

5A – Part 1

Interviewer: So before we get started, we will only use the stuff from the recording for like transcription and note-taking purposes. So like the video and like yourself, just what you say, is one of the steps through.

Speaker: Ok.

Interviewer: OK, so we're going to start with some questions just to get a little bit more information on you before we dive into the more deeper questions where you get story time. So how old are you?

Speaker: I am [20-25].

Interviewer: OK. And then, how long have you been together with your partner?

Speaker: [0-5] years and [5-10] days.

Interviewer: OK. And then, do you have any children?

Speaker: No.

Interviewer: OK. And then, who lives in your household?

Speaker: Me, my mom, my dad, my little brother. And sometimes, my older brother, and he comes and visits.

Interviewer: OK. And then, what's your main source of income?

Speaker: My job.

Interviewer: And then, well you could say what's your current job, if you want to?

Speaker: I'm a [occupation] at [workplace].

Interviewer: OK. And then, how would you like us to address your partner in the interview? Like, boyfriend, partner?

Speaker: Boyfriend is fine.

Interviewer: OK, boyfriend. OK. So now, you get like a story time. Well, I get a story time, because the next question is, can you tell me about your love story?

Speaker: Oh. OK. Where do I start off? Or from how we met?

Interviewer: It could start from, like, when did you meet? And like how did the relationship develop?

Speaker: OK. So we were mutual friends. Well, we had mutual friends. Growing up, when I was [15-20], I started working at [workplace 2]. And my co-workers, I mean I had co-workers and my boyfriend was one of the friends of my co-workers. So he would come by all the time. And we would gather. Me and my co-workers would invite me to places. And he would show up. So we knew of each other, but we never really talked during that time, like that, or developed any relationships. And then, time passed. I went to college, because this was during high school. I went to college. And then, coming back from, coming back and forth from college, it was my [0-

5th] year. No. Yeah. It was the middle of my [0-5th] year. I came back during winter break and I went to this party. And my old co-workers I used to work with were there and they brought him. They brought him. They invited him as well and then we met up. We were all there. And then that's when he started talking. That's kind of like how everything initiated. So, yeah.

Interviewer: So it was after the party?

Speaker: Yeah, after the party. We started talking more. And then we were talking for a little bit, but I had to go back to school. So that didn't really last any long, because we weren't, we both didn't really want long-distance relationships. It was just not gonna work out. That's what we thought and then COVID happened. That was like [1-5] months, [1-5] month and then COVID happened. So I had to return back home. And at that point, we were following each other on social media. And we both realized that we were both here in [Location]. And that's how everything kind of started again. And that's ever since then we have been talking, been together.

Interviewer: Cool. OK, so how would you compare the quality of your relationship compared to that of your friend's relationship?

Speaker: Oh, okay. The quality? What does that mean?

Interviewer: Well, I'm interested to see how you understand that term quality.

Speaker: Oh, okay. The quality. Wait, can you repeat the question? Sorry.

Interviewer: Yeah. So how would you compare the quality of your relationship compared to that of like your friend's relationship?

Speaker: The quality? [long pause] I think that's a hard question. I think that's a hard question just because I myself don't like to compare, I guess. But I know the quality of my relationship is very deep. And I don't know like, I don't like to compare relationships because we all go through different things. But I do understand that we're like different people and then we are different people just in general. But I feel like my relationship is, I don't know, unique in its way that. I don't know, what does this quality mean?

Interviewer: Well, you had mentioned that like your relationship is very deep. So like, what do you mean by like deep?

Speaker: Okay. I think so since we've been together for so long. There's just so many things that my boyfriend, like, I don't know. I feel like we have learned to be together. Because I feel like no one's perfect. But we are like unique in the sense that I understand the way he is and he understands the way I am and that's what makes us work and I love my boyfriend a lot. And I feel like, I don't know what the word quality means. Can I look up what the word quality means?

Interviewer: If you'd like. It's just what kind of like your understanding of like quality.

Speaker: The standard of something has measured against other things. [long pause] Wait, can you repeat that question?

Interviewer: Yeah. So how would you compare the quality of your relationship compared to your friend's relationship?

