

Speaker 1 [00:00:02] All right. Well, I hope you're having a good day so far. And want to thank you again for participating in this interview. As I mentioned, over email or actually over text, we just want to know more about your views on romantic relationships. And we believe your experience and perspective would bring much to the project. Before we begin, is it all right if we record this interview? We'll use it only for transcription slash note taking.

Speaker 2 [00:00:36] Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:00:37] Awesome. Okay, just start off. How old are you?

Speaker 2 [00:00:41] I'm [31-40].

Speaker 1 [00:00:43] Okay. And how long have you and your partner been together?

Speaker 2 [00:00:48] About [6-10] years.

Speaker 1 [00:00:50] [6-10] years. Are you guys married?

Speaker 2 [00:00:53] No.

Speaker 1 [00:00:55] Just consider yourself boyfriend girlfriend.

Speaker 2 [00:00:59] Yeah, we consider ourselves that. To be honest, even people call her my wife. I don't really correct them that much there, but we are considered boyfriend girlfriend.

Speaker 1 [00:01:12] Okay. And do you have any children?

Speaker 2 [00:01:15] No. No children.

Speaker 1 [00:01:17] Do you plan on having any children?

Speaker 2 [00:01:21] Probably not at this point in our lives. It may change, but for right now, no.

Speaker 1 [00:01:27] And what would the reason for that be?

Speaker 2 [00:01:32] Four for changing our minds.

Speaker 1 [00:01:35] For not having children right now.

Speaker 2 [00:01:39] Just the honesty, the cost, the cost of having the costs of having children, just like the time it would take to, you know. Facilitate them growing up, and especially when they're younger. Not only are they expensive, but then you also factor in, you know, probably one of us would either not have to be working or maybe working less or paying for daycare. So, I mean, it's either way you look at it, it's an expensive advocate.

Speaker 1 [00:02:16] And very time consuming. It's a lifelong project.

Speaker 2 [00:02:20] It is. It is. It is.

Speaker 1 [00:02:23] So who lives in your household?

Speaker 2 [00:02:27] So me and my girlfriend.

Speaker 1 [00:02:30] Okay. And what is your main source of income?

Speaker 2 [00:02:35] So both of our jobs salary.

Speaker 1 [00:02:38] And what is your current job?

Speaker 2 [00:02:41] I'm a [Job Title] at [Company].

Speaker 1 [00:02:45] Okay. What do you think of your job so far?

Speaker 2 [00:02:51] I like it. It's, you know, I enjoy it. I enjoy talking about the [Topic] and by teaching people about [Topic]. You know, I'd be surprised. Even people that have [Job Knowledge]. I'd be surprised at how little they know about just [Topic]. So, you know, it's always so it's always something new. It's nice to meet different people and kind of get their perspective on things and then also kind of talk to them about about [Multiple Topics], all that fun stuff.

Speaker 1 [00:03:34] Oh, yeah. All about the [Job]. Definitely. Definitely. Lots of stability in that job. Everybody needs some advice with [Topic].

Speaker 2 [00:03:47] I like to think so.

Speaker 1 [00:03:49] I would hope so. I think there wouldn't be as many [Clients] if they didn't have [Job Title].

Speaker 2 [00:03:56] Yeah, yeah, I know. It's funny. We kind of always talk about job security because, you know, obviously layoffs happen, especially in, you know, the two biggest spots. Layoff happens. Ah, you know, [Topic]. Oh, you know, especially [Topic] will be more cyclical depending on what the [Topic]. But life being in a good spot just with, you know, having set clients that I have relationships with that I know I know [Topic]. So I know for the most part my job is very safe. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:04:29] Hopefully it stays that way, too.

Speaker 2 [00:04:31] Yes. Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:04:33] And how would you like to. How would you like us to address your partner? Girlfriend? Lover.

Speaker 2 [00:04:40] Nice one. Okay. Yeah. Girlfriends. Fun.

Speaker 1 [00:04:43] So, can you tell me about your love story? When did you guys meet?

Speaker 2 [00:04:49] Yeah. So we met at actually a party in the summer at [College A]. We she went to [College B]. I went to [College A], but we both grew up in [City A]. So we met at a party in the summertime at a lovely little place called [Location]. It's it was kind of like the parties fought back like [6-10] years ago at [College A]. I was living there in the summertime. So I met her at a party and then one thing led to another. And then we started seeing each other after that. So I was in the [Job], so I was [City B]. So I'd have to go down there once a month. And then after I met her, I just started calling her and texting her when I was going down there to hang out. So we started hanging out once a month, once a month, and she would come up to [City A] to hang out with me. And then finally, it just got to a point where we became boyfriend girlfriend, probably. It wasn't immediate. It was probably [1-5] years or so. I don't remember the exact time when we officially became boyfriend girlfriend, but it was kind of just like long distance, you know? Both flirting with each other for maybe [1-5] years or so. Then we finally made it official. About [1-5] years or two after. Probably close to [1-5] years after we first started seeing each other.

Speaker 1 [00:06:19] Oh, wow. That's a long development for a relationship.

Speaker 2 [00:06:23] Yeah. Yeah. No, it definitely was. I'm thinking about thinking back to the days I probably was closer to [1-5] years now that I think about it, but, I mean, like, we just we just weren't like, you know, we weren't living in the same, same city, really. I mean, that's kind of what it came down to. So just kind of developed over time. And now we've been living together for [6-10] years. Like that.

Speaker 1 [00:06:52] So was there any expectations for a relationship or how are you thinking about when you're going to see her? What was your intention? So I should say.

Speaker 2 [00:07:03] I no, no intentions. So I kind of tell the story. I think it's funny. So like the first time we hung out, it was a great time. And then I see you again for like maybe [1-5] weeks. And then we. We hung out again and we're kind of hanging out and, I don't know, we just like, we didn't I don't know. I feel like the second time we hung out, I was kind of disappointed. So we didn't kiss or anything like that. So I was kind of bombed and I was like in the cab ride home. It's like before Uber's in the cab ride home, my friend. I'm like, Man, I really I really liked that girl that it's not working out like I wish I wish she would have made out. I wish I was different. And I remember having that specific conversation. But the second time we hung out and then I just, I didn't get to see her again. I tried to hang out with her and it just kind of developed with me going down to [City B] after that there. And I used to kind of tell my friend, my best friend [Friend A], when you're looking at the other, I was like, Man, like it was yesterday. I lived in [City A]. Like I would totally date, totally. My girlfriend actually lived in [City A] and then it did eventually happen just a little bit farther down the line. I think we were both at Graduate college, so we knew that we'd be back in [City A] shortly thereafter.

