years ago you found yourself in this current situation that caused a sharp change, that there was no more discussion, that there was a domination, that you felt like [Country], that you felt under pressure and martial law. And you talked about how difficult it was to live under this martial law, how tiring and suffocating it was. You said that your wife was a very sharp woman, but that you both still made an effort to fix things, that you didn't give up on your relationship, that you didn't give up on making an effort, on trying to heal, on trying to repair the wounds you had received, and that she didn't give up, and that sometimes in her sweet moments she even told you that she realized what you were doing, but that she didn't feel like responding to your love.

Speaker: Yes.

Interviewer: You also told us that you were driven to the cottage or something, when you tried to find different solutions, when you were looking for ways to get along

Speaker: out of goodwill, but that's what it is, otherwise we would have cut it off.

Interviewer: Exactly,

Speaker: We are trying to save

Interviewer: You explained that because you were trying to save the relationship, you tried to find various solutions in every possible way, thinking what would help us, what would make the relationship last. You mentioned that compassion, love and pity is an important factor in keeping the relationship going, that you are still interested in each other's well-being. You mentioned that underneath all these feelings of love, compassion, pity, and trying to be good for each other, there is still love even after all these years. You said that it is very difficult to define love, that we are honored that you are involved in experiencing this feeling, that you are honored, that you are very pleased, that love is an electricity.

Speaker: Not everybody can be.

Interviewer: It may not be. You mentioned that it is very difficult to describe it, but it can be explained through examples, that is, through visible examples, but what it is, that it is very difficult to put into language, that it is like not thinking about anything else, that it is like a desire to be a victim, a desire to be a victim, that it is a feeling like I would do anything for him, that it comes with the desire to love, that it comes with the desire to be close. You mentioned that you couldn't find many answers to your loves, that it is the sine qua non of the relationship, that it is decisive, that it is the backbone of the relationship, even though it takes place in different periods, in different ways and its intensity changes, decreases and increases.

Speaker: yes

Interviewer: What a relationship, we talked about your past relationships, you mentioned that you had one loving relationship that you still think of from time to time, that you broke up and made up twice, and that the rest were short and momentary relationships.

Speaker: The sex was also very strong in this one.

Interviewer: The sex was also very strong there.

Speaker: Look, let me tell you this, it's top secret anyway, in the first one I was single, in the second one I started with [Name], with [Name].

Interviewer: You started flirting. You said that it was very difficult to compare, because the periods were very different, but when you think about it sometimes, you believe that you made the right decision by marrying your current partner. You mentioned that what makes the relationship good is respect, love and common pleasures and that these are enough for you to be satisfied. You mentioned that what makes the relationship bad is disrespect and that it would be very difficult for the relationship to be in the same environment. When I asked you how do you know that the other party loves you, you said that what could be more confessional of love than the warmth of that hug, from his eyes, from his expression, from the way he looked at me after recognizing me. You talked about the moments when he approaches you with excitement about doing something together. When I asked if this relationship was good for you, you said that the fact that it fulfills your need for shelter and care is a very important factor,

Speaker: She is well aware of that.

Interviewer: Your husband said that you were also aware of this and that he believed that if you left the house you would crawl. You said that there is some truth to this, you said that the past [1-5] years have worn you out a lot, you have had a lot of difficulties, you have been hurt a lot. Therefore, you were not sure how good it is now if we take out the shelter, but we realized while measuring that you still evaluate your relationship with the shelter and your efforts. When we talked about whether the relationship changed you, you said that it did not change you much, but that you are much less sharp knife compared to before, that you are much less scary compared to before, that you have softened, that you are a more accepting person. You said that you are still fond of your freedom, you are still fond of making independent decisions, you said that your husband hasn't changed much either, you said that he still finds space to do what he wants with her and he did in the past, here you go

Speaker: In the last [1-5] years, independence doesn't work so much anymore.

Interviewer: Okay. That's one of the reasons for your difficulties

Speaker: Yeah, no more

Interviewer: When I asked you if you felt safe in your relationship, you mentioned that the fact that the objects flying in the air were gone made you feel uneasy. You also mentioned that for the last [1-5] years you have been afraid to speak, afraid to express your feelings as they are because you don't know where your words will lead.

Speaker: Don't ask, don't ask. I can't open myself up because sometimes something will catch me. I swear, the same thing happens in [1-5] month. I think I've said something good, we're messing up.

Interviewer: You mentioned that you still think you are listened to, that you are listened to above average, that you have not been very sensitive to your needs in the last [1-5] years, but that it is still a little below average, that two would mean not being able to live at home, that you are not in such a dire situation.

Speaker: Yes, yes, that's how I see it.

