

Interviewer: [00:00:01] Exactly. Welcome back again.

Speaker: [00:00:05] Welcome.

Interviewer: [00:00:06] Can you confirm that you voluntarily participated in the research?

Speaker: [00:00:11] I confirm.

Interviewer: [00:00:13] Thank you. How old are you?

Speaker: [00:00:16] [60-65].

Interviewer: [00:00:19] How long have you been with your partner?

Speaker: [00:00:22] Excuse me?

Interviewer: [00:00:23] How long have you been with your spouse?

Speaker: [00:00:26] There is an echo. My husband and I have been together since [Year].

Speaker: [00:00:26] Yes.

Interviewer: [00:00:33] [36-40].

Speaker: [00:00:34] [36-40]?

Interviewer: [00:00:35] Almost [36-40]. Exactly.

Interviewer: [00:00:40] Do you have children?

Speaker: [00:00:42] Yes, we have [1-5] daughter.

Interviewer: [00:00:45] Who do you live with at home?

Speaker: [00:00:48] There are [1-5] of us.

Interviewer: [00:00:52] What is your main source of income and what is your current job?

Speaker: [00:00:57] Right now we are our pensions.

Interviewer: [00:01:04] Can you tell me about how did you meet and how did your relationship start?

Speaker: [00:01:09] At the same workplace.

Speaker: [00:01:14] We were working at the same workplace. I was [20-25] at work and he was [20-25]. Let's put it like that. We started working together, that's where we met.

Interviewer: [00:01:27] How did your relationship start?

Speaker: [00:01:33] How did our relationship start? I mean, it was [Month]. I started working. After that we were in the food line. We were in the food line during the [event] like this. My husband is a little bit tall. Not a little bit. He was about [height] at the time. Now we've all gotten a little shorter with age. I was right behind him. I mean, summer sandals like this, my flat feet too. You know, I'm not very short, but it's necessary to say something like this, just for the sake of conversation. You know, I said, "How tall are you?" And then he said something to me. When you sit down, there is no difference. After that, I was very awkward after he said that. We started going to work on weekends on [Day]. We were going from the same place to the flagstaff. We were going back together. Well, no one was there at that time. You know, our friendship started to progress. That's how it happened.

Interviewer: [00:02:49] How did your friendship turn into a relationship?

Speaker: [00:02:57] So there are interesting things actually. How our conversation turned into a relationship. It mostly came from my husband. Honestly, I didn't have that much emotion at first. I mean after that. Slowly, slowly, slowly, slowly. As we spent time together. I would say so.

Interviewer: [00:03:24] How long did it take you to get married? Your dating period...

Speaker: [00:03:27] Our marriage?

Interviewer: [00:03:28] How long did it take? How long was your dating period.

Speaker: [00:03:31] How long did it last. We got married around the end of [Month] [Year]. So [1-5] years you could say.

Interviewer: [00:03:46] How would you rate the quality of your relationship compared to the quality of your friends' relationships?

Speaker: [00:03:59] Well, the people around us. I think there is a depression in everybody right now.

Interviewer: [00:04:05] Uh-huh.

Speaker: [00:04:05] So I don't know why anymore, but really people's relationships have become very difficult, including ours. I mean we had a lot of difficulties from the first day. We are not very compatible. So there is something that just attracts me. We had love. So I would say so.

Interviewer: [00:04:35] I understand how difficult it is with your relationship with those around you, how would you compare it to those around you? I know it's not an easy thing to compare, but if you were to compare, better or worse?

Speaker: [00:04:50] Yes, it's not easy to compare.

Interviewer: [00:04:54] Easier or more difficult.

Speaker: [00:04:56] More difficult.

Interviewer: [00:05:00] Why did you say more difficult? What makes your relationship more difficult? Compared to the observations you have seen.

Speaker: [00:05:13] I think it's like this, I mean why? It's not accusatory, of course not, he is like this and he is like that, but when the most important problem arises, I think it is the effort of 2 people to solve those problems exactly there. Because problems arise. Of course they will. The important thing is how you approach those problems, how you talk.

Interviewer: [00:05:38] Uh-huh.

Speaker: [00:05:39] So what do you do to solve these problems in a sincere way as two people, I mean, I think that's the most valuable thing. Did that answer your question exactly? I don't know.

Interviewer: [00:06:00] Not bad. It's not quite right in terms of, well. Were the people around us resolving their conflicts more easily. Your difficulties in conflict resolution...

Speaker: [00:06:11] The sound is echoing. Do people around us resolve it more easily?

Interviewer: [00:06:17] Yes

Speaker: [00:06:18] Did you say that people around us solve it more easily?

Interviewer: [00:06:19] Is it easier for those around you to solve it, is it harder for you?

Speaker: [00:06:23] I don't think anybody solves it easily. I mean, it's a little bit like this, I humbly read about such issues, I'm interested in such issues.

Interviewer: [00:06:41] uh-huh

Speaker: [00:06:42] It's also about myself. I don't think anyone solves it easily. I think those who seem to have solved it either sweep it under the rug or ignore it or whatever. It is not easy. I think it is very rare, I wish there were such long years, partnerships, marriages. I mean, I think there are other kinds of coincidences. There is no mutual sacrifice. You know, what the old people used to say, respect is an important thing. I believe in that very much. I mean, it's good for everyone and bad for us. Of course, I don't know everyone that well. But the few people I know aren't very good either, so what can I do.

Interviewer: [00:07:30] It's similar to the people around you then.

Speaker: [00:07:37] Similar in a way. I mean, we have friends who are doing well, we have friends who have good marriages. It can also be said similar, of course. I think our biggest handicap is our inability to solve problems.

Interviewer: [00:08:03] May I ask how many romantic relationships did you have before your spouse?

Speaker: [00:08:10] I would say [1-5].

Interviewer: [00:08:14] How would you rate your current relationship compared to those?

Speaker: [00:08:20] I mean, I was very immature. Anyway, considering that I met [Name] when I was [20-25] years old, before that I was in high school, I was [11-15] - [16-20] years old. The other one was [16-20] years old. I would say so.

Interviewer: [00:08:40] How would you compare, evaluate, can you compare? I understand that they are very different relationships. This is a relationship that has been going on for a very long time, they were both short and young, so again it is difficult to compare, I don't have any other comparison questions. This is my last comparison question. How would you compare? Can you compare? What would you say if you were to compare?

Speaker: [00:09:06] I'll compare it anyway.

Interviewer: [00:09:09] I say give it a try.

Speaker: [00:09:10] That was my first relationship. Sir?