Speaker 1 [00:08:30] Okay, So you knew that you would be in her vicinity eventually. You'd be living with me?

Speaker 2 [00:08:35] I would say so. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:08:40] But there are no expectations when you know you're going to go back. Like you both know, you're going to be back in the same city and there's still no expectations.

Speaker 2 [00:08:56] Expectations of what, I guess.

Speaker 1 [00:08:58] Relationship.

Speaker 2 [00:08:58] Together, a relationship. I think there was an expectation, I guess, when we, you know, kind of get in towards the end of college wanting, you know, both [Name] and or moving back to [City A]. But I think like when I was going down to [City B], I don't. I don't think there was really a thought much about a relationship at that point.

Speaker 1 [00:09:21] Mhm. Okay. And how would you compare the quality of your relationship compared to that of your friend's relationship? And why do you say so?

Speaker 2 [00:09:33] I feel like we have a really good relationship compared to the rest of my friends. And it's. I was kind of thinking about this like, No, I didn't know you're going to be asking this question. I was thinking about this, and I knew I'd be talking about [Girlfriend] and my relationship with you. So I was kind of thinking about that a little bit today and kind of like why we've been together for so long. And I kind of feel like it's because we're the exact opposite, like total one eighty's from each other, you know? [Girlfriend] A little bit, a little bit more reserved, doesn't like to go out to, you know, big parties, big areas like I would prefer to stay home and, you know, watch a movie or going to walk together, go to the dog park where me I'm like, you know, let's let's go out to dinner with people. Let's go have a party, invite people over, Let's go on a trip. Let's go to the sporting event like I'm all about getting out, doing stuff, being social. So we're kind of like the exact opposite in that regard. I mean, as well as, you know, quite a bit of other things as well. So in some way it's kind of weird that we like, found each other and work together, but in other ways, like it makes perfect sense at the same time too, because we're so different from each other, we kind of we mesh together in that way where, you know, I'm kind of sociable and she's not, but she's very smart, very analytical. And, you know, I love everyone. You know, when I meet someone, I see they're my friend. She meets someone and she assumes that there's some motivation behind it. So, like, you know, we balance each other out in that regard, kind of finding a happy, happy medium. For the most part, I'm kind of everything we do.

Speaker 1 [00:11:18] Okay. Yeah. You guys sound the same. Like us compliment each other pretty well.

Speaker 2 [00:11:24] Yeah. So.

Speaker 1 [00:11:26] And would you say that your friends' relationships don't seem that way? And do they seem like they're too much alike? Like, what is it about your friend's relationship that seems different?

Speaker 2 [00:11:38] Yeah. You know, my friends, relationships, they seem a little bit different. In the sense that they are kind of all similar, similar people. And I mean, not saying like don't ever get into fights or anything, but I feel like, you know, around my friends, for the most part that I've been in relationships like it's a lot more obvious or a lot more like in the open, like you can notice things. And I would say some of my friends too, like. I don't want to see people like that treat their significant others like not as well as I treat [Girlfriend], but I kind of feel that way sometimes just with like things that they do or even things that they say. They'd be like, Wow. Like, I would never say that day. [Girlfriend] Ever like that. I don't know, like little things like that that I think maybe they should maybe just respect. Maybe, maybe that maybe that's kind of the word I'm looking for. We just have like a mutual respect for each other, whereas I don't always see that. And, you know, my friends, coworkers, relationships.

Speaker 1 [00:12:47] Why do you think that? Why do you think that they don't have as much respect for their spouses as much as you have respect for your girlfriends?

Speaker 2 [00:12:56] Well, just just the things that they do, The things that they say. Can you guess how they talk? How do they talk about how they talk about their significant other? Like I mean, I think one example. Like one of my coworkers was talking about, like, how lucky this other person was for being divorced. Like, I would say, like, dang, like, you know, you're like, love. You're always like, what's the point? You know, like, why are you married there? Like, it's stuff like that. And I would say, you know, I see it probably more vocally from like my older coworkers. But, you know, I don't hear anything like that from my friends usually. But like, like here's an example. And it's one of my friends, [Friend B]. He's having a baby. Probably like, in the next. Like, I don't know. Couple of days here and there. Yeah. And and he's I mean, he's he's kind of, you know, complaining about all the, all the stuff too, and he's complaining about this and that and, you know, his wife, him having to do a bunch of stuff for his wife who's like, super pregnant. It's like. Like stuff like that. I don't know. Like, I wouldn't do that if I was in that situation. Like, I don't know.

Speaker 1 [00:14:21] But it's not like you should expect to have a lot more on your plate with having a baby come in.

Speaker 2 [00:14:27] Yeah. Yeah. Yeah, exactly. Exactly.

Speaker 1 [00:14:31] Do you think that makes a difference? Because I notice you mention that they're married and you're not. Do you think that makes a difference? And how they treat their significant other.

Speaker 2 [00:14:48] I really thought about that maybe a little bit. I kind of. I kind of think that. It's not so much how they view it, but I feel like it's sometimes like how they view like me specifically. Like in my relationship, not so much my friends, because, I mean, I'll be honest. Like I've been with [Girlfriend] longer than most of my friends, I've been with their wives and their, you know, other significant others. But like, honestly, like clients, like my clients, for example, you know, most of them are older. So, you know, it's almost like talking to like my grandma. Sometimes I talk to some of my clients, like I tell them, you know, they know about my life and about their life. They know I have a girlfriend and it's kind of like, oh, even think for [6-10] years, like, you know, like she married the great like, what are you doing? So I feel like I get that from, I say mostly older, older generations. But I mean, in kind of my eyes, I, I don't know if I view marriage, like, as serious as. Other people do. I kind of feel like, you know, me and [Girlfriend] at this point, you know, as far as marriage goes, like we basically are married. We've been living together for [6-10] years. We do everything together. We live together. To be honest with you, it probably would make sense from a tax standpoint to be married. You know, as far as the tax breaks you get from the US government for, you know, filing together. But that's really about the only difference that I would say, you know, if I were to get married tomorrow, that's the only difference I would really feel. Would be worth it. Everything else would be kind of the exact same.

Speaker 1 [00:16:36] Yeah. Oh, makes sense. I mean, at the end of the day, it's a legal document. You don't really need the. You don't really need, like, the work, like the label. Sorry, I can't take the word. You don't need the label to go with it.

Speaker 2 [00:16:52] Yeah. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:16:54] And it sounds like your relationships are working out better than these married couples.

Speaker 2 [00:17:00] I would say so. I would say so. I'm. You know, I. Not saying I'm surprised, but none of our friends who have been married have been divorced. At this point, I don't see that happening any time soon, by the way. But, you know, statistically speaking, it's probably pretty likely, Right?