Speaker: Okay. Yeah, like I said, it goes very deep. I feel like. Like I said, I don't like to compare and I, obviously everyone's different. And there's so many things behind the scenes that we don't know of each other when we are comparing, if we were to be comparing. But I know that in my relationship I do love my, my boyfriend and my relationship, I think is in a deeper. I don't know. Because we've been together for so long. We've gone through so many things together and a lot of hardships and like struggles that helps strengthen our relationship. And there's a lot of, I feel like many great qualities behind the scenes that people don't see. And I'm sure that's the same thing with other people's relationships. We can also be stubborn as well. So I think. Yeah. I don't know if that answers your question.

Interviewer: Yeah. Well, it's just kind of just more of like your perspective of quality.

Speaker: Mhm, that was hard.

Interviewer: So. Okay. So I also wanted to ask, just to get like a bigger picture background. Can I also ask how many romantic partners you've had in the past?

Speaker: Partners, like with titles? I know nowadays it's hard.

Interviewer: Yeah.

Speaker: Because it's like so many talking stages and like dating and relationship, like dedicated partners?

Interviewer: Well, from any romantic partners that you would feel like would actually count, I guess, like before you met your current partner?

Speaker: Probably like [1-5] or like [1-5].

Interviewer: [1-5]?

Speaker: Yeah.

Interviewer: Okay. So now how would you compare the quality of your relationship now compared to like those in the past?

Speaker: Oh, that's a good one. Yeah. Now, that's a different story because I feel like those, those weren't as long as this one. So they were very surface level, I feel like, compared to what my current relationship is. I think during that time, during those other three relationships, I didn't really necessarily know what love meant. I think with my current relationship, I know what it actually means to love someone through all the good and the bad. Before, like in my previous, either I wasn't treated right or I was making excuses or I just didn't know like the sacrificing part of it. Just not knowing what true love is. I think I was just, I was also younger. So, I didn't know how to take myself seriously and take a partner seriously. So I just didn't, It just obviously didn't work for a reason. Uhm, but yeah.

Interviewer: So you would say that it's kind of like because you were younger and weren't together for as long?

Speaker: Yeah. And so the quality isn't the same because I feel like of my age, my understanding of what love is and like what a relationship is supposed to look like. And then this relationship like is worth and I value it more, I guess.

Interviewer: Okay. Okay, thank you. All right, sorry. Go move forward. So for you, what makes a relationship high quality and what makes it low quality?

Speaker: Quality, the word quality is throwing me off. Like I cannot wrap my head around quality.

Interviewer: Like for you what makes a relationship like, you know, like good, like high quality? Like what makes it like, you know, a really good relationship and like what makes it low quality? Like, you know, kind of just like, yeah.

Speaker: Wait, what was the question?

Interviewer: So for you, what makes a relationship like high quality and what makes it like a low quality?

Speaker: Okay. For me, what makes a relationship high quality? I think it's just having someone that understands you and I feel like is willing to go above and beyond and thinks about like, not putting you first, but not forgetting about you in that relationship. Someone that treats you right, that respects you, respect is super important. Low quality, someone that doesn't, someone that disrespects you, someone that really doesn't care about you, but it's just kind of your like, I don't know why people keep other people around when they're not in love or care for them, but just probably just to be an object, I guess. Like I said, being disrespected, so being mistreated, being talked down to. Does that answer that question?

Interviewer: Yeah. So you would say like a high quality relationship involves like understanding?

Speaker: Understanding, obviously getting along, having things in common. Yeah, like understanding each other, respecting each other, having things in common, just wanting to be around them all the time. I know that could be bad, but just enjoying their presence. Even if you're not doing anything extravagant, enjoying like learning from them and like their perspectives on things and stuff.

Interviewer: So can you tell me more about like how someone would know that like one is like in an understanding relationship? Like how did you, how did you like, or give an example kind of, or how did you know that you're like in a relationship where like you guys understand each other?

Speaker: [long pause] That we understand each other?

Interviewer: Yeah. Or like you said, also like, you know, people for highs, like they go above and beyond or they're like, they like show you a lot of respect, treat you right. So like using some of the things that you had mentioned, like how would you like be able to tell that you're like, you're in a relationship that provides that?

Speaker: Hmm. Oh, sure. I got 10%. So sorry. The way, I think, just by being, I guess, mindful of each other and the things I guess, I don't understand that. Can you repeat the question?