Interviewer: [00:09:11] I say give it a try,

Speaker: [00:09:15] I try

Interviewer: [00:09:15] Comparison...

Speaker: [00:09:19] First, yes, at the age of [11-15], high school [1-5], after that, the same neighborhood, our mothers were friends and so on, after that, what should I say, common groups of friends. Of course, as we grew older together, we were actually in adolescence.

Interviewer: [00:09:47] Uh-huh.

Speaker: [00:09:47] As the age grows older and that person becomes popular and has a lot of girls around him. Afterwards, I didn't know about these things. I thought we would get married then. Our whole life would be together and so on. I experienced jealousy more intensely. He was extremely comfortable. When my husband [Partner's Name] and I met my, the jealousy was also intense in him. I mean, me, [Participant's Name], as a [20-25] years old woman liked that.

Speaker: [00:10:26] So it was attractive for her. This may be what I will compare. The next one was also my university classmate. He was also someone I came from the same high school, the same environment.

Speaker: [00:10:44] We used to go to school together and so on. That was more like a friendship. And it didn't turn into anything, it couldn't turn into a romantic relationship. Friendship was more dominant with him. I would say so.

Interviewer: [00:11:03] What makes a relationship high quality for you? What makes a relationship good?

Speaker: [00:11:18] I think there are many, many, many factors, there are really many factors. Now first of all I think the bond of love (sevgi) is a very serious bond, the bond of love is really important. But sometimes after that to make it work, it

Speaker: [00:11:35] may not be enough to get along. The most important thing is to talk and listen, to talk, listen and participate, to be involved, to accept your own responsibility, your own responsibility in the situation and to cooperate with the other person. Was your question problem solving? The most important thing...the most important...

Interviewer: [00:12:08] What makes the relationship good, what makes it quality? Taking responsibility in the situation. Listening, talking, loving.

Speaker: [00:12:21] It makes the relationship good. I mean cooperating in problem solving, listening, understanding the problem... Because problems can arise.

Speaker: [00:12:39] Taking responsibility, taking responsibility for the problem.

Interviewer: [00:12:46] How do these make a good relationship?

Speaker: [00:12:55] Now the relationship, it's a very, very, very big question. It is an intense question.

Speaker: [00:13:01] It is a really valuable question. How do these things make the relationship good? Now if two people are already coming together, there is something that attracts them. They are together as if they are already together. And especially if they have been together for so many years, it means that there is a foundation, that is, living in the same house, the same order is established, the same habits, you know, the material things, the environments necessary for life in the world have been provided.

Speaker: [00:13:39] So what happens then? These are the problems that arise in life as they go, what I call problems. There are already a very, very wide range of your own personal problems. From being able to talk about it with your spouse, from being able to get support from him/her here.

Speaker: [00:14:03] Being able to talk to solve the problems that arise between two people. So it's like everything depends on that. I mean the approach of the people to them. Well, because there is already love (sevgi), if the relationship lasts together, they have already happened.

Interviewer: [00:14:29] What does being able to talk cover, what does it cover for you.

Speaker: [00:14:35] Being able to talk. That's right now.

Interviewer: [00:14:40] I mean, I asked you because you guessed it. We are talking right now, but there is talking, talking, talking. Speaking means producing words, as if you are not talking about speaking in that sense. I mean we are talking too.

Speaker: [00:14:54] That's probably my biggest problem with my husband.

Speaker: [00:14:56] I mean something from the past, since we have a communication problem, of course everyone knows what they have experienced. My problem is

Speaker: [00:15:08] I mean because if you know that a person will not understand you, you know, no matter what you do, if you know that he will not understand you, do you try to talk?

Speaker: [00:15:25] Let's look from there. [Redacted].

Speaker: [00:15:41] So no, first of all, yes, communication.

Interviewer: [00:15:50] Talking, being understood, getting along.

Speaker: [00:15:54] Sure.

Interviewer: [00:15:56] You seem to be talking about sharing, sharing inside. If I understand correctly.

Speaker: [00:16:01] I mean, sometimes it can include daily problems. Everything including the state of the house. It can be ordinary things that happen at home.

Interviewer: [00:16:15] So what makes a relationship bad? Its quality, what lowers its quality?

Speaker: [00:16:22] I don't hear any sound, I don't hear any sound.

Interviewer: [00:16:25] One second, let's try. You froze and I froze.

Speaker: [00:16:31] [Name], your voice is completely gone.

Interviewer: [00:16:32] We froze too. Let me change my internet. Let me switch to my phone's internet. Maybe it's because of that. Let me see. Hold on a second. Hopefully it won't go away now. I'm on my phone's Internet. So what makes a relationship low quality? What makes it bad?

Speaker: [00:17:05] Well, at the very beginning, what comes to our minds immediately is violence. The emotional violence, making a person feel that you don't want to listen to him/her, it may be emotional violence.

Speaker: [00:17:21] Maybe. I mean, for example, my husband loves me very much. I believe in his love, I love him very much and he knows it. So it is ingrained with habit. Let me put it that way. But did you say the worst thing in relationships? Did you say the most difficult?

Interviewer: [00:17:48] What makes a relationship bad? What lowers the quality of the relationship? What lowers the quality of the relationship?

Speaker: [00:18:02] What degrades the quality of the relationship? Lack of communication. It's difficult. Communication is already very important. Not being able to talk, not being able to show emotion. I mean, not being able to fully feel each other's presence. Then live alone. Communication is very important.

Interviewer: [00:18:27] Okay. What would you say are the difficulties in your relationship? What do you find difficulties in your relationship? What are your difficulties in communicating? What are your difficulties?

Speaker: [00:18:48] Of course there are some difficulties from the past. For example, I can't attract my husband's attention. Especially now I think he is a bit scared of things that come from me. I mean, for example, he takes my speeches as violence, as criticism. However, I don't know how to say that. Sometimes it can be criticism, of course. Because you start from there, there is such dissatisfaction with something in the conversation, and when you try to talk about something to correct it, it can be as if it is a criticism. I don't know how to say it most of the time. I mean, I try many, many ways.

Interviewer: [00:19:44] What are the challenges in your relationship?

Speaker: [00:19:49] Well, I would say our inability to talk is the first one. My husband shuts himself off now. Sometimes he even collapses when we try to talk.

Interviewer: [00:20:04] What are the difficulties themselves? What are the topics you cannot talk about? Would you like to share?

Speaker: [00:20:11] I try to talk about the reasons why we don't get along.

Interviewer: [00:20:16] Yes.