Speaker 1 [00:17:21] It's so high, it just gets worse, too.

Speaker 2 [00:17:24] Yeah. Yeah. I don't know. I feel like. I feel like it's like once people reach the age of like [36-40], for some reason, I feel like that's when a lot of divorce starts. I don't have stats on that at all, but I feel like everyone I know that's like [36-40], like I've never divorced.

Speaker 1 [00:17:42] So yeah, I know. Based on what I've experienced through psychology, I could tell you that most people past their forties are unsatisfied with their relationship compared to that of like [20-30s]. It's pretty interesting.

Speaker 2 [00:18:02] Interesting. Is there a reason behind that? Just. Be with them. Clear.

Speaker 1 [00:18:09] I think. I think there's a lot of different reasons for it. But I think a big thing could be like the expectations aren't being met anymore or, you know, just they're not giving as much as maybe someone wants to. There's a lot of different reasons, honestly. But yeah, I think people start getting very comfortable after a while in their routines and they're like, I do this and you do this, but then some people fall short with that. I've no idea. That'd be definitely interesting to do more research on to see the comparisons, maybe to shows being with somebody for [16-20] years that is, like too much.

Speaker 2 [00:18:54] Can be.

Speaker 1 [00:18:57] So can I ask how many romantic partners you've had in the past?

Speaker 2 [00:19:04] Like relationships or.

Speaker 1 [00:19:07] Depending on how you define it.

Speaker 2 [00:19:10] So I would say as far as relationships go, this would be like. It's the second one in my life.

Speaker 1 [00:19:21] Like as you as.

Speaker 2 [00:19:22] Far as.

Speaker 1 [00:19:23] Like, reference.

Speaker 2 [00:19:24] Exactly. Like, as far as I consider a girlfriend. Okay. Is that the question you're asking her?

Speaker 1 [00:19:32] Yeah, I know. That's right. So too. Okay. And how would you compare the quality of your previous relationships? Compare to that of now? So how would you compare your previous relationship, that one compared to. Your current one.

Speaker 2 [00:19:49] The previous relationship was just like high school, like that young thing. I don't know. It's. Look, looking back on it, I mean, it's just like high school. Nothing. Yeah, nothing really serious or anything. Just a high school relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:20:13] Would you consider yourself as like on a serious scale of saying I love each other or anything like that with.

Speaker 2 [00:20:23] Our current.

Speaker 1 [00:20:24] Run?

Speaker 2 [00:20:24] Oh, Christ. No.

Speaker 1 [00:20:26] No. How long did that before?

Speaker 2 [00:20:30] Um, probably like, [6-10] months.

Speaker 1 [00:20:33] Okay. Very short lived compared to this one.

Speaker 2 [00:20:37] Yeah. Yeah. Very, very, very short lived. Yeah, I really haven't even thought about that relationship. It's been a really long time.

Speaker 1 [00:20:49] It's funny. And so what makes a relationship high quality for you?

Speaker 2 [00:20:59] I think we kind of talked about it already, maybe a little bit. But I feel like respect and just like encouragement, like someone that's there for you no matter what. Through the good times and the bad times, someone there that's there to celebrate you and you go get a promotion from work, someone there, you know, console you and lift your spirits up and you get fired from work. Yes, someone. Some of them are just always, always there for you. That's the most important thing. And in my eyes, someone that'll always have your back. I can't say I'm really a confrontational type of person. I almost never get in fights or even, like, dislike people, you know? But it is good to have someone like [Girlfriend] that will always be cautiously optimistic about anybody that I meet or introduce her to or coworkers, whatever. You know, she's always looking for you know, trying to find her dirt or catch Ketchum and that sort of thing. They're.

Speaker 1 [00:22:11] When you say respect, how would you say that? Why would you say that? I respect such a high quality relationship.

Speaker 2 [00:22:22] Because it makes you want to be around that person and want to hang out with that person. You know, someone doesn't respect you if someone is mean to you. These you, I mean, you're not going to want to be around that person. Or do anything with that person.

Speaker 1 [00:22:40] And can you give me an example of how you would respect your girlfriend or how she would respect you?

Speaker 2 [00:22:49] Yeah. So it's like some time ago I got fired from a job and I was super upset about it. That job, it was an awesome job. I was super upset about it. All my friends were there down the street from me. It was great. And [Girlfriend] was really there for me and lifting my spirits. Yeah, yeah, sure. Let me let me. Let me sulk for a day or so. Then she bought us comedy club tickets and we went see comedy shows and Jeez, get me out of my funk real quick. They're helping me fight for new jobs. Just some of it just motivating me to, you know. Forget. Forget about the crappy thing in your life and focus on what's ahead for you.

Speaker 1 [00:23:39] And what would you say your relationship was? You could either use either respectful or, I guess, most motivating for you.

Speaker 2 [00:23:55] Like when? When was the best time? Best time in a relationship or.

Speaker 1 [00:24:00] When would you say your relationship was most respectful or like where she motivated you the most?

Speaker 2 [00:24:09] Oh, man. How I think about that. I don't have a great answer for you. In example, I don't know if it's the most motivating time, a respectful, respectful time. But I mean, even like the last couple of years, I was getting my [certification], which is like probably the second hardest test in [Job]. It took like [1-5] years. I studied the most ever study for a test in my life. I still got like a 75 on the test. It's a really you know, she really pushed me to stop watching TV. You know why you watch TV? You go study. Yeah, you're right. So that's like a recent example of, you know, we're always kind of looking out and I feel like I do it for her, too. She's, I would say. I feel like I, you know, motivate her to be your best self, too, but in different ways. And she motivates me to be my best self. Like. She very like. Very smart, very analytical. I guess if she were to be studying for the test that I took, I mean, she would have probably studied twice as much as me of the whole book like highlighted outline and would have gotten a better score than me for sure. And I go with this. So as far as me motivating, you know, or, you know. It's like a kind of switch from respect to, like, motivation to be the best person. Yeah, I mean, they're kind of interchangeable. And I feel like, you know, I feel like the ways that. That I. What are they here for? I have a really positive attitude almost all the time. I'm very, very outgoing, very usually very happy person, which is kind of annoying her. But, you know, really trying to notice if she's having like a bad day or she's, you know, having a good time with work or. Whatever the case may be, stressed out takes care of cats and stray cats in the backyard. So stressed out over cats or stressed out overshoot dogs, things like that. Like I feel like I'm always there to try to try to make, you know, try to turn things around to some degree. So we both I feel we both push each other to be the best that we possibly can.