Interviewer: Yeah. Well, it's just cause like understanding seems like something that was like a big part of like, you explaining like high quality relationships. So like how would you be able to like tell, you know, that someone is in a relation, like an understanding relationship?

Speaker: I think, okay. So say I get upset over something, I, my partner is willing to comfort me. My boyfriend's willing to comfort me and not right away or just come around like seeing my point of view. I think it's easy to be very stubborn and get stuck on your own thoughts and mindsets.

But I feel like at the end of the day, me and my boyfriend are able to come around and he's always willing to kind of mediate and understand and fix things and see where I'm coming from on standpoint and vice versa.

Interviewer: So when would you say your relationship was like, you know, like understanding?

Speaker: I think from the beginning, from the beginning, it's been very understanding. I feel like we're very, my boyfriend does a really good job of communicating and that's something I've struggled with. But he, like I mentioned, understands that I struggle with it and as much as he tries to work on it, well, help me work on it, he also understands that it is a working progress. But he's a very good communicator and I think if he doesn't understand something, he will want to speak upon it, understand it, and move forward from wherever we're at.

Interviewer: Okay. When would you say that you had good communication? Since we're on the topic of communication.

Speaker: When I've had good communication?

Interviewer: Like, yeah, like when would you say like you had good communication?

Speaker: Oh, that's a hard one. I don't think I've ever really been a good communicator. My first reaction when something is being confronted is kind of like put it aside, just put it aside and then get over it. And I realized that it's a lot, it has a lot to do with how I grew up with, how I grew up and what I was shown growing up. Because my mom was like that, she would get upset and not really talk, she kind of just hide away, get upset and not talk or ever confront you about anything. So that was kind of my easiest way to kind of get over things or just move on is literally moving on and not communicating. So it's always been hard for me, but there's been instances like throughout our relationship, where I kind of wrapped my head around getting better at it. I feel like more recently I've been better at it, like instead of hiding away, just talking about it.

Interviewer: Why do you think you know the good communication would be important? You know, is it to reduce conflicts or?

Speaker: Oh yeah, definitely, to reduce conflicts. Um, yeah, literally to reduce conflicts just makes and make the, your partner feel validated.

Interviewer: So would you say that like it also like helps increase like satisfaction within the relationship?

Speaker: Oh yeah, definitely, I think that's a big factor.

Interviewer: Cool, okay, so for you, what are the most important things in a relationship?

Speaker: For me, the most important thing in a relationship. Someone who's understanding, loves you, cares about you, is family oriented. In a sense where like they can get along with your family and stuff. I guess likes to hang out with me, likes to eat food, likes to work out. Yeah, someone who's motivated as well. Should have something—

Interviewer: Motivated in like what sense?

Speaker: Like future, like self-improvement, trying to kind of look out for like the future and career success. Yeah.

Interviewer: So why would you say that these like qualities are like important for relationships?

Speaker: I think just to not sit and be stagnant all the whole development career, future success to not be stagnant and just kind of, I think for me, they're really important because I'm very focused on kind of like health and like career success and just making sure that person isn't diminishing that. And if anything is helping you grow with like love and care, I think ultimately that's like super important to nourish those qualities.

Interviewer: Okay. So this one is gonna probably pick at your brain a little bit.

Speaker: Okay.

Interviewer: Okay. So but it's just like for you, what is love?

Speaker: Okay. Okay. I mean, I mean, yeah, no, I feel like love is someone, is like caring for someone unconditionally. Love isn't, I think love isn't easy, but if both of the people that are like, are willing to work on it and like have committed to each other, like love will succeed. Like that feeling of love or that emotion, I think it's like feeling that emotion is like undeniable. I mean, it is a choice. I don't know how to put it together in words.

Interviewer: So far what you said is like, it's a feeling that you have, but it's also something that you have to like physically like work for.

Speaker: Yeah. Because you choose to love someone because it's easy to fall out of love, but you choose to be with that person because. And that's what makes it hard because sometimes it's easy to fall out of love and get distracted or get manipulated, but it's always coming back to that one person or always reminding yourself why you chose to be there in the first place. It's just being able to choose and know that you chose this person that you love no matter what.

Interviewer: I mean, that's it. I mean, it's clear how you feel. There's no right answer or wrong answer. It's just your POV of it. So how important is love in a relationship?