Speaker: [00:20:17] I try to talk about why we have problems, and I try to talk about why I feel uncomfortable, and I also tell him what can be done, how can the problems be fixed, how can I feel more comfortable and how can I solve the problem.

Interviewer: [00:20:36] What do you need?

Speaker: [00:20:37] Sure.

Interviewer: [00:20:40] What do you need, may I ask?

Speaker: [00:20:53].Well, I guess almost speaking the same language. I mean, what do I need? Yes, to go out with my husband, even if it's just in a car. I mean, to hear he is saying that, "let's do this, let's go out together, let's do something like this". He is very, very immobile. I mean, he had an operation under his foot for the last [1-5] months. It's been there for [6-10] years, but in general we've known each other for [40-45] years. He is usually like that. I mean, he is a sedentary person. Let me put it that way. Actually, when we were still dating, we went to the seaside together,

Speaker: [00:21:39] I looked and he's not swimming. He doesn't want to swim. He wants to sunbathe. But it is always more important. We are not used to it either, in [City], I guess we were not used to this or walks or movements, a little bit more like this, active life, active life, so it was not like that. Maybe, let's accept that. I'm really a bit too active. So okay, this can happen too. We can find a common place. Because he gets bored at some point too. To put his own personality, to act with his own ideas, to contribute to the ideas and the environment and the family, to be with us with his ideas. I mean, I think he is usually alone in the house, even if he is together with me, his mood and movements are in a circle. For example, I have opened many [activity].

Speaker: [00:22:58] I'm a [occupation], I studied [program], I studied [program], now he says he has no interest. Okay, maybe. I mean, there were many things I was not interested in either. But it's such a common step, just because it's his life. I think maybe a little bit of effort can be made. OK, I mean, but zero. I hope his foot is better now. I have an [activity] in [11-15] days.

Speaker: [00:23:32] I said you'll come this time, I said we'll put a chair there. I mean, I can't think of anything other than where to put [Partner's Name] in every environment related to me and how to make him comfortable. We have a relationship with him. I mean, I can't think of anything else other than where he will sit, where he won't be able to stand, where he will get bored, where he will get overwhelmed.

Interviewer: [00:24:04] You seem to be saying that you need his attention.

Speaker: [00:24:12] A little bit, yes, I think that I always have that circle of my own, and for that, what happens when I take my medication, I don't stretch my feet, I don't sit comfortably, I wear the most comfortable thing, I'm not disturbed by the quietest environment, just a life with these.

Interviewer: [00:24:40] How often do you argue with your spouse?

Speaker: [00:24:12] Very, very often nowadays, it's been very boring lately, so, well, we have a small house in [City]

Speaker: [00:24:50] so in [City], he went there again. We texted last night, but I said, I mean, it's cold, you don't have to stay there, I said, this is your home, your nest, we are your family, I said, at least you don't have to stay there when you are very cold and bored. He has a helpless nature, I mean, now, how should I put it, he sees himself like that. There is always a victimized, helpless situation

Speaker: [00:25:30] Yet he is strong and he has many opportunities in his hands.

Interviewer: [00:25:43] You said the frequency of your discussions is very frequent, but is it every day, every week, every month?

Speaker: [00:25:30] Yes, I mean, it can grow even from very ridiculous things, my handicap here is what I can't overcome, what I can't handle, I mean, there are a lot of serious problems from the past in our relationship with him, and he says I'm not the same person anymore, I've changed, I don't look at these things so strictly, and when we have an incident, he immediately brings something from the past to me.

Speaker: [00:26:27] then it gets bigger and then all of a sudden he faints, he goes in, he says I'm going to bed, he sleeps for an hour, he recovers and comes back. We go on with our lives as if nothing had happened, that is, we don't talk about what was discussed. There is no subject, he just faints, goes to sleep, comes back, and we continue with the things of the house, such as whether there are tomatoes, whether there is sugar, whether there is bread, and so on, and when this happens, I say to him that we need to look at something, I mean, he says I have changed, but he behaves the same.

Interviewer: [00:27:11] What are you arguing about, conflicting about?

Speaker: [00:27:22] I swear, how can I tell you, there are so many now

Speaker: [00:27:26] Indeed, there is a very serious and very concrete example of such a recent example

Speaker: [00:27:30] I can tell him

Interviewer: [00:27:32] Right

Speaker: [00:27:34] For example, there is a park in front of our house and we come home from there

Speaker: [00:27:39] and suddenly in the park, my husband spits loudly and noisily, so I'm disturbed. I say, I mean, at least don't do it, at least don't do it so loudly. He says he did it on the soil, he says he didn't do it on the road, he says this is the soil, he says, well, there are a lot of people around and I can hear it, so I say, well, this is not a nice thing. Now here, I think this is a very concrete example. He thinks that I attacked him... He gets defensive about it and says that he will continue to do, for example. I mean, if he said "I was idle here, oh my God, I don't understand how it came out of nowhere, I'll be careful next time", the subject would be already over.

Speaker: [00:28:35] I'm not going to mention it again, but he defends it, that is, spitting on the ground, this can happen in the park when the garden is outside. It can be loud, it can be loud even if everyone hears it, so in the end you get nervous about it.

Interviewer: [00:29:00] You're saying that he doesn't give up his own truths.

Speaker: [00:29:02] I mean now, for example, seriously, he always sits at home. When he sits like this, he is very sedentary. For example, he stretches out his feet because the doctor said that he should keep his feet high, so from the moment he opens his eyes, he sits on the same chair, he stretches out his feet in the same way, there are 2-3 coffee tables next to him, the coffee tables are crammed, pills, pens are shaking like this. Then he turns on the TV or doesn't turn on the TV. He doesn't get up from there all day. At home he loads the dishwasher. He chose that job for himself, the dirty and the clean. Now, because we are at home since [Year], I can say that our working lives are over. Of course it is over. I myself really have a lot of work. I work in a [company]. I have been working there for [11-15] years.

Speaker: [00:30:09] I also made myself a [business].

Speaker: [00:30:13] As long as I have the opportunity to go there, I go with great eagerness. My parents are alive, thank God, they still have their needs and wishes. So when that happens, I'm in and out a lot and he is immobile.

Interviewer: [00:30:35] What is love according to you?

Speaker: [00:30:46] What is love (aşk)?

Speaker: [00:29:02] I mean, love (aşk), sometimes a person, sometimes a work, for example, I think I feel a sense of love when I'm painting right now, or I think I feel a sense of love when I'm working with [interest] and I need that feeling, but of course, the most beautiful version of love is the one felt towards a person. There is an unconditional acceptance in love, that is, there is no such thing as you are like this and you are like that in love, of course, you know, love is blind, blind. When you love a person to that degree, you are blinded by that love and you go headlong.