Speaker 1 [00:26:58] Yeah, I see more what you're saying, how you guys compliment each other. You guys really about, like, find the we like their weakness and know how to reverse it or know how to fix it. I feel like a lot of people don't know how to recognize, like, what another person needs and how to go about it. Even most people don't even know what they need. So it's amazing when your own significant other knows what you need and how to get you out of there.

Speaker 2 [00:27:26] Yeah. Yeah. No, I definitely agree. And yes, I wish we even were doing that with each other. We disagree. We disagree on, you know what? What we need for each other. Good. Yeah. We do complement each other very well.

Speaker 1 [00:27:44] And what would you say your relationship was? The least respect for least motivating you could use either example.

Speaker 2 [00:27:57] Um, well, we've, we've, we've definitely, definitely had fights before in the past. I mean, it's impossible not to have know, get into some sort of fight in a relationship. And there've been some some rough times as far as dates go. And we're both kind of like. You know, we know each other very well. So that also includes knowing how to, like, really dig in to someone who really kind of hit them where it hurts when it comes to ghost fighting and things like that. Like for me, it's like for me it's the silent treatment and I hate the silent treatment. It drives me nuts. She knows that. So, you know, show you stuff like that. And for me, she calls it I love bombing or I love bomb her to that as well. So, yeah, I mean, I don't have a specific example, but, you know, we'll get in fights and they're usually over like stupid things. Like here's one example or recently, like, I guess as I think we both are very like, we both always think we're right. So we're both like very stubborn people when it comes to meeting that our way is not the best and that the other person's way, you know, could be better. So we both both have that attitude and we both always think that we're right, for better or for worse. Like drawing a lot. I'm wrong a lot. We'll never admit it, but it's true. We were in [City C] a couple years ago. I don't know. I remember. This is like. This is like a whole fight for, like, 3 hours. You had to have, like, vaccine cards to get into, like, restaurants and bars in [City C] and, like, [Year]. So I brought my, like, passport books that had my vaccine cards, but I had lost my original vaccine card, and I found it. So they gave me a new one and I got my second vaccine. So I had to vaccine cards of one. I had one vaccine on at one, had two vaccines on it. For whatever reason, I brought them together with me and we're at the hotel and I just grabbed the vaccine card and it was the wrong vaccine card. So we get to the restaurant and we've been drinking a little bit to have at this point here. Let's get to the restaurant like show the bouncer. My VAX card is like, Oh, you only got one vaccine. And they're like, Oh, man, I gave you the wrong one. I swear I had to like, blah, blah, blah, right? And you never letting me in the bar. I was fine, whatever. But then there's like, you and your brother, you brought the wrong one. And I'm like, No, I didn't. I swear about the right one. I just like this whole like. Like she thought she was right that I was. You know, I brought the wrong one. She then I thought I knew that I was right. I brought the right one, and we were just like it was just like such a stupid argument. But it's like little things like that sometimes that it just like the thought of being wrong, just, like, drives us crazy. So neither one of us, like, willing to admit it, and we're just, you know, it's not like, not like crazy fighting, but, you know, we're just not admitting that we're wrong. And then we fast forward like a couple of hours later, we go back to the hotel room and, like, I wasn't thinking, but I wasn't thinking about anything, anything at all, except for going back to the hotel room and whipping out my other vaccine card to prove that I was right. And that's exactly what I did. And I don't know why you remember that stupid, specific fight, but that's like, I don't know, it sounds like nothing. But it was kind of annoying at the time. And it's just. Thinking of, just like fights in our relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:31:46] I know that definitely can be annoying, especially when you know that, like, I swear, I've had it. Like, I see. I know exactly where it's up to or where it could be.

Speaker 2 [00:31:56] Yeah, Yeah. And I mean, there's been, I'm sure the numerous other fights where I've been I've been the one that's wrong too. So, you know, naturally I gave the example or the one that I'm right, but I know there's another times where I've been wrong.

Speaker 1 [00:32:12] Yeah, sure, I'd hope so. It's been your guys' length of a relationship. There were no big fights?

Speaker 2 [00:32:22] Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:32:24] So what would you say makes your relationship low quality or what makes a relationship low quality?

Speaker 2 [00:32:34] Um. Yeah. You know, I feel like. I feel like relationships that are kind of forced can sometimes be low quality. And I'm not even talking about like, you know, like arranged marriages, nothing like that. But like, you know, people having a kid together, for example, that like. Kind of just stay together for the kids, but really, they don't really like each other that much. I feel like that can make a relationship like very low quality or. I don't know. So I'm marrying someone for money or something like that. Can make it low quality if, if you're gonna like low hanging fruit answers. But.

Speaker 1 [00:33:25] I was going with somebody for the wrong reasons.

Speaker 2 [00:33:27] Yeah. Yeah, that kind of what? That's kind of what comes to mind.

Speaker 1 [00:33:31] Okay. And. Would you say that, [Name], You have not experienced any of that.

Speaker 2 [00:33:41] No. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:33:44] I Can you tell me how one knows that there in a.

Speaker 2 [00:33:50] Sir. Say it again.

Speaker 1 [00:33:51] Can you tell me can you tell me more about how one knows that they're in that type of relationship in a forced relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:34:02] I mean, I feel like that's. It's kind of obvious. I feel like. I feel like it's kind of like one sided, too, right? Like it's like one person. One person wants to be in the relationship, one person doesn't.

Speaker 1 [00:34:18] Okay. So they're both not being forced, only really one person's kind of forced into.

Speaker 2 [00:34:26] I guess. So I feel like. Yeah, I always say that. Yeah. It's not just like one person to be or not to be. It'd be one person that you know. I wanted to stay for, I don't know, optics or for family, for kids. I don't know.

Speaker 1 [00:34:49] And for you, what is the most important? What are the most important things in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:35:00] I think just overall, just being happy is. Like the best thing for a relationship. I mean, that's one thing that I feel like. I mean, I'm only [31-40], but eventually we're all going to be old or we're all going to, you know, not. Not as good looking as we were when we young. You're right. So I feel like having that connection to someone that can make you happy, someone that can cheer you up, someone that can knows what you're thinking, how you're thinking, and to support you and make you happy. I think that's the most important thing because that can last a lifetime. Whereas, you know. Good looks and sex can only last so many years. Right?

Speaker 1 [00:35:51] Right. When you say happiness, do you mean happiness? More. You're more happy throughout your relationship than you were before. Or you're happy in terms of you are more happy with the link like with the length than the relationship. You're happy and more than not happy. Hold on. Sorry. I'm totally confusing my own self. So what you're saying is. So you're saying is that, like, if you're happy. With this person now than you were before. That kind of like makes it important. So if you weren't happy before and then this person made you happy, that would be the most important thing.