Speaker: Oh. It's very important I think, because that can definitely be the foundation of whatever you're struggling with because at the end of the day, obviously with exceptions, like I mentioned. You always wanna make sure you're putting yourself first and not being disrespected, but if everything is all well, and I don't know how explain it. Wait, can you repeat your question?

Interviewer: Yeah. So how important is love in a relationship?

Speaker: Yeah, yeah, yeah. So cause it be, it has to it, it's super important because it has to set the foundation because I can have a bad day. But it doesn't mean, and I could, I could have a bad day and not want to talk to my partner, not want to speak to anybody and at the end of the day, my partner needs to know that. It's not against him, like I still love him. Love has to be kind of like the foundation for everything. If you're not moving with love, then it's gonna be hard for someone to stick around, I think. And vice versa, they can be having a bad day, but deep down we know we both love each other and that's like, it's a problem right now, but not a problem for life. Because then we know we love each other.

Interviewer: Yeah. So just to let you know you love each other. How do you know that like your partner loves you?

Speaker: I think the little things that they do throughout the day, telling each other, wanting to be with each other all the time, just like, yeah, like, I don't know, like them supporting you and everything you do, even though they don't have to. Like I said, loving you through like unconditionally, like so, just sticking around, not judging you for the things you do, just wanting to learn more about you, wanting to be that person they are able, be that person to support you and help you. Yeah.

Interviewer: Very nice. Perspectives. Thank you for sharing.

Speaker: Of course.

Interviewer: Okay. So, I'm gonna continue. So we're gonna go to like a different topic now. So what would you say are challenges in your relationship?

Speaker: Oh, challenges. Um, like I brought it up, me communicating is really a big challenge, I think, because a lot of my communication skills, because I feel like a lot could be prevented if I just was able to communicate better. Um, but yeah, I think if I was just able to communicate better, um, I think also, no, I mean, yeah, I think that's like one of the big ones.

Interviewer: Um, do you, um, and your partner, like, get into any, like, fights?

Speaker: Yeah, that's. Yeah, here and there.

Interviewer: And then how long do you, like, these fights last?

Speaker: Like an hour or two max.

Interviewer: Okay.

Speaker: Because like I mentioned, my boyfriend's a really good communicator, so he'll right away would want to kind of resolve the issues. Um, and issues.

Interviewer [00:00:04] Okay. So we were talking about. If you guys get into any fights and you said, Yeah, here and there, and that they got like an hour to max and you said that they don't last very long because he's a good communicator and you guys usually kind of like discuss whatever was going on right then and there.

Interviewer [00:00:29] So to follow up on that, what are these fights about? Sometimes, if you'd like to share.

Speaker [00:00:43] I think sometimes it can be very nit picky at stuff. And if something. And he can also give you something like I think we both could be very sensitive and very nit picky also. And he's very direct and I'm more like, Why can't you sugarcoat stuff? So I think I can also be sensitive in the way I can take things very personally. And then he can also take things personally or I can be very—like I mentioned nit picky—and pick some, pick at something and then we start arguing. I think those two things.

Interviewer [00:01:35] And so then how do you guys usually resolve these fights?

Speaker [00:01:40] We come to an understanding like a medium. Like. Okay. Like. Or. Yeah, we'll come to an understanding like, okay, will we come to, like, come meet each other in the middle there, you know? And then just apologize, make sure that we understand why we're fighting them and what we can do to resolve and not bring up the same issue later on.

Interviewer [00:02:17] Okay. And so that from aside from so you said, like communicating and kind of discussing that. So like asides from that are what are other ways that you, like maintain like your relationship?

Speaker [00:02:32] I think also just sacrificing things that doesn't make my boyfriend comfortable. So if I want to, for example, go out and do something, but it's like, my boyfriend does feel comfortable with me doing that, he'll tell me, 'Put yourself up my place'. And then it's just coming up with an understanding as to why that my boyfriend is feeling that way. But that just means that I might have to sacrifice this time, this outing for him. But knowing that he understands and would most likely do the same for me if I was in that position.

Interviewer [00:03:20] Okay. So I also want to ask, would you say that the relationship is good for you?

Speaker [00:03:28] Uh, yeah, I think so.

Interviewer [00:03:30] Okay. And so why?