Interviewer: We talked about the fact that you are slightly satisfied with your relationship and that you see it as a plus. We talked about the fact that you have no sex life left, we talked about the fact that [1-5] years ago there were still some intimacies, but now they are not there, we talked about the factors of old age, blood circulation, not being able to find a response to your love, we talked about the physical factors, we talked about the emotional factors, we had such an interview.

Speaker: Yes, bravo. Is that the feature of this program there, does it write down what was said?

Interviewer This is not writing right now, this is recording, I will explain that now. It records both video and audio, we have nothing to do with video recording. The video recording will stay with me, it will be encrypted and the video will not go anywhere.

Speaker: Okay.

Interviewer: The audio recording will be entered into a computer program, that computer program will convert the audio recording into text, I can't say that it is very successful, I have to go through those texts and edit them again, I will edit them, then we will put this audio recording aside, we have nothing to do with the audio recording anymore.

Speaker: You will look at the documents.

Interviewer: We have the transcript of this interview, which has been stripped of all information that can identify you, that is, the name of your spouse, the place where you live, the job you work, the name of the company you work for, de-identified, I think you froze.

Interviewer: [Name], [Name], [Name], have I lost you? No.

We're here, it's already recording. We will remove all these identifying data, I don't know, the name of your company, the name of your spouse, [Name], [Name], the location of the summer house, anything that can give you information about who you are.

Speaker: No clues will be left, I'm sure.

Interviewer: There wouldn't be any clues, but what we talked about would remain. It is possible for someone who knows you very well to see a document and say this could be this, because of their acquaintance.

Speaker: No one but my wife would understand.

Interviewer: you have two or three options. you can say now or at any time in the future, I withdraw my consent, I don't want this data to be used any further, please, remove me, you can say it in a year, you can say it in three months, you can say it anytime, you can change your mind at any time.

Speaker: How long will this work of yours last?

Interviewer: This information will be subjected to an analysis called thematic analysis, that is, such a total research on what makes the relationship quality good and what makes it bad, because it is also carried out in different countries. We tried to reach twenty-five couples in [Country], we reached twenty-five couples in different countries, we reached twenty-five couples in different countries, so there will be a hundred and fifty different couples and we will subject them to an analysis that tries to make them common, and then it will be shaped by the decision you will make now. You can say that I allow this de-identified altered text document to be shared with the scientific community, that is, you can say that I allow you to share it in its transformed form as we discussed it, or you can say that I allow you to share only certain paragraphs of it. I mean, we can either analyze the whole conversation, and I don't know, there are data bases like the open science framework, which people open up to other scientists. You can allow us to share parts of it there or you can allow us to share the whole talk in its de-identified modified form, it's always your decision.

Speaker: Anonymized. Will the previous one be non anonymized?

Interviewer: No, it is also anonymous everything is anonymous. It's just

Speaker: If I say that you can use it as de-identified until the end of your work, is that okay?

Interviewer: What it means to need.

Speaker: I mean, 25 pairs of 25 pairs from each country, 150-200, whatever it is, will be collected, sifted, filtered, and so on and so forth, and then something will come out, something scientific, I guess.

Interviewer: Of course there will be information.

Speaker: a thesis research

Interviewer: Article to be released

Speaker: The article is well done and maybe it will be explained in certain conferences or something like that.

Interviewer: Sure

Speaker: Now, as soon as the article to be told at that conference is formed, what are you going to show to whom, the information I have given has already entered the place where it will enter.

Interviewer: That's why it's happening

Speaker: How does this work backwards?

Interviewer: This is a very rich data, we have been talking for an hour and a half, a lot of information comes out of it, usually an article does not come out of it, I don't know, students get this information

Speaker: They use one side.

Interviewer: They use one side, someone else comes and they use the other side

Speaker: Use it, use it

Interviewer: Thank you very much

Speaker: Anonymously

Interviewer: Ditto without ID

Speaker: Sacrifice to the world of science.

Interviewer: Thank you very much.

Speaker: You're very welcome.

Interviewer: That's it then. Thank you very much for your time.

Speaker: You are welcome, do you think about coming to [Location]?

Interviewer: Very rarely, but if I do I will let you know

Speaker: I hope to see you somehow. I wish you much, much success.

Interviewer: Thank you very much

Speaker: God help you, good luck. You are married, I think you have a ring.

Interviewer: Yes.

Speaker: Do you have a baby or a child?

Interviewer: No, it has only been [1-5] months.

Speaker: Is it new?

Interviewer: New

Speaker: I wish you much happiness and love and greetings to your wife. I wish you success

Interviewer: Thank you very much

Speaker: May God give you good health and good days.

Interviewer: You too. Take care of yourselves

Speaker: Thank you too.