Speaker 2 [00:36:40] Yeah, I would say I mean, it's a little bit of both, right? I wouldn't put the, the, the scale totally on just. Are you more happy now than you were before? But I would say that's part of it. But you also want to be you know, you also want to be living your best life, not stressed out about things. And. You can be you can be more happy than you were before with someone, but still kind of unhappy overall. It's a little bit of both, I guess.

Speaker 1 [00:37:19] Do you think happiness could fall short with, like a flaw in another quality, in a relationship, say, like lack of loyalty or lack of trust? Do you think? Yeah, that would not be as important as something like happiness.

Speaker 2 [00:37:38] Well, I think it's kind of intertwined with those things, right? If someone's not loyal to you or, you know, cheating on you, you're not going to be happy. Someone doesn't respect you. You're not going to be happy. Someone doesn't treat you well. You're not going to be happy. So I think that kind of it's all kind of intertwined with that.

Speaker 1 [00:37:57] Okay. So, qualities like loyalty and just like, you know, more behaviors that will show, that will give you happiness. It's not just the person. It's more about the things that the qualities you guys do or the qualities you capture for each other. Okay.

Speaker 2 [00:38:19] Yeah, exactly.

Speaker 1 [00:38:21] For you, what is love?

Speaker 2 [00:38:25] Man.

Speaker 1 [00:38:27] That's a tricky question for sure.

Speaker 2 [00:38:30] It's a very, very open ended question there. Yeah. I don't know what is love? I don't want to revert back to happiness, but I feel like it it all kind of relates to each other. With your overall overall spirits, you know, you kind of get like butterflies in your stomach sometimes still. Man, I don't really know how to put the definition of that.

Speaker 1 [00:39:10] So like it's a feeling you'd say that you have like. Yes. You get physically reactive. Like you physically react with the feeling of love, like by butterflies. The feeling of the emotion of happy.

Speaker 2 [00:39:26] Yeah, I think so. But I think it's more than that too. I mean, that's just like a byproduct of it. Yeah. I don't know. I don't know how to describe love. I don't know.

Speaker 1 [00:39:39] And how important is love in a relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:39:47] I think I think you kind of have to either love the person after a certain amount of time is. I don't know. But eventually you have to love a person or see yourself loving that person. If you're just meeting someone to continue talking with them and seeking a long term relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:40:12] No skill. How would you put it as the number one most important thing? Second, third, fourth.

Speaker 2 [00:40:22] Um, probably up there. Number one or two. Love, Happiness.

Speaker 1 [00:40:30] And how do you tell your partner I love you?

Speaker 2 [00:40:34] I think, just through everyday actions. You know someone that. But doesn't love you, it is not going to treat you all. Someone that doesn't love you is. Not going to look out for you, not going to have your best interests in mind. Not going to speak highly of you. So, yeah, you know, I feel like it probably seems obvious talking about it now, but I'm sure it's not always as it is in relationship.

Speaker 1 [00:41:12] All right. So just by day to day actions.

Speaker 2 [00:41:18] Yes. Yes.

Speaker 1 [00:41:21] And what would you say are challenges in your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:41:26] Well, I think it's like a you know, it's kind of a two edged sword sometimes with being so opposite of each other. Right. We understand each other well. But, you know, there are times when I want to go out to a restaurant or go out to a party, go out with friends, and [Girlfriend] does not do any of that and vice versa as well. There's times when he or she wants to stay in and hang out. I want to go play tennis or pickleball or whatever, do something else besides just going to hang out or, you know, going to walk or something like that. So I think that. That can kind of be challenging sometimes, too, as it is, as much as it is a compliment. You know, sometimes, you know, I wish we could do more things together that we both really like. But sometimes, you know, we. Don't always have the same common interest in mind. So that can kind of be a challenge.

Speaker 1 [00:42:30] And how do you go about resolving those types of fights?

Speaker 2 [00:42:35] I think we both compromise a little bit. So there's times where I'll stay home. There's times where I'll do something that wouldn't be my first choice because I know that it would make [Girlfriend] happy. And I know there's times I drag her out to a party sporting event, go play tennis, whatever. I know that she's not really thrilled about it, but she's just kind of doing some, you know, bugging her to try to do it. So I think compromises so that we both do quite often as far as finding middle ground. You're so opposite.

Speaker 1 [00:43:11] Okay. I think that's funny that you guys met at a party. And now that your problem is about gun rights.

Speaker 2 [00:43:19] Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:43:23] Are you saying you, as you mentioned, you and your girlfriend, obviously. By how often would you say these fights occur?

Speaker 2 [00:43:37] I don't know, maybe once a month or so. No, I mean, they're not like big or anything, but, you know. We can have a little fight after work or whatever. I don't know. Maybe once a month.

Speaker 1 [00:43:56] And what are these fights about?

Speaker 2 [00:43:59] Some of the same things that I've described, you know, both having our own ways of doing things, not wanting to do something the other person's way. Just little things like that. Sometimes driving back, driving at ages. I don't even know she's still here in the house and she's going to work. But she heard that backseat driving.

Speaker 1 [00:44:32] Was a good one.

Speaker 2 [00:44:34] Yeah, just. Just like in there. Never like anything serious. There's always, like, little stupid things like. Like that we will have a small little fight. And then usually, like an hour later or two, like, laughing about it. So just a. Fucking stupid. It was.

Speaker 1 [00:44:55] Yeah. Maybe somebody was a little angry or something along those lines. A little stressed out. Yeah. Yeah.

Speaker 2 [00:45:02] Exactly. Exactly.

Speaker 1 [00:45:06] And would you say you resolve these fights by compromise also? Or is there another way?

Speaker 2 [00:45:12] Yeah, I mean, honestly, most of Pfizer is so stupid that it's like. We both like you said, you just got into it. You just had to cool off for, like, you know, half hour or something. We both kind of like, give each other that look like. Yeah that was and kind of both start laughing then. Usually it's like it's usually turned out to be a really good day after we have some stupid fights or just, like, kind of laughing about it, so.

Speaker 1 [00:45:39] Right. You just gotta get through the ice breaker.

Speaker 2 [00:45:42] Exactly. Exactly. You got to spice things up a little bit sometimes, I guess. Right?

Speaker 1 [00:45:47] Right. So aside from compromise, what are other ways you maintain your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:46:05] I don't know. As far as what keeps it going or. Yes, I mean, I don't know, like we live together. We see each other a lot. You know, especially for both working from home. And we were pretty much next to each other all the time. Yeah, It's just being around each other, enjoying each other's company.

Speaker 1 [00:46:36] Okay. Would you say that the relationship is good for you and what do you say?