Speaker [00:03:33] I think we might argue or have these fights, but at the end of the day, like, we're here to support each other and help each other grow. And he's like, my boyfriend's like my number one fan. He's never disrespected me in the way that he's never called me names or laid a hand on me. We might come to disagreements, though we always try to resolve them. And there's. Very. There's not a lot of. We don't hold grudges as much, like I, if anything would hold a grudge. If it. If the situation were to arise, it's me that's holding the grudge. But I think for the most part, he's very understanding and caring.

Interviewer [00:04:29] So you said that he's like, you know, so you guys, like, support each other. Could you give like an example of like a time?

Speaker [00:04:45] Hello? Can you hear me?

Interviewer [00:04:47] Hello? Yes.

Speaker [00:04:49] Okay. I think the WiFi is cutting. But you we're saying? Sorry could you repeat that?

Interviewer [00:04:54] Oh, because you had mentioned that you feel like you guys support each other and help each other grow. So I was just curious if you had an example of that.

Speaker [00:05:07] Yeah. So I, when I saw I. I don't know, like just little like events that happen in our lives. I ran half a marathon. He was there. He took me. He was kind of my support system. And then I had recently done [dance]. I had a performance and he was the one that took me and he was there. So I think it's just the little things. So just being present and things like that. And financially also, I feel like it could be a factor, paying for like meals, paying for just outings and stuff like that.

Interviewer [00:05:57] So. Did the relationship change you? And if it did, then like what way?

Speaker [00:06:07] I think it has. Because before I was with him, I was out all the time. I was. I think that would be the biggest thing like it has. Like it has, but it hasn't. I'm still the same person that I was, but with caution, I guess. Like I mentioned, I was always out all the time, but I'm still the person that I am. Like I. Before him, I love running, I love going to the gym, I love dancing folklorico. I'm still able to do those things. But I would say that hanging out with my friends is. I've done that less. Just because as when I did what none of my friends, we would go out. But I'm not in that part of that scene anymore. So it's hard to go out and be the taken friend when all my friends are single, kind of thing. But, like it has that it hasn't.

Interviewer [00:07:17] So mostly just like the going out part you feel like.

Interviewer [00:07:27] And then what about your boyfriend? Did they change during their relationship?

Speaker [00:07:41] I don't think so. I fell like he's been the same person he's always been. He would hang out a lot with his friends before. Actually, I feel like, yeah, a little bit has changed. I see it as growth. I feel like he was in. He had some bad habits when we first met. But now, like, he doesn't have those bad habits anymore. Some of those bad habits. I see it as growth more so than like just a change.

Interviewer [00:08:20] Yeah. So is your boyfriend the same? So the kind of like what you said, like, is your boyfriend the same before the relationship or as they are now, you would say.

Speaker [00:08:35] Like. Yes. Yeah. Like a little bit. Yeah. Yes and no.

Interviewer [00:08:45] So, 'yes' would going to like the growth part that you were talking about?

Speaker [00:08:50] Yes. And that. Oh. He's. There's still a few things that he does or the person that he still is that has remained the same. But there has been changes as well. I feel like minor changes in his growth and mindsets also.

Interviewer [00:09:13] Okay. Okay. So, do you feel safe in your relationship?

Speaker [00:09:25] Yes.

Interviewer [00:09:26] Yes. And then why? Why 'yes'?

Speaker [00:09:35] I say yes because I can say or do whatever I do. And my boyfriend would support whatever decision I make, obviously, with boundaries. Obviously not crossing his boundaries, but I. He's never laid a hand on me. He's never spoken to me disrespectfully to ever say that I've ever-. And. Yeah.

Interviewer [00:10:13] Safe to say that you feel safe overall?

Speaker [00:10:20] Yeah.

Interviewer [00:10:29] So I'm going to show you some pictures now to get your answers on them.

Speaker [00:10:40] Okay.

Interviewer [00:10:43] I'm still relatively new to using these laptops. So what I'm going to show you is a Lickert scale. So it's just from one to nine. So one is 'not true at all'. Nine would be 'completely true'.

Speaker [00:11:09] Okay

Interviewer [00:11:13] Let me share my screen. Can you see it?

Interviewer [00:11:27] Okay so 'my partner usually really listens to me' from like the one to nine. Where would you kind of fall on this one?

Speaker [00:11:35] Mm, probably nine

Interviewer [00:11:38] Nine. Okay. And then 'my partner usually is responsive to my needs'.