Interviewer: [00:31:44] Are there any other characteristics of love, other than being blind and unconditional?

Interviewer: [00:31:52] How does one know that it is love, for example, what does it feel like?

Speaker: [00:31:59] Well, as a feeling, you know, there are even bodily sensations, of course, there are heart palpitations, it's like your hands and feet tremble for a while and you idealize that person very much and you put that person very high. I mean this happens for sure.

Interviewer: [00:32:18] Loving unconditionally, unconditionally, accepting, idealizing...

Speaker: [00:32:26] I mean, unconditional is also a very pretentious word, but it is the most intense period of love

Speaker: [00:32:31] We talked about love with our friends, they got married in love. This friend of ours was working at the [Company] at that time, the female one.

Speaker: [00:32:45] The male one was telling the story, I don't know how he got there, I don't know if it was a hill, I never went there, he went up on foot. He was telling how he went up that road because he wanted to see her, he was telling how he ran up there with such excitement and eagerness, he was running, clawing, clawing. And they said, well, we all accepted it together, I mean, it's not possible to live with this feeling for a lifetime, it just goes away, I mean, it's such an intense feeling that you can't live with the feeling of love every minute, like a sickness, like a disease.

Interviewer: [00:33:28] When it's at its most intense, it's a sickeningly intense, idealizing, exciting, enthusiastic, raging emotion that doesn't allow you to see anything else; love.

Speaker: [00:33:44] Yes, I mean there, of course, the feeling of possessiveness, for example, I have learned something now, that possessiveness and claiming are different and claiming is a healthy emotion, not possessiveness. Maybe you want to be possessive in love.

Interviewer: [00:34:10] possessiveness..

Speaker: [00:34:14] Yes

Interviewer: [00:34:16] It's a question I've asked before, it's going to be similar, but what are the most important things in a relationship for you? First we talked about quality and poor quality. Now what is most important to you we talked about what you have given, I am asking.

Speaker: [00:34:34] Now the most important things for me in a relationship

Speaker: [00:34:37] Actually, the things that I care are the most of the things that I have said, actually number one, that is to feel that the other person, your partner, cares about you, that he or she puts you in an important place in his or her heart, first of all, this is respect. What this means is that they care and respect your words, your thoughts, your presence, your wishes, your feelings, what you feel. Then, of course, a lot of things develop around this. When you value and give importance, a lot of things develop around it.

Interviewer: [00:35:35] What for example, what went through your mind?

Speaker: [00:35:41] I mean, when one cares about your feelings, when one tells you about the problem you are experiencing at that time, you can say that this person feels this, he listens and starts looking for a solution.

Interviewer: [00:36:04] The solution is to be listened to, to talk to, to be seen as important and valued.

Speaker: [00:36:12] Being important and valued, and then the thing that exists in marriage is a stance together against this life.

Speaker: [00:36:23] so sometimes it can be the problems you have with the environment. And when you look at the male-female balance together with the masculine-feminine balance, I don't know how to describe it, but I mean, each of them has their own place, but of course you need to take from each other, each of them will take something from each other. This is something I just learned again, the balance of exchange is also very valuable.

Interviewer: [00:37:17] How important is love in a relationship?

Speaker: [00:37:23] Well, love is very important whether it ends or not. Okay, it ends, it changes shape.

Speaker: [00:37:30] Even if the feelings that I talked about a little while ago, you know, those friends that we talked about, which are so intense that they make you feel sick, even if they are gone, maybe you are not excited every minute, but you are happy with his presence, maybe he may not be a very perfect person. Even if everyone doesn't like him, one can fall in love with him. It can be like that, but of course it doesn't always last. I think you need to nurture it to sustain it. And nurturing means talking, communicating, respecting, giving importance. If you don't have these, how can you feed them? Even your relationship with an animal is the same at home.

Interviewer: [00:38:22] You need to show interest, you need to take care,

Speaker: [00:38:29] You need to feed, water. If one side is constantly watered, a friend of mine said, are we an internal combustion engine, how are we going to feed it continuously?

Interviewer: [00:38:46] Then you seem to be saying that you also need to pass the ball when you feed.

Whoever can feed at that moment should feed. How do you know if you love the other person?

Speaker: [00:39:15] Yes. Now my husband even texted that in her messages to me last night. Yes, I love you very much, I miss you very much. Now these are very valuable things, but if you have been saying this for [40-45] years and I am not saying that he did this or that, but if there is nothing in the things we have talked about so far

Speaker: [00:39:40] in terms of communication, in terms of sustaining life, so you look at the love (sevgi) there with suspicion. You know, he loves me, okay. Last night, for example, just such a thing happened. Yes he said I'm glad you're with me, this and that. After that, good night, sleep well. It's like 11 o'clock, but if he was at home, he'd stay up until 12:00 or 1:00. And he only lives in a room there because it's cold, he turned on the air conditioner and turned on the stove and so on. So I said what happened, I mean why are you turning it off so quickly, what happened, did something happen? And now there is the issue of drinking, of course, I was very bored and disturbed when he drank every night for [30-35] years. and I said, are you drunk? I asked if that's why he was drunk, you know, if he was drunk or something. He said no, I said I'll video call you then. I said wait, what are you doing, how are you doing? Did you mess up after that? Then there were some malfunctions in his phone, he bought a new phone, he couldn't get them to work properly. The phone refused video calls and stuff like that. So he said call me, why don't you call me, I said okay, he wants me to call him, he wants me to video call him, so there's nothing wrong, there's no problem.

Interviewer: [00:41:14] So you said this if I understood you correctly. It is very valuable to say it, it is good to say it, it is thrown into people to hear it, but it is also important to see it in behavior, as far as I understand.

Speaker: [00:41:27] Sure. For example, is there any more valuable way of showing that you love that person than making them feel that you are very willing to solve the problem if you are the one who created it, especially if the problem is related to you. I mean, this is a very valuable thing. You will even be able to question something about yourself.

Interviewer: [00:42:06] Dare to return to yourself.

Speaker: [00:42:09] How?

Interviewer: [00:42:10] Dare to turn to oneself, dare to look at oneself, as I understand what you said.

Speaker: [00:42:18] You also dare to transform yourself there. So this is not an easy thing

Speaker: [00:42:29] Now, for example, I get angry. I mean, sometimes, especially when the other person turns into such a wall, I try to grab him, shake him, and try to get whatever emotion comes out of him. But now I see that this anger is not a good thing, both I get tired and maybe he is also dumbfounded by it. So I'm trying to control my anger, I swear I'm trying to control it, I mean I'm holding myself back all the time. This is also an effort.