Speaker 2 [00:46:46] Yeah, I think it's good for me. It's probably good for her too. Now we just said we complement each other. Like I know that like, like, for example, I'm sometimes kind of a yes man, and she's kind of a no person. And so I guess I relate to total opposite that. So, you know, there's definitely, you know, you don't always want to be just filling up your schedule with just stuff to do. I tend to do that somehow, but, you know, just kind of complimenting each other on I'm living, you know, we kind of know what kind of makes us stressed out so we can help each other out that sometimes like, like, I don't know, for example, like if I'm or if she has to go to work or something at night and she's just finishing up doing something else, like work home, just go to her other job, you know, I'll take care of the dogs and make sure that, you know, the dogs are locked fed and all that stuff and vice versa as well. If I'm, you know, going out to a hockey game or something like that and, you know, I'm gonna be out there for, you know, four or 5 hours you how to leave it in or, you know, tailgate, whatever, you know, she'll really help me out by walking the dogs. Feeding the dogs. Now there's stuff around the house. I don't know. We just kind of just kind of know what each other needs to some extent when it comes to our schedules. So we both try to help out with that there as well.

Speaker 1 [00:48:30] And would you say the relationship changed you? And then what way?

Speaker 2 [00:48:35] Yeah, I would say so. Definitely changed me. Everyone has their own unique beliefs and perspectives. I mean, I'm sure it's changed her as well. Like, you know, I grew up, like, going and like, fast food, McDonalds, like. Should. I think there's like a month straight because when I was like in second grade. Right. Like I grew up playing in the McDonald's playpen. It's kind of a joke we make. Like I'm a public school kid, you know, like you never parents never cared what I got at the grocery store. You know what? What I ate. You know, they're from the [Location]. And then, you know, her family is like very, very healthy, like, you know, only shops, a Whole Foods never allowed to have candy or soda or anything like that. So. So, like, she brings like that kind of stuff into my life as well. Open my eyes to, you know, as probably living, living, living a healthier life as much as I do. Try to resist it sometimes. But and then I also introduce her to things that she probably would have never had without me.

Speaker 1 [00:49:46] Like McDonald's.

Speaker 2 [00:49:48] Not not McDonald's, but like a chick. Chick fil A, for example. I only just had Chick fil A's since that's. Do you think there maybe a couple of years now? I think maybe during the pandemic I didn't her to that. But we like Chick fil A that's it's good stuff.

Speaker 1 [00:50:07] You got her into Chick fil A. She likes.

Speaker 2 [00:50:09] It. Yeah, exactly. Yeah, she does. She does.

Speaker 1 [00:50:13] There we go.

Speaker 2 [00:50:14] Just let's just kind of an example of, you know, just kind of how we grew up, how we raised differently. And then, you know, I, I tend to eat a lot more healthier now than I did before. I mean, there's probably room for improvement there. But, you know, I still like my, you know, Chinese food and and then Chick-Fil-A every once in a while. A big ice cream guy. Can't live without that. Oh, yeah. We compromise. It's forgetting like the, you know, natural ingredients ice cream. That's still really good. Just more expensive. Right. So, you know, like things like that, it you know, it's kind of a dumb example. Definitely. Yeah. Definitely has improved my life quite a bit.

Speaker 1 [00:50:59] Is there any other ways that you have changed, aside from just healthier habits?

Speaker 2 [00:51:12] Yeah. Yeah, there definitely is. I would say that. I see. It is like. I have more. I would say I understand how. I say this. She's taught me to. Like. Unless you respect people more. But she's taught me to. I don't know. I might come back to that question.

Speaker 1 [00:52:07] Okay. And so you said that she changed like also by being a little less healthy. Are there any other ways that she's changed during your relationship?

Speaker 2 [00:52:24] Yeah. So. I like to think that, you know, through or through sometimes, you know, fighting and showing each other how to do different things, different ways, we kind of have different perspectives on things. Yeah, she's definitely change. And I have changed too. I can't really put words on it, though, Like what those specific changes are, You know, we're still or, you know, we're we're still our own our own people. You know, it's like your own thing, you know, she likes to relax, read books, things like that. Meditate. I like to play pickleball. Do we still have our own individual selves as well? But we have changed each other, I would say, for the better. Just by, you know. Introducing different things to different things to our life. My more stress free lifestyle, her more regimented lifestyle, and just finding that happy kind of medium that both can be beneficial to us.

Speaker 1 [00:53:48] Right. You mentioned before that you kind of have to get her to go out with, you know, to social type of events. Do you think she's changed in any of that way of being more comfortable with social events, or does she not like it even more? How did that change at all?

Speaker 2 [00:54:10] No, no, no, I don't. I don't think that's changed at all. Yeah I would say we definitely like. Definitely. They drink a lot less than we did when we were younger as well. And it was kind of like, you know, college and like right after college as well, like. What year are you in school? I just got you just graduated. Okay. So are you in the Masters? Okay. Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:54:47] Yeah, I'm doing my masters.

Speaker 2 [00:54:50] Okay, cool, cool. So, like, you know, after, you know, college degree, you know, you're pretty much, I don't know, [College C] is [College A]. I mean, you're drinking, you know, probably five days a week pretty heavily, you know, barely showing up classes. It is just just getting by there. And then like the [1-5] years, like right after college, it's kind of the same thing except for you're just working at entry level job with all your friends. You know, not really cared much about the job. And you're just kind of, you know, working for a weekend and you're going out and doing the same sort of you in college just. At the bar when you have not the bank account. So definitely stop, stop doing that quite a bit. Just kind of being idiots with that with her body I'm sure. Probably fights probably worse. And we're both younger and going out to bars all the time. I'm sure we both kind of settle down as far as that goes, actually, it's just kind of a natural progression, you know, you can't do that your whole life or you won't live very long.

Speaker 1 [00:55:57] Your body starts rejecting you.

Speaker 2 [00:56:00] Yeah. Yeah. So. Yeah. I mean, she's. It's one of those things, too, or it's I don't think I'm not trying to change her into wanting to go out all the time. And she's not trying to change me to want to not go out and. We socialize all the time, But I think we both kind of have an understanding about each other at this point. So, you know, compromise is part of it as well, where, you know, sometimes we both do things because we know the other person will. It'll make them happy.

Speaker 1 [00:56:40] Right. So you say, though, you stopped the whole partying and like the amount that you drank because of each other. Like, it wouldn't have. You don't think it would have stopped if you didn't get together?

Speaker 2 [00:56:57] Um. It probably I mean, it probably would be lower than what I direct, but it would be higher than what it is right now. Right. So, yeah, Yeah. So definitely contribute to that on both sides there.