Speaker [00:11:50] I would say nine. Or I would say eight. Say eight

Interviewer [00:11:55] This one?

Speaker [00:11:56] Yeah. Yeah

Interviewer [00:11:56] Okay. So what would make it from, like. Instead of a nine, what would make it like be an eight?

Speaker [00:12:08] Actually, I'm gonna do a seven.

Interviewer [00:12:10] Okay. Yeah

Speaker [00:12:13] And I would say because sometimes there's things that I do want to do that he doesn't feel comfortable doing or doesn't want to do. I mean, but I guess that's not an. It's like a want from myself.

Interviewer [00:12:32] It's however you feel

Speaker [00:12:33] But yeah, I want to do something. Yeah.

Interviewer [00:12:37] Okay, So how satisfied are you with your relationship? And it goes from completely dissatisfied to completely satisfied. So where would you kind of put yourself on there?

Speaker [00:12:49] I would say very satisfied.

Interviewer [00:12:51] Okay. You want to explain why 'Very satisfied' and not another option?

Speaker [00:13:00] I think just because we do have differences, I think my boyfriend is more of an introvert and I'm more of an extrovert. That would make some things tricky. But overall, it's satisfying.

Interviewer [00:13:20] Okay. Okay. How would you rate your satisfaction with your relationship? Zero. Being not at all satisfied and ten being completely satisfied.

Speaker [00:13:34] How would you rate satisfaction- probably yeah, ten.

Interviewer [00:13:38] Ten?

Speaker [00:13:37] Yeah

Interviewer [00:13:38] Okay. Oh they're different numbers. Okay, so how would you rate your satisfaction with your relationship? Negative ten being completely dissatisfied and zero being not satisfied? Not at all dissatisfied.

Speaker [00:14:04] Zero?

Interviewer [00:14:06] Okay.

Speaker [00:14:08] Right? That's like a double negative.

Interviewer [00:14:14] So this one, if you want me to zoom in, I can. I think.

Speaker [00:14:19] Okay

Interviewer [00:14:21] Okay, thinking. So how would you rate your satisfaction in your relationship? And this one gives you a little bit more of a bigger range. So it's completely dissatisfied somewhere in the middle-

Speaker [00:14:32] Can you zoom in?

Interviewer [00:14:35] Yeah, right here in the middle where it's like. Not. At all. It's kind of like neutral. There in the middle. Like you're neither satisfied or dissatisfied or you're completely satisfied.

Speaker [00:14:54] Oh, wow. I'll give this one a nine just because it's a bigger range.

Interviewer [00:15:00] A nine?

Interviewer [00:15:03] Okay. So definitely, for the most part, your answer seemed like you were leaning towards, like, the complete satisfaction of it.

Interviewer [00:15:16] So. Oh, if you wouldn't mind providing some examples, I think you already kind of did. Like with the, you said that you think of like a nine or an eight because there's like some missing pieces. But since you answered for the majority of them being like completely, can you give an example of why you feel completely satisfied?

Speaker [00:16:03] I mean, at the end of the day, because it's all about understanding. So I think at the end of the day, I know how he is and I'm okay with it just because he. I don't know. Like I love him. So I'm just satisfied. With everything. Yeah.

Interviewer [00:16:31] Okay we're gonna move on from the pictures, and we're on the last, like, tail end of the interview. So I hope you don't mind if I ask. And feel free to say if it's, like, too sensitive to share. But for the research purposes, we also wanted to know more about your physical intimacy as a couple. So now that nowadays, like, how often do you say, like you and your partner have sex?

Speaker [00:17:00] Wait. Can you repeat the question? How?

Interviewer [00:17:02] Yeah. So like these days, how often do you guys have sex?

Speaker [00:17:07] Oh, often. Often, I think like twice, three times a week just because we don't really see each other. It is a weird schedule. Twice, maybe.

Interviewer [00:17:22] Okay. And then how satisfied are you with your sex life?

Speaker [00:17:28] Pretty satisfied- completely satisfied. If we're using the scale.

Interviewer [00:17:33] So why would you say that for your answer? Like any reason?

Speaker [00:17:39] I don't know.

Interviewer [00:17:40] Again like, you know, you can feel free to share as much or as little as you like.