Speaker: [00:43:07] I mean, why do I do it, for myself, for our relationship, for communication, but also when I see the effect on him, so that I don't upset him that much. Although sometimes it's good if he gets upset. I don't even see the feeling of being upset, it's like it's okay if he gets upset. Because when you are upset and disturbed by something, you try to find a solution for it.

Interviewer: [00:43:33] The other person's feelings, seeing that they can be touched for you and seeing that they are touched is a way of knowing that they are loved. Do I understand correctly?

Speaker: [00:43:46] Yes, that you care about him. [Name], it sounds like I came easily.

Interviewer: [00:43:55] Huh?

Speaker: [00:43:56] I didn't expect something like this, like a survey.

Speaker: [00:43:59] Yeah, no, something like this or something like that

Interviewer: [00:44:05] Opinion, then we would have done a survey, why interview.

Interviewer: [00:44:12] How do you maintain your relationship. I mean other than trying to resolve your conflicts.

Speaker: [00:44:19] we cannot sustain, we cannot sustain. We are finding it very difficult. We are really struggling these days and my daughter is sitting with us.

Interviewer: [00:44:32] huh?

Speaker: [00:44:33] she is also struggling. She also has a hard time growing up in such an environment.

Interviewer: [00:44:48] You seem to have a lot of emotion in you.

Speaker: [00:44:51] Sir

Interviewer: [00:44:52] you seem to have a lot of emotion in you.

Speaker: [00:44:55] Yes. I do.

Interviewer: [00:45:01] Would you say that this relationship is good for you?

Speaker: [00:45:09] It's not.

Interviewer: [00:45:13] Why not? What is not coming? So it's not what doesn't come, it's how does it affect you, I mean how does it make you bad? It makes you, you know what I mean?

Speaker: [00:45:31] My energy is going quite a lot. I mean my own life energy about life is going down a lot. It drops to half. I would say so. I mean, and I feel, I don't know, strong here, I guess. Against [Partner's Name], I mean, I have to like and accept him in every way, or I have to not complain about anything, after that, or that's what's going on in the back of my mind, in the back of my head, which we talked about a little while ago, you know, you say, how is love like this, I wonder if I don't accept him as he is, for example, when we talk. I wonder if it would be like that, but we're not going to share anything together? I mean, for example, even this can be a problem. Let's do this. He doesn't want anything else, he doesn't want to get up from the sofa, he always sits, he sits for years, now get up, let's do something like this, let's go for a cup of tea, let's go for a walk, let's walk a little bit, a little bit, a little bit, a little bit of force.

Speaker: [00:46:46] So for years my husband had a profession traveling abroad. He was working in [field].

Speaker: [00:46:55] Half of [Partner's Name] was not here. He just put the bag on his shoulder and went. I'm telling you, he has his own individual thing, he will move himself in that circle and do it himself. Anyway, I can say that this is how it lasted until today. I mean, here at home, I took care of everything related to the child and the whole house by myself, in my own life, so that's how it went.

Interviewer: [00:47:32] Can you give examples of energy diminishing and taking away your energy? At least one. How does that happen?

Speaker: [00:47:51] So it's always a matter of nature, though.

Speaker: [00:47:55] I don't know, let's say we get up in the morning, we walk from the bedroom of the house to the living room. It's very simple. I mean, if it falls in front of me, I can't walk, that's it, slowly. After that, in the sense of walking, he steps aside, you know, he gives way to me, so to speak, and I pass. It lowers my energy. I mean, of course, when you talk about something, he insists on not understanding, he doesn't understand. He opposes it.

Speaker: [00:48:43] That's what we were talking about before, always the solution situations, the problem that happens even because of the smallest thing... I'm trying to explain it insistently. I can say that my energy drops from here. This is something I criticize myself for, and I try to explain it persistently Interviewer: [00:49:07] It's tiring to try to explain insistently.

Speaker: [00:49:10] Yes

Interviewer: [00:49:07] Has this relationship changed you?

Speaker: [00:49:23] I was [20-25] years old at the time, now I am [60-65] years old. this relationship has already changed me in life. How much I have changed in this relationship, I mean, I don't have anything to compare how it would have been if I had been a lonely [Participant's Name], how it is now when I look at it as I am now. I mean, life is already changing in these many years. I swear that this relationship changed me, it definitely changed me. You know, like I said, but did that relationship change me or did life change me ...

Interviewer: [00:50:01] If you could make a guess, I mean life, life, when you look at your own changes, of course I realize that I'm not asking an easy question, I mean you've been in a relationship for a long time, you've been together for a long, long time, you've lived life, life changes you, as you say, but you can guess how much or not how much but what has changed from the relationship you were in. Of course it is difficult to separate life and relationship, on the one hand you have spent almost your whole life together. You spent most of the time you lived together, so let me say that I realize it's not an easy question.

Speaker: [00:50:53] Did this relationship change me?

Speaker: [00:51:06] I mean, I can't think much about good things, the truth is.

Interviewer: [00:51:16] How did it change you in negative ways? I mean, can you tell me at least one thing? Just as a guess.

Speaker: [00:51:37] In negative terms, of course, that age is another thing, I mean, when we started, there are a lot of things on a [20-25]-year-old young person, from excitement for the future, a lot of enthusiasm. The potential to love, the enthusiasm for life and so on and so forth, but I can say that it's all gone. I've been dealing with [Partner's Name] a lot, I mean, how should I say, with my husband, yes, I feel like I've been dealing more with my husband than with life.

Interviewer: [00:52:18] Did he change? We froze. We are here, are we here? [Participant's Name].

Speaker: [00:52:37] Sir

Interviewer: [00:52:38] oh we were frozen and now we're here, has that changed?

Speaker: [00:52:40] Okay yes, I hear, I hear.

Interviewer: [00:52:42] Hmm. I asked if he's changed but I didn't hear your answer...

Speaker: [00:52:45] He changed. He changed, he changed more and more. When I really look at it now, when I look from here, that young man [Partner's Name], that [20-25]-year-old young man who met [Participant's Name], had a lot of mental problems. At that time I saw him clearly when I look at him from here now. I didn't understand him at all. I mean, of course I was very young too. I didn't understand him. I had problems too, of course, but his problems were quite obvious.

Interviewer: [00:53:28] What ...

Speaker: [00:53:28] I mean, I thought that by loving (sevgi) him very much, by establishing a good order, by living together in our home with good joy and love (sevgi), we will manage it all.