Speaker 1 [00:57:19] And do you feel safe in the relationship? And why do you say so? Yeah.

Speaker 2 [00:57:25] Yeah. All right? I just I. I'm not really ever worried about anything in our relationship. I'm not. [Girlfriend] doesn't. Doesn't it make me feel scared? Unless you're fighting over potato. Unless you're fighting over potatoes. Yeah, I had her really have an example like this, but like. I don't know. We just. You only fight that much.

Speaker 1 [00:58:08] Do you feel safe and over guard of late that she'll take care of you or that she.

Speaker 2 [00:58:15] Oh, yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:58:16] I'll do anything dishonest toward you or, you know, like, just think. Oh, yeah.

Speaker 2 [00:58:20] Type of safety.

Speaker 1 [00:58:21] Like emotional safety.

Speaker 2 [00:58:23] Yeah. As far as emotional safety goes, I mean, like, I don't even think about that because it's just it's like, not a possibility in my mind. Yeah, you know. You know, as far as their taking care of each other. Yeah. I mean, even if six times more that more and more than I need, I get taken care of. So. Yeah, no, I definitely feel safe.

Speaker 1 [00:58:49] Okay. Come on. I'm gonna share my screen with you for the next few questions, or you're going to be, like, just based off a scale of 1 to 10 type of thing.

Speaker 2 [00:58:59] Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:59:00] And we're also getting towards the end. Sorry, I know this has been running.

Speaker 2 [00:59:03] That's a that's a good.

Speaker 1 [00:59:05] It's a really nice answer is.

Speaker 2 [00:59:07] So thanks. Okay.

Speaker 1 [00:59:14] Can you see my screen?

Speaker 2 [00:59:15] Yeah. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [00:59:18] Okay, let's do a slide show. All right. So with the statement of my partner usually really listens to me on a scale of 1 to 9, not at all true. To completely true. True. How would you say you feel about that statement?

Speaker 2 [00:59:34] Eight.

Speaker 1 [00:59:37] Okay. And. How satisfied you how satisfied are you with the relationship going from completely dissatisfied to completely satisfied?

Speaker 2 [00:59:51] I'm completely satisfied.

Speaker 1 [00:59:55] And how would you relate your. My. And how would you rate your satisfaction with their relationship on a number scale of I guess 0 to -10. As zero two or -10 to 0 from completely dissatisfied to wait this one stop for you? Sorry.

Speaker 2 [01:00:19] Okay. Um.

Speaker 1 [01:00:25] Okay. Here. This one? Yeah. So the other one was if you rate dissatisfied for your relationship.

Speaker 2 [01:00:33] Got it.

Speaker 1 [01:00:34] How would you relate your application with your relationship on a number scale of negative ten? Completely dissatisfied all the way. Nine, ten, nine. Okay.

Speaker 2 [01:00:45] Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:00:50] Ray was one. Yeah. Okay. And. The question, the statement. My partner is usually responsive to my needs on a scale from one not true at all to nine. Completely true.

Speaker 2 [01:01:13] I think that's a 9.

Speaker 1 [01:01:17] And I think that. Okay. Yeah, that's it for that one. And. So some follow up questions for that. So with the statement of my partner is usually responsive to my needs. You gave a nine, I believe, right?

Speaker 2 [01:01:48] Yes. Yes.

Speaker 1 [01:01:50] And why did you answer that? You are. That is completely, completely true. That your partner's responses to my need to think giving you concrete examples when this.

Speaker 2 [01:02:01] Yeah. Yes. She says she knows. She knows what I want, what I need. Almost almost every time there is a want or need. I think of an example here like. So everyone saw our show set up like. You know, like, I don't know, like at a dinner or like a meeting up with, like, friends that are both of our friends have mutual friends. She'll set it up. And I know it's kind of surprising to me. It's almost like a surprise party. Oh, yeah. We're going out with, you know, your friend [Friend A]. You're going over there like no social time. So I set that up for us.

Speaker 1 [01:03:01] Oh.

Speaker 2 [01:03:02] Yeah. Yeah. So, like, stuff like that, I usually get about those sort of things.

Speaker 1 [01:03:08] I'm sorry. And.

Speaker 2 [01:03:09] Yeah. Yeah. As far as gift giving goes, I'm really good at gift giving.

Speaker 1 [01:03:16] Oh, yeah.

Speaker 2 [01:03:17] Not so much about, like, impromptu things, like she is like that, that sort of thing. But gift giving is my expertise there. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:03:25] And do you like receiving gifts or are you more of a you like to give more.

Speaker 2 [01:03:32] Like to give, give gifts.

Speaker 1 [01:03:35] And when you answer the statement, my partner usually really listens to me. You answered in eight in between. Very true and completely true. And why did you answer an eight? And can you give me a concrete example of when my partner usually really listens to me?

Speaker 2 [01:03:56] Yeah. Yeah. So she was listening to me. Concrete example above. Yeah. I don't know if I have a concrete example in my head for that, but. I know she listens to me and she hears what I'm saying when I'm complaining about something. Sometimes you get tough love from it, too, which is what you need. Sometimes when I'm complaining about something that, you know, in hindsight can be kind of stupid, but in the heat of the moment is driving me a little bit, a little bit crazy. And it usually with like setting things up or like technology or. I don't know. Sorry.

Speaker 1 [01:04:56] No, no, you're good.

Speaker 2 [01:04:57] But yeah, she, she listens to me and I would say that's on the high end of the scale there.

Speaker 1 [01:05:04] And so since she did respond and eight has died. Can you think of any time that she hasn't responded or hasn't really listened to you?

Speaker 2 [01:05:16] The. Not. Not really off the top of my head. Maybe you maybe like. You know, if I need help doing something so I can. It's usually something that's like. Not really that important, but to me, like, it gave me, like, kind of, like. Important. Like. Like. Sometimes I'll actually take the dogs out so I can go. Like play pickleball or go exercise or something, or get me some people to go do something. And I go, You can be 5 minutes late or whatever. And I'm like, Okay, okay.

Speaker 1 [01:06:14] That's a good example.

Speaker 2 [01:06:16] Yeah, Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:06:19] Okay. So we're actually coming to the end of it, but we're going to ask some personal questions and. I hope you don't mind if I ask. And feel free to say if it's too sensitive for you to share and you can skip any of these questions you don't feel comfortable with.

Speaker 2 [01:06:40] Sure. Sure.

Speaker 1 [01:06:42] But we would like to know more about your physical intimacy as a couple. I start off with these days. How often do you have sex? And again.

Speaker 2 [01:06:53] Yep. Yeah, it's a little bit a little bit less than it was before. Probably. Monetary. Two weeks. Twice a month or so.