Speaker [00:17:49] I don't know how to respond that.

Interviewer [00:17:59] Well like is it part of like the important things in your relationship or I like— to help you out to see, like if you're satisfied with it or in general, are you just like, satisfied with the amount of times or like?

Speaker [00:18:14] Oh okay. What was the question?

Interviewer [00:18:16] So like, how satisfied are you with like your sex life and like you had said, like, you know, pretty satisfied. And so then it's it's like, oh, like, why would you say that?

Speaker [00:18:24] Oh, okay, okay. I guess it would be kind of maybe not completely satisfied because I wish we would have some more often, but. So the “do do” is good. I guess, just because he understands what I like. I don't know.

Interviewer [00:18:56] Okay. Thank you for sharing. Okay. So you had mentioned earlier when we were looking at the thing, how satisfied you are with your relationship. You said completely satisfied, right?

Interviewer [00:19:16] Okay. We went over that too. Sorry I'm just making sure we went over everything. Okay. So, we are really close to wrapping up. Those are one of the last questions. And we went over the majority part like within the pictures. So I just want to give you a summary basically of what we did here and what we're doing. So basically, you said one of the key things in your relationship satisfaction is kind of like being understanding, you know, having that space for each other, showing up. You know, you said that like things that kind of, like make it low quality is just like a lot of disrespect and things. But based off of like what you said, it seems like your relationship really amplifies the high qualities of it instead of the low quality example that you gave. Sounds like communication is a big thing when it comes to it, and it's like something that's like a work in progress for you, but something that your boyfriend kind of has like down. Overall, your satisfaction is pretty or completely satisfied in your relationship. So I'm just making so I got all of that correct.

Interviewer [00:20:47] Okay. Is there anything else you'd like to add besides the stuff that we already talked about?

Speaker [00:20:59] No, I don't think so.

Interviewer [00:21:00] Okay. Okay. Well. Thank you. And before we completely end, I want to talk to you about how we'll handle the data, because you will get an option of either one option or two options. So how you kind of want to do this?

Speaker [00:21:18] Okay.

Interviewer [00:21:19] We want to be as ethically transparent as possible. So we want to know which data sharing option you're most comfortable with. So an option one that's just like the transcript portion could be shared, but none of it is like, Oh, this is so and so. It's just the transcripts read by like other researchers. Options two, it's like the whole transcript is like shared and like, obviously like some information that could kind of like pinpoint who you are, even though it's kind of rare like that would be taken out, you know? So it's like the whole transcript can be shared and then removed, defensive and over overly identifying details. So it would be like anonymous, although this option, there's a very, very minimal chance that someone will know who you are by placing the piece together, you know. We can have the transcript and narrow it down with the colleagues. But again, its like no information of yours, will be given if that makes sense.

Speaker [00:22:27] So is that one or two?

Interviewer [00:22:29] So that's the second one. The first one is just the transcript portions could be shared among the researchers. And then the second one, the whole transcript is shared. And but like your personal information, I could kind of maybe like, you know, be like, Oh, this is so and so. Like, that's removed from it, even though that's like a very, very low risk of it even happening.

Speaker [00:22:55] Yeah, we'll do two.

Interviewer [00:22:56] Two? Okay. So thanks again for participating in a study. I would like for you to know that it's being done in the Philippines, Brazil, Netherlands, France and the U.S. And so for this to be successful, there's just one more thing we want to ask you, and that's if you can recommend, you know, to close people in your life as nominators, we would ask them like, you know, they know people that are interested if they're interested, like couples. For me, I'm doing like people that have been together for about [1-5] year. So if, you know, anyone. We would just be asking for couples, they don't need to really interact or anything. That way we could get like a diverse network. So if you know anyone, let me know and then let them know so that I'm a reach out to them, too, so they don't freak out over like a random email.

Speaker [00:24:02] Yeah. I can give them to a friend. I can let her know.

Interviewer [00:24:08] Okay? Yeah. You don't have to give me their contact info now. You can give it to me or send it to me later. But yeah, that's all.

Speaker [00:24:16] Okay.

Interviewer [00:24:17] And then there. And there might be a post interview survey that I'm gonna send out. You could fill that out if you'd like to later on. So that's basically it. So again, thank you for your time and your answers.

Speaker [00:24:37] Thank you.