Speaker: [00:53:43] So it didn't. I mean, in the early days of our marriage, when I look at it now, of course there was a man who was more full of life,

Speaker: [00:53:53] because the goal of his life was work and since he was at the beginning of work, there was a lot of enthusiasm, excitement, expectations and life energized him.

Speaker: [00:54:05] He was of course there, so I would say it was different.

Interviewer: [00:54:12] How did it change?

Speaker: [00:54:17] I mean how his behavior towards me, his attitude towards me, yes it changed more. I mean, I don't know if it was good or bad, there were other things that came along with it. In the beginning, when there was excessive jealousy, he was not letting me breathe. In the following years, he was immersed in his own business. We spent the first [1-5] years of our marriage in [City] and then we returned to [City]. I am from [City], my family is in [City]. I don't want to say I lived here completely comfortably, I mean I lived comfortably, [Partner's Name] was absent most of the time anyway, he was on business trips.

Speaker: [00:54:58] In that sense, I can say that jealousy was tamed. The sense of possessiveness was weakened in him.

Speaker: [00:55:09] Even afterwards, I mean, I could do anything I wanted, he did not put any obstacle, pressure, quota on me. I mean, but when I wasn't working, when I was economically dependent on him, there was a little bit of pressure, I was bored in that way. I mean, in our marriage, he actually turned to alcohol more.

Speaker: [00:55:43] Alcohol was not that much in the beginning. That was also a negative side. But I saw that he became a little bit more patient, more patient. His patience improved. The difficulties he experienced, the difficulties he experienced in his business life increased his patience. He was much more self-centered, I think he developed a lot. He had a lot of difficulties in business life in the private sector.

Interviewer: [00:56:24] do you feel safe in the relationship?

Speaker: [00:56:27] I feel safe, yes I can say that.

Interviewer: [00:56:34] Can you open it?

Speaker: [00:56:36] Sir

Interviewer: [00:56:37] Can you open it?

Speaker: [00:56:38] what we mean by trust is what it feels like to feel safe, that there is a man next to me. I always have a man by my side. I sleep in the living room, there is a man who covers me. So yes, I know that no matter what happens there is still a man who loves me, to feel safe, against life, against physical life.

Interviewer: [00:57:18] So emotionally, is there a trust that you can share your experiences, your thoughts, your feelings without being judged, without fear of reprisal?

Speaker: [00:57:35] There is. I mean, the sense of judgment, the sense of retaliation, sometimes I feel retaliation in small, very light ways, but it is very little, but emotionally, first of all, I mean, with a person who you think does not understand you, he loves you very much, but he does not understand you, so there are a lot of problems, this and that.

Interviewer: [00:58:12] I have very few questions left. I'm finishing. I need to throw something for a second, a visual.

Interviewer: [00:00:30] Yes. I am sharing, can you see it?

Speaker: [00:58:42] My partner, my partner usually really listens to me.

Interviewer: [00:58:46] If I ask you my partner usually really listens to me. How many would you give, 1 - not true at all, 9 - completely true? I'm not talking about obedience

Speaker: [00:59:00] How?

Interviewer: [00:59:01] I'm not talking about listening.

Speaker: [00:59:04] Uh-huh. In the sense of listening to your presence?

Interviewer: [00:59:08] Exactly, listening to your speech, exactly listening to your presence is a nice phrase. Listening to your presence. 1-not true at all, 9-totally true.

Speaker: [00:59:23] so I would say between one and three.

Interviewer: [00:59:28] If you were to choose one?

Speaker: [00:59:34] I mean, I don't want to say that it's not true at all, because if we have a soul from God inside us.

Speaker: [00:59:44] a little bit everyone can understand the state of someone. I would say that's a little bit true.

Interviewer: [00:59:53] Three. If I asked you that my partner is usually sensitive to my needs, 1-none true, 9-totally true one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, which one would you give?

Speaker: [01:00:14] If I say between five and three, if I have to choose one again, then I'll say four.

Interviewer: [01:00:22] If I ask you how satisfied you are with your relationship in general, I am completely dissatisfied, very dissatisfied, somewhat dissatisfied, not sure/undecided, somewhat satisfied...

Speaker: [01:00:32] I would say I am not very satisfied.

Interviewer: [01:00:35] I am not satisfied. Then it's the same question again, how would you rate it? minus ten to be completely dissatisfied and zero to have no dissatisfaction at all.

Speaker: [01:01:01] Between zero and 10

Speaker: [01:01:09] So it's between having no dissatisfaction at all and having complete dissatisfaction... Okay, I get it now e... I'll say 7.

Interviewer: [01:01:21] Minus 7.

Speaker: [01:01:22] Minus 7.

Interviewer: [01:01:25] Okay. Why not 5? Not minus 5 but minus 7.

Speaker: [01:01:32] So it's not in the middle. So even being in the middle is being in balance. Now if it is 5, if it is minus 5. I mean, if it is minus 10... What am I doing here then?

Speaker: [01:01:47] That's it. Probably minus 7 for him.

Interviewer: [01:01:52] Okay. Do you have any other questions here?

Interviewer: [01:01:52] No. Interviewer. That's it, that's it. I have one last question. After that, we have a few procedural processes. Other than that, it'll be fine. If you don't mind me asking, can I ask you a couple of questions about your sex life?

Speaker: [01:02:14] We don't have a sex life. I mean I was [40-45] years old, he was [46-50] years old, it's over.

Interviewer: [01:02:29] [16-20] years old ... I mean, not for [16-20] years.

Speaker: [01:02:33] Yes.

Interviewer: [01:02:35] There is a question about how satisfied she should be but I didn't know how to ask about something that doesn't exist.

Speaker: [01:02:48] So something like...

Interviewer: [01:02:49] Let me ask you how this situation seems to you.

Speaker: [01:02:52] Sir?

Interviewer: [01:02:53] Let me ask you how it feels for you not to have a sex life.

Speaker: [01:02:56] I said, I mean, when I became [60-65] years old, my goals changed. I look at it differently, but of course it was not a good thing in my [40-45]s. I mean, it was not a good thing for me, of course, and when I approached it to look for a solution, it was quite bad.

Speaker: [01:03:23] There's a feeling that I'm trying to deal with now. I didn't dwell on it like it was numb in those days. But when I was looking for a solution to these things, for example, when I said let's get help about this, let's get support about this, let's find something about this, let's find help about this, when I said let's find help, he was really really seriously depressed. And he even said something like this to me, that was a serious thing for me, "Go find someone and leave me alone."