Speaker 1 [01:07:16] And when you say before. When was like that? Before. It was more.

Speaker 2 [01:07:22] Yeah. Yeah. It was a bit of sex. Quite a bit more. You know, maybe, you know, a little personal relationship, probably like every day very much. And then, you know, kind of slowly kind of trickles down, down a little bit as you get older.

Speaker 1 [01:07:44] Honeymoon phase goes away?

Speaker 2 [01:07:47] Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:07:51] And so you say that like that time frame of before was in the beginning of a relationship when you. It's often more often.

Speaker 2 [01:07:59] Yeah. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:08:03] So how satisfied are you with your sex life, and why do you stay so.

Speaker 2 [01:08:10] Um, I could be more. More satisfied. Probably average, um, with sex life.

Speaker 1 [01:08:24] And why do you say so?

Speaker 2 [01:08:28] I mean, I would prefer to have sex more than she would. And I think, you know, part of it is to like, you know, as we get older, you know. Bodies kind of change a little bit. And I kind of feel like to some extent she's like less comfortable in her body than she was. [6-10] years ago. I think that kind of place plays a role into it as well. So, you know, usually I try to, you know. Kind of amp up the. What's it called, Like the hype. AMP up like the fact that she is. I think she's beautiful. I think she's amazing. And I try to like really amp up and, you know, sometimes it doesn't always doesn't always work. But I think she's really beautiful and I think that sometimes she doesn't quite see herself that way. So, I mean, that's something that, you know. I wish. I wish she was more confident how she how she looks as she is. She is really beautiful.

Speaker 1 [01:09:45] She is very beautiful. From the zoo. Like when I stop. Yeah, I feel like I prefer.

Speaker 2 [01:09:52] Yeah. Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:09:55] To the loop back the question of how important things are in a relationship. Would you say sex is an important thing or not?

Speaker 2 [01:10:05] I say it's probably average. Like definitely not all the relationship is. But I think it is important to be intimate because, you know, it makes you know, it makes you feel good that someone wants you that way. Like you may say happy, someone wants you and they're happy that you want them, that sort of thing. So I think that's more of a psychological thing, a little bit like after we, you know, after we have sex, I definitely feel like more wanted by her and more like connected to her.

Speaker 1 [01:10:45] Yeah, I 100%. So in general, you said that you are completely satisfied with your relationship.

Speaker 2 [01:10:57] Mm hmm.

Speaker 1 [01:10:59] And why did you answer? I believe you answered none on that scale. Why would you answer that? You are a nine out of ten satisfied with the relationship.

Speaker 2 [01:11:14] I'm. I'm really happy right now. I'm happy with my relationship. I'm happy, you know. It kind of unnoticed, like day to day. But looking back from when we started to where we are now, I think we're both very successful. We've accomplished a lot, but both our mindset at the same time is probably the reason why I gave it a nine out of ten. We both have that mindset where it's good right now, but it could be better. You know, there's always that like a push to be even like a little bit better than where you currently are.

Speaker 1 [01:11:51] Right. I mean, not everything's 100% perfect. There's always room for error fixing things.

Speaker 2 [01:12:01] You know?

Speaker 1 [01:12:02] And did the relationship fulfill your expectations?

Speaker 2 [01:12:07] Yeah.

Speaker 1 [01:12:10] Awesome. All right. So we're pretty much. Close to wrapping up. Kind of just want to summarize things we've discussed with like the past over our now. So you guys met and other college party. Was it a college party you considered? You guys met in college Party and then took about [1-5] years to finally start, you know, becoming having a label and more official. That's been living in the same house will hold for [6-10] years. That right? So yeah, yeah, [6-10] years. And you guys seem like you complement each other very well. And, you know, there's obviously some problems with the different types of personalities. You're more outgoing need that sociability and she doesn't seem like she really needs that. But you guys seem to have a good compromise on how you go about it. Obviously, there's always some room for improvement in those types of areas, but. You guys seem like super satisfied with your relationship. From what you have told me. And kids are not a part of the equation, but maybe one day they can be. And either your relationship has a higher quality than your friendship, and you guys love each other very much. Seems like you guys are doing awesome so far. Is there anything else you'd like to add to that?

Speaker 2 [01:13:37] I don't think so. I guess summarize it out. All right. Well.

Speaker 1 [01:13:43] I want to thank you again for doing this interview and taking your time. Before we end, I wanted to discuss a little bit how we handle the data as well. For the project, we want to be ethnically as transparent as possible, and we want to know which data sharing option you're most comfortable with. I'm not sure. Did you sign the consent form already?

Speaker 2 [01:14:07] Um, I. I don't think so.

Speaker 1 [01:14:11] Yeah. So. That's good, though, because we can get over that. There's two different options for this, and you could pick which one you're most comfortable with. The first option is basically, I'm gonna read what it says and I can kind of like break it down. So it's a transcript, portions that can be shared, none which can be identified to you. So the d identify transcript can be read by other researchers, though basically they'll just take like general information here, nothing at all specific. Like nobody will be able to identify you that knows you. And then the second option is if you're a boulder, this one is ill. Transcript, The whole entire zoom meeting, and they'll remove every. Personal or overly sensitive information about you and your girlfriend. So basically, this one is still anonymous and there won't be any like names or anything like that used. But if somebody very close to you reads it, they might be able to be like, Oh, that's like [Name] relationship. That's only if like somebody close to you reads it. So it's up to you. If you want to do the give out more information and you might. There's like a very slim chance you might be recognized, but it's possible.

Speaker 2 [01:15:38] Yeah, I know.

Speaker 1 [01:15:42] Yeah, I know your name. And anything won't be like, honestly, if you don't send the article to anybody, you know, there's no way that anybody will know you. You know?

Speaker 2 [01:15:53] Yeah, No, that's fine. Had anything to hide? Anything that is controversial or anything?

Speaker 1 [01:16:02] Okay. So I never really get the chance to sign that and send it over. The second option will be just like the second box.

Speaker 2 [01:16:10] Okay.

Speaker 1 [01:16:11] I'll send it over, though.

Speaker 2 [01:16:13] Yeah, if you want to email that over to me. Yeah. I can take care of that for sure.

Speaker 1 [01:16:22] So again, thank you for participating. I wanted you to actually know a little bit about this study is being done in the Philippines, Brazil, Netherlands, France and the US.

Speaker 2 [01:16:34] Oh, cool.

Speaker 1 [01:16:36] Um, yeah. Pretty much. Don't need any other information. And that's it.

Speaker 2 [01:16:45] It is a study about relationship satisfaction, basically.

Speaker 1 [01:16:49] I don't know. Just.