Interviewer: [01:04:05] It's a difficult sentence. I'm saying it's a difficult sentence. It stayed like that after that time.

Speaker: [01:04:19] Now, when he went to [City] again, I reminded him of this. I said, this is a very difficult sentence to digest, very difficult, I mean, it is an extremely hurtful sentence that should be forgotten. So it is already very difficult to stand here with this. It is not possible to stand here with this. We partly texted and partly talked verbally through voice messages. The last time this happened was not about [1-5] month ago. About [16-20] days ago, it came to my agenda again. Of course, it is very difficult for me to continue the relationship with these feelings while they are standing here while they are standing here.

Speaker: [01:05:00] Then he said, "I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry for saying such a thing, I'm so sorry for saying such a thing, how did I say that, blah blah blah", but that may not be enough.

Interviewer: [01:05:14] What would be enough?

Speaker: [01:05:19] I mean, there could have been different persuasive things after this time, once the past is gone, of course. Some time has passed, youth has gone somewhere. What would be enough? There is nothing that can make up for it, but it would have been enough to feel that regret really fervently and with that sincerity.

Interviewer: [01:05:52] How does it feel to you now that you don't have a sex life? He asked a lot at the time. What was said at the time is still in your heart. How does it feel not to have a sex life? Today...

Speaker: [01:06:06] So right now, I mean, there are other things that I have already said in terms of age. It feels normal right now. I don't have that much expectation about it right now.

Interviewer: [01:06:19] Um, okay.

Speaker: [01:06:20] But right now, of course, I want it to be a good and healthy relationship and I want it to be with him, but it can't be with all these things from the past. It's not very normal. I don't know how it's going to happen.

Interviewer: [01:06:37] Still, I sense that you have accumulated a lot of emotions. I mean, it seems like this interview was filled with intense intense intense intense emotions that you have difficulty in expressing, that you don't know where to put them, that you don't know how to ask for them.

Speaker: [01:06:55] Well, yes, for me too, you pull it off like a sock, a lot of things come up, inevitably. I can't just say yes or no. I think there's something about being an [occupation].

Speaker: [01:07:08] we had already gone to something like this. It was the year [Year]. Let's call it the first [occupation].

Speaker: [01:07:19] That's where I took [Partner's Name]. We were just experiencing all these problems down there at that time.

Interviewer: [01:07:28] [20-25] years ago more or less

Speaker: [01:07:29] and we were just going through that, and the guy there listened to us and listened and listened, and finally he closed the thing in his hand. He said, "This kind of marriage can't work." He said, "How did it go like this? He said such a marriage won't work. I don't know if that's true or not. When people treat us like that, he said. And he said it in front of my husband. He said it was impossible for this marriage to work. If it worked, it's your love (sevgi). He said there is love (sevgi) between you. He said it was interesting. He said there was love (sevgi) between you. He told me that it was impossible for this marriage to work, but it worked because of you.

Speaker: [01:08:16] So should I be arrogant? There is nothing to be arrogant about. My own desires, my own life, my own feelings are gone, so what if I am arrogant. That's what it is.

Interviewer: [01:08:31] I have no more questions, that's it. Thank you for all your sharing.

Speaker: [01:08:39] Thank you too. Thank you very much. I wish you all the best.

Interviewer: [01:08:44] A few questions, not questions. Let me start with the situation. First, I would like to share a few things about how the data you share will be processed so that we can both get your approval and do it the way you want. There are three options. One of them. This is today or any day in the future. In other words, for a long time in front of us, next year, three years later, two months later; you can say that I don't want this data to be used any more, please remove it from your data bank from wherever and on which platforms it is available. You can always say this. We will receive a written transcript of these meetings. That's why we record them. So we will not use video and audio. We are only evaluating them in order to translate them into written form.

Speaker: [01:09:38] That's fine too, in terms of my privacy.

Interviewer: [01:09:41] Sure

Speaker: [01:09:42] better. I read it because the articles that you sent last night, it put me at ease.

Interviewer: [01:09:47] Okay, exactly. We will remove names, locations, jobs from all our conversations. After it is translated into one language. If it will be shared, if it will be used, it will be used in its de-identified form. We have two options. Either you can only open some parts of it. You can call it scientific, to the scientific community. Because our goal is that they will also be translated into another language. They will be translated into English. Because the analyzes are in English. Some information will probably be lost there, partly because of the language. Then you can either say that you can only share some parts of it, paragraph by paragraph, paragraph by paragraph. Or you can allow the entire de-identified version of the transcript we are talking about to be used for research, to be used for research.

Speaker: [01:10:43] But now my understanding is that the places where it is used will be written as you just said.

Interviewer: [01:10:50] Sure

Speaker: [01:10:50] My information and my identity will not pass.

Interviewer: [01:10:53] It will not.

Speaker: [01:10:54] Okay.

Interviewer: [01:10:55] We can use all of them then if I understand correctly.

Speaker: [01:10:58] So

Interviewer: [01:10:59] without identity and by all I mean, once your identities are removed, you already have no voice. You already have no image. We are in writing. I don't know if you have an identity or someone else's identity, your job says that you are a [occupation], it doesn't say that you are an [occupation], for example. It doesn't say [Location], for example. [City], for example. In other words, we will be cleansing you of all the information that any reader can use to get to know you. But if there is someone who is familiar with your story, if it falls in front of them, I don't know.

Speaker: [01:11:35] Sure. Of course, it's better if it's not something that will make you say, "I think this looks a lot like [Participant's Name]." Yes, of course.

Interviewer: [01:11:45] Exactly.

Speaker: [01:11:46] I mean, I have now, of course, trusting you, I have opened myself completely.

Interviewer: [01:11:51] Exactly.

Interviewer: [01:11:46] Yeah.

Speaker: [01:11:51] I opened my privacy. I mean, of course, having friends I know has an effect here. Because I trusted them. Also, my husband has been talking to me for days, I mean, with all these things, I can easily say that I opened myself up. Otherwise, of course, the things I talked about are not something that can be told so easily, especially to someone I have never met.

Interviewer: [01:12:18] It is not. I am aware of that, so thank you very much. I am aware of how intimate we are, I am aware that you are sharing your privacy.

Speaker: [01:12:28] So this is a lifetime at this age.

Interviewer: [01:12:33] Then I think that in a way that is purified from your identities, that is, things are also shared. Now, I can't remember how to say it in Turkish. Since we collected quali type, we didn't collect the data or we didn't collect surveys, their analysis continues with examples when they are translated into articles under general conditions. So, I don't know, we put them into a thematic analysis, they do. Let's say it was found that being understood is important for a relationship. Not only you but 100 other people mentioned the importance of being understood. When being understood comes up as a topic, people are quoted on how they talk about being understood. Identity is quoted. I'm speaking anonymously. I'm speaking English. That's how it will be used. If you allow it, we need to use it all.

Speaker: [01:13:31] Yes, as you said, there is no [Name] without identity

Interviewer: [01:13:35] None

Speaker: [01:13:35] There is no [occupation], there is no such deterministic things.

Interviewer: [01:13:38] No

Speaker: [01:13:39] then it's just in the form of a life example.

Interviewer: [01:13:41] Life will be in the form of a life example yes. That was very good. Before we close I would like to summarize what we talked about. If it is convenient for you, I would like to give you the opportunity to intervene if there is something missing for you, if there is something more, if there is something you want to correct, if there is something I misunderstood. You are [60-65] years old, you have a son and a daughter for [40-45] years. You live with [1-5] people, you are retired, you live on your pension. You met your husband at the same workplace in the food line when you were [20-25] years old. Your acquaintance in the lunch queue has progressed and developed by spending time alone during working hours. At work, the feelings and the action came not from your side but from your work. After [1-5] years of dating and after that process, you got married in [Year]. You told everyone around you that there was a crisis and that people were having difficulty in making their relationships work. But you said your relationship was difficult. You said that there were similar relationships around you and that there were relationships that you observed were better than yours. You said that you had difficulty solving problems in your relationship. You said everyone sweeps them under the rug. It was as if you said that we try not to sweep it under the rug, but we just sweep it under the rug. You said you had [1-5] relationships before. You mentioned that these relationships were not comparable because of your age at the time and the duration of the relationships. You mentioned that the [1st-5th] one was in high school and the [1st-5th] one was in university. When I asked you what makes a relationship quality, what makes it good, you mentioned the importance of the bond of love. But you mentioned that it is not always enough, that it is important to talk, to listen, to take one's own responsibility in the events that occur, in the events that are against life, to weigh what one's share in this event is, and to act according to these weighings and try to change, to try to change. Because you already mentioned that love makes a relationship possible, that if there is a relationship, there is love, there is an order and a series of habits are established, but being able to see support, to talk, to understand, to feel understood is the essence of making a relationship good, you mentioned this. When I asked what makes a relationship bad, you mentioned emotional and physical violence as things that can make a relationship bad. You said it was not believing in love. You mentioned that not being able to share emotions, not being able to share life with each other, not being able to communicate pulls the relationship down. Then we started talking about the difficulties in your relationship. You mentioned that your relationship partner is afraid of you because you can't get their attention. You mentioned that he closed himself off. You talked about not being able to communicate what you need. You talked about being inactive. You said that you want him to act on his own ideas, to be part of your family, to be with you. You said that he was living like he was on his own. You said that you wanted to see his interest and effort. You emphasized his inactivity several times. His immobility at the seaside, the way he puts his feet up at home. You said that you argued a lot. You mentioned that your husband always felt victimized and helpless and acted in such a way that he became defensive, to put it in the simplest terms. You somehow said that you perceived that you were attacking him and that he closed himself off because he was defensive and that the conversations could not progress because of this. You then mentioned that your anger also played a part in this and that you made efforts to control your anger. After that we talked about what love is. You said that love is unconditional acceptance, that it is blind love, that it involves idealization, that it involves exciting enthusiasm, that it is an intense feeling that cannot be experienced without ending, without taking a break. With ownership

Speaker: [01:18:20] How, heh ok.

Interviewer: [01:18:23] you talked about the difference between claiming and possessing. You said that the important thing in the relationship, the most important thing for you is to see that you are valued and that you have an important place in the heart of an important other person. All the rest of the things, trying to find solutions, resting, are born from this important value, this precious is born out of feeling. You talked about the balance of giving meaning. You said that it is not without love, and even though you didn't say it exactly like that, you said that it is very important, and that even though it doesn't continue, you talked about how nice it is to feel it flare up again and how it nourishes the relationship. Exactly. We talked about the fact that in order to sustain it, you need to both feed from it and try to feed it in order to sustain it, and that it cannot be fed unilaterally, the importance of passing, the importance of passing to feed it, the importance of whoever has the power to feed it. We talked about the importance of this by talking and showing it well, bilaterally. When I asked you how a person knows that they are loved, you mentioned that saying it is valuable, it warms the heart, it is pleasant, but you mentioned the importance of seeing it in behavior. In other words, you said that it is not enough to say it, you need to live it, you need to do it. You said that to see the intensity that arises from volunteering to solve possessiveness, to be excited, to see the intensity that arises from possessiveness to find a solution to change the intensity of that desire is to see love. You said that to see that effort is to see love. You said that it is through daring to look at yourself and to change yourself, and seeing that you dare, that you can understand that you are loved. You said that you find it difficult to maintain your relationship. You said it was not good for you. You said you were tired. You said that you realized that you had less life energy, that you were dealing with your partner more than you were dealing with life. You said that you found it difficult to distinguish between the changes of the relationship and the changes of life in terms of how you were changing. You mentioned that he changed, your partner changed. You said that the person you met at the age of [20-25] had mental problems and that you didn't understand mental problems at the time, that you didn't understand them, but now, when you look back, you can understand what the situation was, you can comprehend those times from a different perspective. You said that he has turned into a more patient person, that his attitude towards you has changed, that his jealousy has been tamed, that he was self-centered much earlier, that he is less self-centered now. But you said that you were sad that as his jealousy diminished, his possessiveness also weakened. You mentioned that you felt safe. You said that it makes you feel safe to feel that there is always someone by your side, that if something happens to you, there is always someone behind you against the physical conditions of life. Emotionally, you said, how can I feel safe in a place where I am not understood, where I feel I am not understood? But you said that you sometimes feel and sense a little bit of retaliation, that there is no retaliation and judgment. When I asked about rest, you gave 3 to having your needs met, 4 to having your needs met and -7 to your satisfaction. You said that you have not had a sexual life for the last [20-25] years since you were [40-45] years old, you mentioned that heavy sentences were in your heart at the time, you said that sexuality is not your priority even though you feel the lack of sexuality when we come to today, and that's how we ended.

Speaker: [01:22:44] Yes. It was a summary for me as well, thank you really.

Interviewer: [01:22:49] Of course. Thank you for sharing, thank you for choosing to express your intense feelings. Okay, that's it. Take care of yourselves.

Speaker: [01:23:06] Good work.

Interviewer: [01:23:06] Thank you bye.
